6 BILLION BUDGET CUT FAVORED

Welfare Fund May Cause New Miners' Strike

Remedial Law Would Avoid July Crisis

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11 (AP) — The National Coal Association warned tonight a new bituminous coal strike is "inevitable" by July 1 unless John L. Lewis agrees to give up the Miners' Welfare Fund or Congress passes a remedial law.

Forney Johnston, counsel of the Association, gave that view of the situation to a reporter after testifying before the House Labor Committee.

Mines To Be Returned

He said the bituminous coal industry, or at least a substantial part of it, both North and South, "cannot agree" to continue the fund which was set up by the government after it seized 2,300 mines last May. The government is legally obligated to return the mines before July 1.

Johnston also said it would be "difficult" for Lewis to retreat on the issue.

Therefore, he said, it's up to Congress.

He had given the Coal Association's view of the future in somewhat less positive terms during his testimony, in which he asked Congress to remove the protection of federal laws to all strikes over welfare funds, closed shops, or other "improper objects."

Appealing for action against strikes "contrary to public welfare," he proposed that the benefits of the Wagner Labor Act, and the Anti-injunction law, be withheld from workers walking out in disputes over anything except wages or working conditions. Under his plan even strikes over those issues would be "improper" if the public welfare were at stake.

Understanding Necessary

"Congress should understand," Johnston told the committee "that a large proportion of the coal industry, if not the entire industry, or relinquishment of federal control, cannot agree voluntarily to a collectivist pooling of the mine labor of 2,000 unrelated mines for the levy of a tonnage tax by the mine workers for any such blind pool."

This was a reference to the welfare fund. The coal mines now are paying a royalty of five cents a ton into the fund. That was one of the issues in the strike last spring which led to government seizure.

Johnston said the "reasonable certainty" of a new strike would arise "if the unions are permitted to attempt to perpetuate that exaction, and if Congress fails to limit the sanctions for labor disputes and strikes to the legitimate scope of compulsory bargaining, viz., wages and working conditions."

Truman Opposes Rent Increase

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12 — (AP) — Senator Buck (R-Del.) said today he expects his Senate Banking subcommittee to recommend a general 10 or 15 percent increase in rent ceilings, but the White House was reported to be flatly opposed to any blanket boost.

Buck, chairman of the subcommittee investigating rents, told a reporter he believes also that the group will vote to abolish rent ceilings on new houses and housing newly opened to renters.

Shortly afterward Senator Taylor (D-Idaho), returning to the Capitol from a visit to President Truman, said the Chief Executive opposes a flat increase in rents "and there are no ifs, ands or buts about it."

Merchant Seaman Will Sell His Eyes

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 11 (AP) — Harold Goodwin, 43-year-old seaman who helped transport troops into France on D Day, put his eyesight on the market today in a losing battle against the hunger of his family.

"I've sold everything else of value that I own so that I could buy food and clothing for my family and now I have only my eyes left," he said.

"I got the idea that my eyes might be worth something after reading in a magazine that sightless people were in need of new corneas for their eyes," he explained.

Goodwin was hospitalized last September after he fell on a merchant vessel and suffered a spine injury. He has been in bed or on a crutch ever since.

China Faces New Debacle In Economics

SHANGHAI, Feb. 11—(AP)—Chiang Kai-Shek today asked his leading financial and economics experts for suggestions to end the nation's financial debacle as Chinese inquired anxiously, "Is this the beginning of the end?"

Yuan Drops

For the third straight day, the Chinese National currency tobogganned at a record speed, losing as much as 2,000 points in a single hour in relation to the United States dollar. The Yuan (Chinese dollar) plunged to 19,000 to $1 on the black market—a one-day drop of 4,500 points. The official exchange rate is 3,350 to $1.

From Canton to Peiping the Orientals' staff of life, rice, soared. Hoarders cleaned out stock in many shops in Shanghai. In many cities, merchants withdrew their stocks rather than sell for the cheapening Yuan.

The answer to the question, "Is this the beginning of the end?" usually took the form of another question: "If this is a major inflation, what is the end?"

Chiang, presumably as worried as any Chinese, conferred at his presidential residence in Nanking with Premier T. V. Soong and other top experts. A government spokesman declined to comment on the conference or on possible economic measures proposed "because of the possibility of provocative effects in an already confusing situation."

Hold Secret Session

Chinese newspapers said the Financial, Legislative and Economic Committee of the Legislative Yuan (counsel) held a secret session to discuss recommendations that the government halt all transactions in the United States dollar and in gold bars.

There seems to be little question that China is perilously near chaos. But China has lived at the edge of chaos ever since the war ended, so what would be an abysmal crisis elsewhere might be endured by the long suffering Chinese.

Prices soared in all major cities —and presumably in villages—as news reached them that Shanghai prices, always quick to react, went up.

U. S. And Russia Clash In Debating Arms Commission

Austin Demands Quick Settlement

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., Feb. 11—(AP)—The United States and Soviet Russia clashed over motives in the United Nations Security Council today in a long debate on the scope of a proposed United Nations Arms Commission.

Warren R. Austin, United States Delegate, demanded that the council settle the question "now, once and for all" in a way that would prevent any possible attempt to open up the American Atomic Bomb Secrets.

Gromyko Strikes

Andrei A. Gromyko, soviet delegate, struck at Austin for "stubborn" insistence that the Council specifically keep the functions of the Arms Commission and the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission separate.

The Russian said Austin had made it clear that the United States envisaged some future situation in which Russia would take a position in the Arms Commission conflicting with that of the United States and that was the motive behind Austin's stand.

Gromyko also revealed that when the Atomic Energy Commission report comes up in the Security Council he will make a new move to outlaw Atomic weapons.

Austin told the council for the first time in public just why the United States insists that the proposed commission must not encroach on the Atomic Commission.

Calls For Information

Austin said that:

1. The proposed resolution setting up the commission calls for information on armed forces of the United Nations.

2. Andrei A. Gromyko, Soviet Delegate, said in General Assembly debate last December that any such troop and armaments census should include full information on all types

Jew Fights Jew As New Tel Aviv Resistance Opens

At Least Dozen Persons Are Hurt

JERUSALEM, Feb. 11 (AP)—Bomb-hurling Jewish extremises fought anti-terrorist Jews in the heart of Tel Aviv tonight in a battle in which at least a dozen persons were injured, reliable private sources said.

It was the first major clash of Jew-against-Jew in Palestine since British Military forces began the enforcement of extraordinary security measures in an effort to stamp out underground violence. The fighting broke out as police and military forces waited tensely for an expcted new wave of terrorism.

Youths Start Fight

According to the informants, the fighting began when youths "presumed to be adherents of the Irgun Zvai Leumi," an underground extremist group, attempted to storm the clubrooms of Hashomir Hatzair, an outspokenly anti-terrorist Jewish Political Party.

Hurling "Molotov cocktail" bombs —bottle filled with gasoline—into the clubrooms, the attackers started a series of fires. These were quickly extinguished.

During the battle seven occupants of the clubrooms and at least five of the attackers were wounded, the informants said.

The tense Holy Land was made even more jittery when a loud but harmless explosion shook the harbor at Haifa, 50 miles north of Tel Aviv.

There also was a report from a private source that a ship with several hundred Jewish refugees was approaching the Palestine coast apparently in preparation for an attempt to run the immigrtion blockade. This would mark the second attempt in the last few days to get refugees into the Holy Land.

Explosion Explained

The explosion in Haifa harbor was officially explained as the deliberate firing of a depth charge by a port launch. The police officially denied that the port area had been cleared of personnel, although reports from police sources a half-hour before the explosion said a warning had been received of the planting of a bomb and that all residents and workers in the port area were ordered to clear out.

Brennan To Retire

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11 (AP) — Emmett J. Brennan, whose name has been appearing on 14,000,000 checks a month, will retire March 1 as the treasury's chief disbursing officer then.

His name on checks will be replaced by that of Paul B. Banning, a veteran of 25 years in the government.

World Control Plan Of Columbians Told

Program Of Hate, Violence Cited

ATLANTA, Feb. 11 (AP)—A Nazi-like scheme for world domination by the anti-negro, anti-jew Columbians, Inc., was outlined to a jury today by the state as it opened prosecution of the first indictment against high officials of the organization.

"This act of violence was the minor part of a general conspiracy," said Solicitor General E. E. Andrews of a riot charge against Executive Secretary Homer L. Loomis, Jr., of New York.

Conspiracy Charged

He charged that President Emory Burke of the Columbians and Loomis entered into a "general conspiracy" for the organization to establish domination in Atlanta and eventually the entire world as they spread their doctrine of race hatred. He added that "young boys who could be easily persuaded" to do "their street fighting" were enrolled.

Both Loomis and Burke were indicted on the riot charge in connection with the blackjacking last October of a negro, Clifford Hines. A severance was granted on motion of Burke's counsel and the state proceeded with the trial of Loomis.

The riot offense is a misdemeanor, with a maximum penalty on conviction of 12 months in a public works camp, or six months in jail and a $1,000 fine.

Loomis appeared in court wearing the organization's brown shirt with the thunder-bolt shoulder patch. Some four other members were similarly dressed but Burke was attired conservatively in a blue suit.

A veteran who served with the Army's Second Armored Division, Loomis leaned over to confer fre-

Federal Health Bill Challenged By Administration

Insurance Program Asked By SS Board

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7 (AP) — The proposal of Senator Taft (R-Ohio) for $200,000,000 in federal grants for free medical care today ran into revived administration demands for nationwide health insurance.

The Social Security Board, in its 11th report to Congress, called for a health insurance program financed by contributions from workers and employers, in the manner of old-age benefits.

Board Criticizes

The board criticized the "free treatment" theory, declaring that most normally self-supporting persons would prefer a system of prepaid medical care "rather than seek free care after they have been reduced to dependency."

This followed the argument of President Truman's State of the Union message, in which he rejected "charity" methods and asserted that a national health program paid for by the beneficiaries was "the most important recommendation" in his entire social welfare program.

The social security board's report, transmitted by Federal Security Administrator Watson B. Miller, asked these additional welfare measures:

Edison's Family, Friends Celebrate His Anniversary

NEW YORK, Feb. 11—(AP)—The family and associates of Thomas A. Edison joined with plain American citizens, each beneficiary of some of his 1,097 inventions, in a nationwide observance today of the 100th anniversary of his birth.

Dinners, pilgrimages and other ceremonies were held in more than 20 American cities to honor the great inventor whose genius produced the phonograph, incandescent lamp, motion pictures, fluoroscope and fluorescent lamp, and many other marvels.

A message from President Truman to the inventor's widow was read at a luncheon here of the Edison Pioneers, whose members were associates and friends of Edison.

"The world in which we live," the president wired, "would be a poorer place without the heritage which the genius of Thomas Alva Edison gave us as a permanent contribution to our daily comfort and convenience."

Dr. Robert C. Clothier, vice president of the Thomas Alva Edison Foundation and president of Rutgers University, announced at the luncheon a plan for an annual $1,500 scholarship competition sponsored by the foundation. The winner, to be selected each year at final tests at West Orange, N. J., will receive a four-year college course.

At Milan, Ohio, a village of 800 persons where Edison was born February 11, 1847, Assistant Postmaster General Joseph J. Lawler, Jr., presented to Mrs. Madeleine Edison Sloane, the inventor's only daughter, the first sheet of memorial stamps issued in honor of his centennial.

Inland Oasis Is Discovered At South Pole

Lakes, Brown Mounds Are Seen From Air

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

Land 40 Mile Wide

A 40-mile-wide land of lakes region with conical mounds rising 500 feet above the surface in an area completely devoid of ice was located inland in the vicinity of the Knox Coast by fliers of the expedition's western task group reconnoitering in PBM Mariner planes Monday, Capt. Robert S. Quackenbush, Jr., chief of the expeditionary staff, said.

Discovery of the lakes and mounds, which resembled chocolate drops from the air, raised the question as to whether the area might be warm enough to support year-round human settlements comfortably. Expeditionary leaders said they considered the discovery of greatest significance from the standpoints of geology and geography.

Dispatches to this headquarters ship from Capt. Charles A. Bond, commanding the western wing, said the lakes were "of a pea green, muddy color, interspersed with dark blue and light green," and that conical shaped mounds rising 500 feet were dark brown in color.

The reports said there was no smoke seen in the region. The reference to smoke indicated that the mounds resembled volcanic peaks, but no further explanation was given.

The exact location of the area and the number of lakes and mounds sighted were not specified. Bond's dispatches, however, said some of the lakes were big enough for a PBM to land on.

The lake region had a radius of about 20 miles, Bond said, with the width of the area stretching about 40 miles. Photographers' planes took colored motion pictures and still shots of the area.

One Volcano Known

At least one active volcano—Mount Erebus—is known to exist in antarctica. Mount Erebus is located at the western side of the Ross Sea near McMurdo Sound.

The same flights also discovered numerous nunataks or islands of rocks standing above the surrounding ice sheet on the shackleton shelf of ice of the Queen Mary Coast. They also found a new glacier, but the specific positions of all these discoveries were not announced.

Marines returning to the mothership noticed much new ice forming on the sea, Quackenbush said. This might be additional evidence that the new land-of-lakes region was comparatively warm enough to remain free of ice while freezing was going on elsewhere in the same general area.

Father Of Five Admits Slaying Store Employe

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11 — (AP) — Floyd Page Wilson, 31, father of five children, was held without bail on a first degree murder charge today in connection with a holdup-killing carried out to pay a $17 coal bill.

Chief of Detectives Robert J. Barrett said Wilson acknowledged the slaying in a two and one-half page statement and surrendered a .32 caliber pistol as the death weapon. Wilson's arraignment was postponed a week when he was taken before a United States Commissioner today.

Barrett quoted Wilson as saying he accidentally shot Milton E. Lowe, brother-in-law of a chain grocery store manager, during an attempt to seize the store's $10,000 receipts for last Saturday.

The victim, himself the father of three children, was mortally wounded in a scuffle outside a store managed by his brother-in-law, Shelby Funk. The slayer fled and temporarily made good his escape.

Less than 48 hours later, police arrested Wilson after tracking down three clues: an old envelope, a carelessly parked car, and a southern accent.

Police said Wilson first went to another grocery store on the night of the shooting. Finding it closed, he sought entrance by persistently waving an envelope in front of the store window as if he had a message to deliver.

Delegates Get Apples

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Feb. 11 (AP) — Delegate John N. Newcomer (R-Washington) provided a bright and shiny apple for each of his legislative colleagues today.

Newcomer is an apple grower, and when members of the House arrived for today's session they found an apple on each desk. There was a king-size model on the speaker's desk.

British Plan To Save Fuel 'Not So Good'

LONDON, Feb. 11—(AP)—Great Britain's desperate campaign to build up its dangerously low coal piles proved a failure during the first 24 hours of its operation and the fuel ministry announced gloomily tonight that the public response to the appeal for power and coal conservation was "not so good."

Stocks Dwindle

The fuel ministry, fighting to ease the coal shortages which have shut down thousands of industries and thrown more than 4,000,000 persons out of work in 38 of the 64 counties in England and Wales, said the semi-voluntary coal and electricity savings scheme had failed to augment coal stocks at power stations in those counties.

In the remaining 26 English and Welsh counties, the Ministry added, coal supplies dwindled.

Although Prime Minister Clement R. Attlee, chief of the Labor Government which nationalized Britain's entire coal producing industry on January 1, appealed to Britons Monday to use as little coal, power and light as possible, today's electricity usage was nearly 500,000 kilowatts higher than Monday, the Ministry said.

The usage report indicated the public was disregarding the power saving plan, and caused the ministry to term public co-operation "not so good."

In addition to apparent public disregard of the labor government's frantic pleas for economy, bitter, below freezing weather, which forecasts said would last for "several days" more, hindered sea shipments of coal and caused a drop in production at the mines.

Snow Halts Shipment

Only a trickle of coal was getting through to London via the snow-choked railway systems and over the choppy coastal waters. Because of the weather 125 ships, carrying 195,000 tons of coal, were immobilized at Newcastle, chief coal port.

The Fuel Ministry said further restrictions on the British Public were being considered, including spreading power cuts to all of the United Kingdom except Northern Scotland, the introduction of double summer time and a universal curtailment of street lighting.

Taft To Oppose D. E. Lilienthal As Atom Chairman

Patterson Praises Former TVA Head

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11 (AP)—Secretary of War Patterson made an unheralded appearance before a Senate Committee today to endorse David E. Lilienthal as chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission amid a controversy that threatened to erupt into an historic fight.

Cites Qualifications

Patterson declared that Lilienthal was qualified "by character, ability and loyalty" for the post. The War Department, he added, "has a strong interest in phases of atomic energy development" and the commission posts are "of extreme importance."

Prospects of powerful new opposition to Lilienthal's confirmation sprang up with a report that Senator Taft (R-Ohio) would vote against the Presidential appointee.

Friends of Taft said the Ohio Senator took his stand because Lilienthal is "a new dealer."

Another witness, Dr. Arthur E. Morgan ousted by President Roosevelt in 1938 as chairman of the Tennessee Valley Authority, testified that Lilienthal aspired to be "irresponsibly in power" and had issued "dishonest" public statements.

Morgan, who followed Patterson as a witness before the Senate section of the Joint Atomic Energy Committee, conceded that Lilienthal had "excellent abilities in some ways."

Succeeded Dr. Morgan

Lilienthal succeeded Dr. Morgan as TVA chairman.

Taft himself said he had no public statement at this time. Friends of the Ohio lawmaker represented him as saying that he had no idea what stand the Republican delegation would take generally, but that he would vote against Lilienthal.

Near 2 Billions Would Be Taken Off Army Fund

Gen. Eisenhower Protests Slash

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11 (AP) — A Senate-House Budgetary Subcommittee voted for a $6,000,000,000 slash in President Truman's $37,500,000,00 budget today in the face of an emergency protest by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower against cutting army funds.

Just before the final subcommittee vote the Chief of Staff rushed to the Capitol.

It was learned that he protested that any reduction of army funds would cripple defense plans.

Figures Army Slash

Senator Gurney (R-CD) later figured the Armed forces' shares of the cut at $1,750,000,000.

One Senator said Eisenhower agreed that some reductions could be made in Army funds but that he wanted Congress to know just what would happen.

Certain Army camps must be closed and a large number of civil activities of the Army Engineers will be shut down, the General told the Congressional Budget Makers.

It was learned also that the reduced budget would call for elimination of about half a million persons now on federal payrolls.

A bitter wrangle over the question whether such a slash would impair the nation's defense preceded the vote.

Chairman Gurney (R-SD) of the Senate Armed Services Committee declined to join in the voting, declaring:

"I wouldn't vote for anything that hamstrings our national security."

The 20-man subcommittee approved the budgetary cut by an 8 to 2 vote, with three members declining to ballot. It sent its recommendation up to the 102-member Senate-House Budget Committee for action, probably on Friday.

To Act By Feb. 15

The Congressional Reorganization Act requires Congress to review President Truman's budget and set its own ceiling on federal spending by February 15.

Gurney, as the subcommittee adjourned its tumultuous four-hour session, gave this statement to reporters:

"I did not vote for the motion.

"I shold not want to jeopardize the national security right at the time General Marshall (Secretary of State) has so many problems. I couldn't vote for anything that hamstrings the national security."

Gurney declared the $6,000,000,000 budgetary slash would mean a $1,750,000,000 cut in funds for the Army and Navy.

Former Soldiers Must Return Loot

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11 (AP) — Artistic and historical loot brought home by members of the American Armed Forces is to be rounded up for return, and the government threatens prosecution for refusal to give up any such objects worth $5,000 or more.

The plan was disclosed today in a memorandum drawn up by the State Department and circulated in the War and Navy Departments. It declares:

"The introduction of looted objects of art into this country is contrary to the general policy of the United States and to the commitments of the United States under the Hague Convention of 1907, and in case of objects of a value of $5,000 or more is a contravention of Federal Law. It is incumbent on this government, therefore, to exert every reasonable effort to right such wrongs as may be brought to light."

Big Ben's Light Out

LONDON, Feb. 11 (AP) — Big Ben was darkened tonight for the duration of Britain's coal crisis. The famous clock atop the Houses of Parliament was relighted in May, 1945, after being blacked out during the war.

To Build Jail

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11 (AP) — The Federal Works Agency announced today an advance of $25,000 to the City of Baltimore to finance preliminary studies and drawings for a proposed jail estimated to cost $2,500,000.

Jilting British Girl Puts Her Marriage Plans On Shelf Again

WELCH, W. Va., Feb. 11 (AP)—The romantic troubles of Eileen Edwards took a new turn for the worse today with the result marriage plans again were put on the shelf.

Eileen ruefully disclosed that McDowell County Clerk John S. Renn had refused to honor a cablegram as bona fide evidence of parental consent for the London girl to wed William Theodore Crabtree, 19-year-old coal miner of Superior.

Happily, she had announced only yesterday receipt of a cable from her parents in London giving their blessing to the proposed marriage, and said the ceremony would take place Saturday.

With today's new turn of events, she said she would write her mother an air mail special delivery letter asking that she put her approval in her own handwriting. Renn also stipulated that the consent letter should be notarized in England.

Mrs. Edith White, executive secretary of the Red Cross Chapter here, said Renn previously had informed her and Miss Edwards that a notarized consent would be required but that in the excitement and haste the parents apparently had overlooked this stipulation.

The Circuit Judge has authority to act in such matters but he happens to be on his winter vacation in Florida.

Daughter's Birthday Cake Lights Cell Of Mother Held For Murder

Sandy-haired Frankie De Vore her slight body clad in a neat, plaid dress, lost the composure that has marked her five months detention in the juvenile home as a witness in the slaying of her father.

She sniffled like any 9-year-old when she embraced her mother, Vera, 37, again. Her tears rolled unrestrained when she opened her birthday presents.

They included a red wool skirt, a white blouse, a little red hat and matching purse, wool gloves, two boxes of candy and fruit.

Mrs. De Vore broke down. Then she regained partial composure and smiled through her tears as her daughter blew out the nine candles on the iced cake.

A few feet away, Judge W. McKay Skillman, his court attaches and a drab collection of petty criminals turned away and fumbled for their handkerchiefs.

Mrs. DeVore is accused of shooting to death her husband, Robert, 41, last October 14 after a drinking party at their home.

Talmadge Force Begins Pushing 'White Primary'

Measure Passes House 133 To 62

ATLANTA, Feb. 11 (AP) — Talmadge leaders swept aside heated but isolated opposition in the State Senate today and began to push through, section by section, the White Primary Bill under which they plan to close the Democratic party polls to negroes in Georgia.

Passed House

The measure already has passed the House by a vote of 133 to 62. It strikes from the State Statutes all regulation of primaries. By its adoption, proponents hope to circumvent a United States Supreme Court decision that the primary is a state election and that negroes must be allowed to participate.

The Democratic primary is tantamount to election in one-party Georgia. With repeal of state regulations, the Democrats plan to operate under their own rules and bar negroes from party participation. Passage of the bill is advocated by Governor-Claimant Herman Talmadge.

Eight of the 51 sections of the bill were approved by majorities ranging from 29 to 14 to 23 to 5 in the Senate today despite vigorous opposition led by Senator G. Everett Millican, who represents the populous Atlanta district.

Millican said the bill would not stand a United States Supreme Court test and added that in addition to the negroes' right to vote "it takes away the rights of the white people also."

Bill Defended

The bill was defended by Senator Alex S. Weaver of Macon, another populous area, who said its sole purpose was to bar negroes from the Democratic ballot. He was joined in his defense of the measure by Senator Vendie H. Hooks, a Baptist clergyman.

Just when the Senate would reach a final vote on the controversial measure was problematical. It first will vote on each section separately, then on the bill as a whole.

Still to be considered is an amendment offered by the Senate's Special Judiciary Committee authorizing a referendum on the proposal in the general election of 1948. Negroes would be given a voice in the bill's consideration under this proposal.

Chairman Reece Says New Deal Was "Corrupt"

Day Of Reckoning Here He Declares

CHICAGO, Feb. 11 (AP)—Republican National Chairman Carroll Reece declared tonight that evidence is being uncovered that the New Deal Administration was "corrupt, as well as inefficient and extravagant."

"We may expect additional evidence along that line during the coming months," he said in an address prepared for delivery before a Lincoln Day dinner of the Illinois State Republican Committee.

Reece did not elaborate, but went on to say:

Day Of Reckoning Here

"Now the days of reckoning are arriving. One of them occurred on November 5, 1946; another will come in November, 1948. However, at the moment, the task which is presented to the American people is to pull together and by hard work and thrift and self-sacrifice repair the damage which has been done."

Reece said that during the past decade and a half the United States "has strayed far away from the principles enunciated by Lincoln, and far away from the principles under which this nation has attained a position of power and a state of prosperity unequalled elsewhere."

"We have seen the growth in Washington," he added, "of an irresponsible and confused bureaucracy, many members of which seem to be intent upon suppressing, or at least disregarding, the basic rights of our citizens.

"More recently, we are beginning to uncover evidence that, in some parts at least, this bureaucracy was corrupt, as well as inefficient and extravagant. That need not surprise us. Corruption is the inevitable accompaniment of irresponsible power."

The GOP chairman said millions of American citizens are denied the right to vote in southern states and continued:

"I am sure the citizens of Chicago are not unaware of the fact that this intolerant and powerful group in the South has been one of the most powerful allies of the political machine which for many years past has mis-governed and looted this city.

"I feel quite confident that if Abraham Lincoln were alive today, and if he were in Chicago, he would denounce this unholy alliance and call upon the people of this great city to complete the job which was started last November by breaking the power of this machine forever. You citizens of Chicago have a great opportunity to do just that in the municipal election to be held this year."

Allegany County Is Exempted From Bill Allowing Woman Jury

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Feb. 11 (AP)—Bounced about in parliamentary maneuvering, the Woman's Jury Bill—always proposed but never passed—moved today to final passage stage in the Senate, but not before 10 counties were exempted from its provisions.

The Senate went through four roll call votes before the bill went to the printers to be readied for a final vote.

Senator George (D-Queen Anne's) led the assault on the measure with a motion to table it. This was defeated by a 16 to 13 vote.

Then the Senate adopted the Judiciary Committee's favorable report by a similar count, and Senator Kimble, Republican floor leader, offered an amendment to exempt Allegany, Garrett, Carroll and Washington counties from provisions of the bill. It won 15 to 14.

Senator T. F. Johnson (D-Worcester) sought to have the bill made a special order of business for tomorrow, but later he said he would be satisfied if Senate President Byrnes granted ten minutes delay in which amendments might be prepared.

Byrnes granted the time and Johnson came up with the names of six more counties which desired exemption — Queen Anne's, Talbot, Worcester, Howard, St. Mary's and Kent. The adopting vote was 19-10.

Senator Bolton (D-Baltimore County, chairman of the Judiciary Committee, told his colleagues he believed they had had sufficient time to offer amendments while his group considered the bill.

He added, however, that the attorney general advised him the measure would be constitutional if certain counties were exempted.

On the other hand, President Byrnes, in voting no on the amended bill, said that in his opinion it was unconstitutional.

The House, meanwhile, held its longest session to date—more than two hours with much of the time spent in beating down an attempt to amend from the floor a bill providing optional closing of banks on Saturday.

Whether the woman's jury bill would be constitutional at all was a point which Senator Della (D-Balto sixth) said he would raise when it came up for final passage. He said a constitutional amendment might be necessary.

Dr. Horace E. Flack, director of the Bureau of Legislative reference, agreed that Della's point might be well taken.

The Fifth article of the declaration of rights in the constitution guarantees that Marylanders are "entitled to the common law of England and the trial by jury x x x."

The Common Law of England at the time provided for male juries only.

Otherwise, it was a fairly big day in the Senate with 11 more bills introduced and 19 passed.

Churchill's Daughter Weds

LONDON, Feb. 11 (AP) — Winston Churchill's youngest daughter was married today to Capt. Christopher Soames of the Coldstream Guards, in a ceremony attended by 800 government, diplomatic and society leaders.

Waxed paper is merely a thin sheet of paper which has been treated with purified parrafin, a wax similar to that used in preserving jelly. To make it, rolls of paper are fed over rollers into tanks of hot liquid parrafin. Then the paper goes through a squeezing process similar to that of a washing machine wringer, and passes into cold water bath which sets the wax.

Husband Is Held For Questioning In Wife's Death

Denies Knowledge Of Lipstick Killing

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 11. (AP)—Police technicians today took over investigation of the brutal killing, second of its kind here in less than a month, of Mrs. Jeanne French, 40, whose lipstick-initialed, trampled and beaten body was found in a field yesterday.

Her estranged husband, Frank F. French, 47, aircraft plant worker and veteran Marine, was booked on suspicion of murder. He stoutly denied the crime, telling reporters in the presence of police officers.

"Before me and my God I did not harm my wife; I didn't lay a hand on her."

Detective Lieut. Gene Bechtel of the Homicide Division said "his story stands up very well."

Police crime laboratory experts took plaster casts of heel prints, apparently from a man's shoe, found on the semi-nude body of Mrs. French. She was a onetime bit actress, an aviatrix in the 30's and a former nurse.

They hunted for fingerprints on her purse, a partly filled wine bottle, two brown shoes and articles of clothing near the body. They examined Mrs. French's roadster, located in Santa Monica.

Capt. Jack Donahoe, chief of the Homicide Division, said it appeared the killer "got his ideas from the Dahlia case"—the unsolved slaying of Elizabeth Short, 22 year old waitress known to her friends as the "Black Dahlia," whose nude bisected body was found January 15 in a lot about seven miles from where Mrs. French's body lay.

French and his wife, separated since February 2 when he was arrested on a wife-beating charge which Mrs. French dropped the next day, were married two years ago in Jacksonville, N. C.

Columbia Gas Company Seeks To Lay Pipes

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11 (AP)—The Federal Power Commission announced today the Columbia Gas and Electric Corporations' Charleston, W. Va., and Pittsburgh, Pa., groups had asked permission to construct additional natural gas facilities costing $25,492,040.

Announcement also was made that United Fuel Gas Company, and Ohio Fuel Gas Company, also subsidiaries of Columbia, had applied to build a 100-mile 20-inch gas transmission line from the Tennessee Gas and Transmission Company line near Ceredo, W. Va., to Ohio Fuel's Crawford Station in Fairfield County, Ohio, at a cost of $4,398,620.

The Charleston and Pittsburgh groups said greater pipeline delivery capacity was needed to meet demand in markets served by the Columbia Companies, including the Washington Gas Light Company, the Manufacturers Light and Heat Company and the Home Gas Company.

Plans submitted include these construction projects:

By Atlantic Seaboard Corporation and Virginia Gas Transmission Corp., members of the Charleston group, a 268-mile 24-inch pipeline from Cobb, W. Va., to the two companies main line near Rockville, Md.

By the Manufacturers Light and Heat and the Home Gas Companies, a 130-mile, 14-inch line from Manufacturers' Main line at Coatesville, Pa., to Port Jervis, N. Y.

Greek Guerillas Kill 25, Wound 50

ATHENS, Feb. 11 (AP) — Heavily-armed Leftist Guerillas, striking at a Greek village 10 miles from the Yugoslav border, killed 25 inhabitants, wounded 50 and seized 10, a press dispatch from Salonika said tonight.

The Leftists struck at the village of Constania, north of Mount Paikon, the correspondent of the Athens newspaper Embros said.

Mortars were used by the attacking force. The wife of Stavros Euthimiades, a Populist Party member of Parliament, was among the 10 persons seized, the Dispatch said.

The attack was made while a United Nations Commission was in Greece investigating Balkan disturbances. The Greek government has charged that Yugoslavia, Albania and Bulgaria have given aid and shelter to Leftists making raids on Greek soil.

Communists Slay 200 In Bold Raid

PEIPING, Feb. 11—(AP)—Government military leaders moved to bolster the defenses of Peiping and environs today after 3,000 Chinese Communists in a bold raid sacked and burned parts of Tunghsien, 13 miles east.

Military leaders met at Chiang Kai-Shek's Peiping headquarters while the smoke still rose from a dozen Tunghsien buildings put to the torch before the raiders withdrew after several hours of bloody occupation yesterday.

Chinese newspapers reported 200 persons slain in the brief but furious onslaught in which the main attacking force broke through the east gate while others used ladders to scale Tunghsien's walls.

quently with his father, a New York admiralty lawyer who resides on Park Avenue.

The older Loomis objected strenuously as the prosecutor told the court the state would prove the conspiracy for world domination. He argued that the statements were designed solely to "flame passion" but his objection was overruled.

Andrews told the jury that Burke and Loomis with their "program of hate and violence" hoped to establish domination of "white gentiles."

"Sections Were Zoned"

Andrews said the Columbians "zoned certain sections of Atlanta" with members in charge to prevent negroes from "hanging around or loitering in white neighborhoods." He said negroes violating their order would be killed and they even "planned to dynamite the city auditorium" and the home of Editor Ralph McGill of the Atlanta Constitution who had been critical of their activities.

Early witnesses testified that Hines was attacked by four members of the organization as he walked down a street. They added that police arrived after the negro had been loaded into an automobile and took charge.

Andrews told the jury Loomis, who did not participate, ordered the Columbians to patrol the area.

K. C. Hogate Dies

PALM SPRINGS, Calif., Feb. 11 (AP) — Kenneth C. Hogate, 49, one of the nation's leading publishers and distributors of financial news, died today in a hospital here. He was chairman of the board of Dow-Jones and Company, publishers of the Wall Street Journal.

The 12,865,518 Negroes in the United States at the last census furnished 45.8 per cent of the domestic service, 26 per cent of sawmill and planing mills workers, 24.2 of tobacco factory workers, 20.2 per cent of hotel and lodging place workers.

From 1942 through 1945, state governments in the United States collected $2,272,000,000 in truck taxes, which was more than the states spent on highway construction, maintenance and administration in the same period.

800 Fight Flash Fire That Wipes Out Part Of Town

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Ark., Feb. 11 (AP)—Eight hundred men and boys joined bucket brigades in this Northern Arkansas County seat town of 1,500 today to halt a flash fire which wiped out a quarter of the business district before it was brought under control.

No one was reported injured.

With water only from wells and cisterns to fight the spreading blaze—a hard freeze two nights ago had burst the town's water pipes—the community's small fire department and volunteer firemen battled for more than two hours to save the rest of the business section and surrounding residences.

No immediate estimate of the damage was available, but 11 businesses were destroyed and a number of others weer damaged.

An explosion occurred when Henry Sutton lit an oil burner in his barber shop at 1:30 p. m.

"After the explosion, the fire spread through the block before most of us realized it," related Harry Dale, editor of the weekly Mountain View Herald and one of the fire fighters he estimated at 800.

"There wasn't much wind, but the flames spread rapidly because we had no powered water to fight them—only water buckets and sand bags."

The same section destroyed today was wrecked by fire August 22, 1936.

Congress Should Be Most Cautious On Rent Problem

On the ground that landlords now are practically the only people subject to price ceilings, it would be easy to assume an arbitrary attitude toward the rent control problem, currently a poser in Congress, and contend that these ceilings should be removed entirely. After all, as the argument logically goes, expenses for landlords have risen in about the same proportions as costs to everyone else. Or, a good position can be maintained in behalf of a flat increase for all rentals—10 to 15 percent across the board.

It would be equally easy to make out a case for the maintenance of tight ceilings on all rentals, with the possible exception of what the Senators call "hardship" cases. OPA took notice of some of these cases last year and granted rent increases. The job is to attack the problem, fairly and squarely, in the interest of the general economy. The landlord is entitled to his day in court. Likewise the tenant.

By taking individual cases, good arguments can be made out on both sides. Many tenants are bad news. Whatever profits a landlord may expect from his ownership often are lost because the tenant has abused the property. Some landlords are disagreeable, penny-pinching, out to exploit the property regardless of rules, regulations and ethics. But what about the general welfare?

The outstanding shortage, right now in this country, is the housing shortage. Thousands of families still are holed up in in-the-wall compartments. Thousands are sharing cramped quarters with in-laws, friends and even strangers. Housing is a basic necessity. Its effects on the warp and woof of the national character is tremendous. In importance, it is on the same level with food, medicine and family life.

So whatever Congress does should be done with the utmost care, with the plight of the landlord and the tenant thoughtfully considered, but the risks to the national economy—the welfare of all—even more diligently weighed.

An across-the-board increase would provide relief—perhaps inadequate in some cases—for some landlords who were caught with their ceilings too low. It also would simply cushion the velvet for others—those, for instance, who started under rent control with better-than-average rentals and provided only the barest maintenance throughout the control period.

Congress had better proceed with this problem in an atmosphere of extreme caution, with the plight of the many tenants constantly in mind. The effect of a general increase might provide the pin that punctured the bubble.

Soviet Government Has Broken Another Promise

Russia has broken another promise. At a meeting of the Council of Foreign Ministers in New York last month, Mr. Molotov asked that its next session be held in Moscow. Former Secretary of State Byrnes, before accepting the invitation, asked whether assurances could be given that the same procedure for reporting the work of the Council would be followed as had obtained in Paris and New York.

His inquiry was pertinent, because freedom of the press is not recognized in Russia and few foreign correspondents are allowed to visit that country. But Mr. Molotov, in his reply, said: "The Soviet Government will be happy to see the ministers in Moscow and everything will be done, in spite of the housing difficulties, to accommodate the correspondents and to create the most favorable conditions for their work. They will be able to report from Moscow on the proceedings of the conference as they reported in Paris and New York." On that basis, Mr. Byrnes voted to accept the Russian invitation.

Seventy-three American correspondents have applied for Russian visas for the meeting to begin March 10. The ship for the first leg of the trip leaves New York February 14, and to date not one of the 73 applications has been approved. Now Moscow advises that because of a "housing shortage," only twenty American correspondents can be accommodated—and that includes photographers, newsreels men, radio broadcasters and magazine writers as well as reporters for press associations and newspapers.

By contrast, 2600 press and radio representatives were registered at San Francisco for the first meeting of the United Nations. And the meeting at Moscow is the most important international assembly since the Versailles Conference in 1919. No limitations as to the numbers were imposed at Paris, New York or London. Those cities had housing problems too. But the press is welcome in France, England and the United States. It isn't welcome in Russia, and there is no point in evading the issue.

That the Kremlin wants to discuss the German and Austrian settlements under iron-curtain conditions, if it can, is all too obvious. The housing shortage probably is only the first step toward that end. Secretary Marshall will make a serious mistake, in our opinion, if he permits the Muscovites to get away this initial breach of faith. This meeting was not forced on the Russians. They asked for it. If they are not equal to its obligations, the site can be changed.

The Soviets should be made to understand that, when they give us their word on something, we expect them to keep it. This is a good place to begin driving that home to them.

Proof Of One World

Recent weather conditions are further proof, if any more proof were needed, that we're all citizens of a single world. The weather hasn't the slightest respect for the national boundaries set up by man.

Winds warmed in the vicinity of Bikini gave Montana and Wyoming mild weather the other day, while at the same time cold air from Alaska chilled Cumberland and the eastern part of the United States. Even Florida didn't escape the effects of the Arctic blast.

Of course, this has always been so, although man didn't fully understand the worldwide character of weather until modern times. Swift communication has given him more information on it. This swift communication also is accompanied by danger. Aircraft, for example, can travel about the world almost as freely as the winds.

If man takes the lesson to heart, and learns to get along with neighbors who now are so close, he will be better off than ever before. If he doesn't, the machines that ride the winds may destroy him.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

THE HISTORY OF DIABETES

MOST of us are familiar with the names of Banting and Best as the discovers of insulin. No one knows how many lives the drug has saved and victims of diabetes and their families thruout the world are forever grateful. But vital advances like this rarely "just happen" and are usually the culmination of several centuries of research. Who are the unsung heroes in the study of the disease?

Approximately 1900 years ago Aretaeus of Cappadocia (30-90 A. D.) coined the word "diabetes" (meaning "syphon") to describe a wasting condition in which the patient passed tremendous amounts of urine. He wrote of rapid weight loss, unquenchable thirst, and the fact that the ailment seemed to follow an acute infection. Galen appeared on the scene 100 years later and referred to "a weakness of the kidneys which cannot hold back water."

But ancient Chinese, Japanese, Arabian and Hindu medical men were also making observations on the disturbance and, if anything, understood it somewhat better than their Greek and Roman colleagues. One Hindu physician called the abnormality "madhumeha," which means "honey urine." In other words, he realized that the secretion contained sugar. Avicenna (980-1027 A. D.), the great Arab doctor, went into such great detail that little has been added since his time. He recorded the symptoms, knew that sugar could be found in the urine, stated that diabetes should be suspected in anyone suffering from boils or gangrene, and that it was not uncommon in victims of tuberculosis.

So far, considerable progress had been made even tho the origin was unknown nor were recommendations on treatment offered. Willis (1621-1675) believed that diabetes was a blood disease and in 1776, Dobson demonstrated that the urine of diabetics contained sugar that ferments and that the blood was sweet. The turning point came with Bouchardat (1806-1886). He developed tests for studying the urinary excretions and suggested alterations in the diet such as less carbohydrates and more fats. His patients were encouraged to go on periodic fasts after he noticed that during the siege of Paris, when food was scarce, they did better than at any other time. Claude Bernard analyzed the pancreatic juice and Mering and Minkowski showed that removal of the pancreas of animals caused hyperglycemia.

This was the state of affairs at the turn of the 20th century. Insulin had not yet been produced but physicians were beginning to suspect the pancreas as the seat of the illness. The site was further narrowed down to certain types of cells within this organ, the islands of Langerhans, and the great race to make the extract started.

Zuelzer, Dohrn, and Marxer came closest without actually succeeding. Their preparation resembled insulin, but was so impure that after every injection a reaction occurred. Meanwhile, Massaglia in 1912 attempted to treat the malady with a pancreatic extract. With the appearance of insulin, we were supplied with a safe product that is successful when used intelligently. Physicians all over the world were galvanized into action and the disease was lifted immediately from the "hopeless" class.

RESTLESSNESS

T. R. writes: What causes fidgety legs in a grownup?

REPLY

A restless mind. Sometimes the circulation is at fault.

SPIDER VEINS

L. P. writes: I have small broken blood vessels on the sides of the nose and over the cheekbones. I am not a toper, so don't advise me to give up drinking. Can anything be done about these nuisances?

REPLY

The disorder may appear following injury such as insect bites or squeezing blackheads and is often associated with skin disorders such as acne rosacea. It is more common in women and children with delicate skin and sometimes appears subsequent to prolonged exposure to wind or sun. Occasionally it "runs in families" and now and then no cause can be found. Skin specialists treat the condition by radiation, the injection of sclerosing agents, or electrolysis.

It Says Here

By BOB HOPE

I was master of ceremonies Saturday at the local celebration of the 37th anniversary of the Boy Scouts of America.

At first I told them I couldn't get away from the studio and they should give a merit badge for diplomacy to the scout who issued the invitation. He said, "you have to do it—where else can we get a comedian just exactly the same age as our organization?"

So, naturally, I went. You can't blame me. To an actor a one year error in his age is important.

But am I glad I went. It was an extremely interesting experience. They made me a member of one of their patrols.

Readers who expect fourteen wolf pack jokes to follow had just as well turn the page and get back to the real funny stuff. Try under "houses for sale."

No, sir, they inducted me into the beaver patrol, but I earned the honor—all I had to do was race three beavers in a dam building contest. Of course I won, nose down.

The whole experience made me regret that I wasn't a boy scout, even though it wasn't my fault I didn't make it. Every time I tried to help an old lady across the street she ran for the police, yelling "pick pocket."

I finaly got one across safely, and even then the scout master flunked me. How did I know I wasn't supposed to use the fireman's carry.

YES, WHY?

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Gen. Marshall Makes Negro Officer Feel At Home In White House; Truman's Ex-Naval Aide Works For Installment Buying; Haggling Over Philippines.

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11—During the reconstruction days following Abraham Lincoln's proclamation of emancipation, negroes frequently were invited to the White House.

After this there was a lapse, and the question of White House entertainment seldom arose until the days of Herbert Hoover, who invited Oscar De Priest, colored GOP congressman from Chicago, to tea. This caused a tremendous furor, and, significantly, it was largely congressmen from the party of Abraham Lincoln who made the most comment.

Since then, Mrs. Roosevelt frequently invited colored guests to the White House and the Trumans have done the same. No longer is there public comment, but it remains a fact that a lone Negro guest frequently looks conspicuous and ill-at-ease.

Such was the case when President and Mrs. Truman entertained for the armed forces last week.

As the President and the First Lady made their grand entry down the main staircase, a large assemblage of three and four-star Generals plus the highest Admirals in the Navy stood on either side. General Eisenhower, the chief of staff, and Admiral Nimitz, the highest ranking officer of the Navy, were in the group, together with every other General and Admiral stationed in Washington. It was the greatest conglomeration of silver stars and gold braid Washington has seen in decades.

On the fringe of this glittering constellation stood Brig. Gen. B. O. Davis—the one Negro general in the United States Army.

Seeing him, the new secretary of state, General George Marshall, left the presidential party, ignored General Eisenhower, passed by Admiral Nimitz, paid no attention to all the Admirals and three-and-four-star generals, while he shook hands with General Davis.

Many others in the room would have given their eyeteeth to have been singled out by the most colorful and famous member of the Truman cabinet. They watched as Marshall greeted Davis.

After Marshall broke the ice, various others, led by Congressman Paul Kilday of San Antonio, Texas, stepped forward to shake hands with the negro general.

Note—Col. B. O. Davis, Jr., son of General Davis, is an aviator, now commanding Lockbourne Army Air Base, Lockbourne, Ohio.

Installment-Buying Vardaman

Commodore Jake Vardaman, President Truman's ex-naval aide, now elevated to a lush $14,000 job on the Federal Reserve Board, is waging a hot campaign—indirectly aimed at Federal Reserve Chairman Marriner Eccles—to lift all credit controls on installment buying.

Vardaman, who once euchred himself into the position of getting 10 per cent extra seagoing pay while attached to the White House and comfortably sleeping on dry land, and who ordered Navy enlisted men to paint and repair his home, is a minority of one on the reserve Board. Other members feel that inflation is by no means over and some control over installment buying must be retained.

At present there is no restriction on goods purchased for less than $50. But credit controls still apply to installment purchases, of autos, furniture, floor coverings, and major household appliances, such as refrigerators and washing machines.

Instalment purchasers of such goods costing up to $2,000 must pay a third down and the remainder within 12 months, except for floor coverings and furniture which have a 15-month maturity.

Aside from Vardaman, other members of the federal reserve board feel that these controls against inflation should remain in effect unless Congress acts to the contrary.

Gov. Warren's Hurdle

Gov. Earl Warren of California will be forced to take or refuse a significant political hurdle when he testifies before the House appropriations subcommittee of the Interior Department tomorrow.

Gov. Warren will be cross-examined on the dynamite-laden question of restricting to 160 acres the land any one person can own of a government reclamation area. All the big land interests of California are opposing this restriction. They want to be able to hold more than 160 acres of government-reclaimed land.

On the other hand, thousands of war veterans anxious to obtain small farms of their own want the 160-acre limit retained. The other day, 15,000 people applied for 84 new farmsteads in the Klamath Valley, Ore. Finally 3,000 veterans were sifted out of the 15,000 applicants, and the competition was so keen that, in the end, lots were drawn to see who would be the lucky 84.

The Interior Department contends that when the U. S. Government pays the cost of reclaiming land, the amount held by any one person should be limited. Otherwise, the land, improved at the expence of all the taxpayers, would all fall into the hands of big ranchers.

Note—What will make Gov. Warren's decision difficult is the fact that his close friend, Senator Knowland, whom he appointed to the Senate, has introduced a bill abolishing the 160-acre limitation.

Haggling Over Philippines

With Congress wrestling over a new budget involving billions, President Truman had to devote almost an hour the other day straightening out a relatively "chicken-feed" transaction of $75,000,000. Though small in the amount of cash involved, however, the transaction was all-important to the Philippine islands.

For seven months a $75,000,000 loan authorized by Congress to help rehabilitate the war-torn Philippines has been held up, due to the tight-fisted banker tactics of the RFC and the national advisory council, which must approve all foreign loans.

The national advisory council, headed by Secretary of the Treasury John Snyder, had refused to clear the loan without a guarantee that it would be fully repaid in three and a half years. However, Democratic Congressman Jasper Bell of Missouri, sponsor of the loan bill, argued that it would be "physically impossible" for the islands to repay on such short maturity terms.

Philippin Ambasador Joaquin Elizalde reported that while his government could get by with an initial extension of $25,000,000, chiefly for the upkeep of schools and hospitals, the Philippines would need five years or more to repay the full $75,000,000.

Secretary Snyder and Will Clayton of the state department finally thawed out during the argument and, with some coaxing by the President, agreed to extend the repayment period to five years. They also agreed that, if the Philippines can't pay in that time, the loan will be renegotiated.

Bureaucrats Held "Troublesome Pests Of Hour" By Congressman

By SAMUEL B. PETTENGILL

Congressman Lemke of North Dakota got out his old snickersee and went after the "bureaucratic pencil pushers" the other day. He said: "By snarling the taxpayer in a maze of red tape, they extort more taxes than the taxpayer should rightfully pay . . . Every new complicated scheme brings out a batch of so-called tax experts who thrive on the public's bewilderment . . . The whole system has become a racket."

We will give up the earnings of three months in 1947 to pay for the rent and groceries of the bureaucrats — these "troublesome insects of the hour," as Edmund Burke would call them. Isn't three months enough? Ah, no. "The lucrative business of mystery" must be paid for also. We must spend hundreds of millions more hiring experts, soothsayers, necromancers, and examiners of entrails to make a stab at what these endless webs of words might mean. And then, in utter weariness, we throw up our hands, paying more, probably, than we should, rather than go through the agony of explaining what we thought they meant, perhaps three or five years from now.

Would Pension Lemke

Lemke, go to it! If you can get for America one single night of sleep unbroken by the endless zingzing of these insects, we will pension you for life!

But, Congressman, you'd better start on your own colleagues! A United States Senator the other day spoke with harsh sarcasm of the "primrose path of tax reduction!" Ye Gods, has it come to pass that taxpayers have no right even to gripe?

Big Government, the curse of every civilization since time began, is rolling along. Do you remember the scorn poured out on the "Pharisees" and "Publicans," or tax gatherers, in Bible days? How a decree went out from Caesar Augustus that "all the world should be taxed"?

The American people have lucid intervals at times when they see through the big new racket and lifetime career of making jobs at the public trough. But one has to admit that these insects may finally break the spirit of our people, as they are doing in England, until everyone is too tired, too beaten, too apathetic to fight any longer against the bugs that suck their blood.

For myself, I claim that an honest-to-God humanitarian would exert himself, to make it possible for wage earners, farmers and school ma'ams to keep what they earn rather than tax this and deduct that until there is not enough left in the pay envelope to build a nest egg, or a house.

Selfishness vs. Unselfishness

Just why it is selfish for you to keep and spend your own money, and unselfish and noble for some bureaucrat to spend it, is a mystery too deep for me.

But until, and unless, you taxpayers get as fighting mad at these "locusts who eat our substance" as our Revolutionary forefathers did in 1776, we may win an occasional election, but lose the war.

New Dealers are worming their way into the Republican Party. They are all the more dangerous because it takes still more of our time and strength to pull their disguises off.

All over the world, government is becoming the master of men—all under the beautiful slogans of "humanitarianism" and the "social gospel."

The individual means nothing to these professional Pecksniffs. They "would make the world so perfect that no one need be good." They would cure the selfishness of the individual by substituting the greed of the group.

Meantime, crime, divorce and juvenile delinquency march on—waving banners!

Congress Undecided On Issue Of Presidential Succession

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11—Congress is undecided as to what kind of law to write to take care of presidential succession. President Truman, with commendable frankness, has spoken of the delicacy of the situation that exists and has recommended that a law be passed permitting the Speaker of the House of Representatives to succeed the President whenever there is no vice president.

Mr. Truman said that the presidency should go to some person elected by the people and not to a cabinet officer as provided under present law. But, it is contended, the speaker, while elected by the people from his district, has in no way been selected by any people's process in any national method of selection.

This brings up a simple solution which it seems strange that Congress has never adopted but which is the obvious answer. The Constitution itself provides for a method of selecting a President when there is no clear majority in the electoral college for any of the candidates for president or vice president who have been voted for in a national election. It was foreseen by the founding fathers that there might be a three-corner or even a four-one ballot as a unit for a candidate, of any group or faction or bloc would receive a majority.

What Constitution Provides

So the Constitution says that soon after such an election deadlock, the House of Representatives shall go into session constituting itself as an electoral college. Each state delegation then is required to poll its members and each state votes one ballot as a uit for a candidate. In case of a tie, a half vote is cast. This method was used in the famous Tilden-Hayes contest in 1877. It gives the people's legislature a chance to pick a president and for public opinion to function, and this is in consonance with the systems that have prevailed in parliamentary government for many centuries.

But, it will be asked, what provision can be made for the handling of the executive power at the White House until the House of Representatives does act? It took several weeks, for example, before the House picked Rutherford Hayes in 1877. The answer is merely to amend the present law so that the President Pro Tempore of the Senate shall hold the office of President of the United States temporarily—that is, until such time as the House of Representatives shall have chosen a President.

The Congress may by law provide for presidential succession and, at present by a law passed in 1886, the secretary of state is designated to succeed when there is no vice president. From 1792 to 1886 it was the president of the Senate and then the speaker of the House who were to be in line of succession. Since Congress was given full power by the Constitution to determine the method of succession and to change that method, whenever it felt change was desirable, there is no constitutional barrier to the selection of an "acting" president who shall serve merely until the House of Representatives makes a selection. It would be a step incidental to the selection process.

Held Mistake to Elect Speaker

It would be a mistake to permit the speaker of the House to become "acting" president because his services will be needed in presiding over the House while a president is being selected to serve out the unexpired term of the chief executive who will have died or become disabled. The presiding officer of the Senate would be a neutral trustee in such circumstances.

Incidentally, in the twentieth amendment—usually called the "lame duck" amendment—provision is made that "Congress may by law provide for the case wherein neither a president-elect nor a vice-president-elect shall have qualified" at the time fixed for the beginning of the presidential term.

This shows clearly that is has been intended to give Congress the right to choose a president when unusual circumstances arise.

It has been suggested that the House may be Republican at the time when a Democratic president and vice president have died or become disabled and that the executive power would pass to the opposite party. This is true, but if the people have changed control of the House, it would mean that an election by the House would be in tune with the national will at the time the vacancy was being filled, and this in line with the trend of representative government anyway—toward methods of choosing a president by the national legislature in accordance with the people's will at the time the vacancy occurs.

I'd like to add my two cents to Winchell's attack on bum dialecticians.

I want to discuss it, not only as a man who hates intolerance, but as a showman who loves good entertainment.

Let me start with the flat statement that, without exception, the fellows peddling race ridicule are inferior comedians and midget talents. No top performer on Broadway today is telling the gag about Rastus and the chickens. No real star in the movies reaches for the easy laugh about the moth in Sandy MacPherson's wallet. No big radio funnyman is telling the one about the Jew who burned down his shop for the insurance. These corny cracks come only from the mouths of second-raters.

Billy Rose

These jokes not only make me mad—they make me sleepy. I laughed at them twenty years ago. I yawned at them ten years ago. I winced at them five years ago. Today they nauseate me. Their punch lines were telegraphed long before Morse.

You don't hear them from the Bobby Clarks, Danny Kayes, Ethel Mermans and Bea Lillies. The race crack is the crutch of the stumble bum who is too scared, too stupid or too stingy to lay it on the line for good material. You hear it from the vaudevillian who helped kill vaudeville, the Monster of Ceremonies at the Flyby Night Club, and the radio miss-out who owes Hooper ten points. I don't know whether Bob Hope, Edgar Bergen and Fibber McGee are socially conscious. I do know they're allergic to obscurity.

I'm not suggesting Fred Allen get rid of Mrs. Nussbaum, or Jack Benny dispense with Rochester and Kitzel. I am suggesting these two highly talented gentlemen make sure those yocks aren't knocks.

* * *

Now, don't start telling me about the dear, dead days of Potash and Perlmuttar, and Lew Dockstader. In today's show business, they wouldn't gross enough to pay off the stagehands.

A misguided movie company recently remade "Abie's Irish Rose." After looking at the grosses, they're thinking of cutting up the film for mandolin picks.

I've made a lot of coffee and zvelback out of show business, and I think I know what I'm talking about when I level on the broken-syllable boys. Before the war, most of them didn't work two weeks in fifty. During the war, these brassy, not-so-classy comics got their chance. Two hundred dollar talents got up to two thousand a week. It's my guess two hundred will look pretty good to some of them two years from today.

If I were managing one of these alleged comedians, I would first wash out his mouth with the Bill of Rights. I would tell him that if a gag is truly funny, it doesn't matter whether it's told about a Frenchman or a Choctaw Indian. I'd point out that the top attractions in the cabaret business—Olsen and Johnson, Milton Berle, Joe E. Lewis and Jimmy Durante—have gotten rich without resorting to the Pat-Sandy-Moe routines. I would read him the long list of entertainment greats who never settled for the laugh that hurts.

* * *

I would prove to him that the fabulous moneygetters, from Chaplin to Abbott and Costello, depend on jokes rather than jeers.

I would make him hang the stale-joke formulas on his dressing-room wall, and warn him to steer clear of them if he wants his name in lights. Here are a few:

Negroes carry razors, get scared in graveyards and rob hen coops. ("Nossuh, Boss, nobuddy heah but use chickens.")

Englishmen have no sense of humor, and their names are 'Erbert, 'Awkins and Halice.

Jews drive a hard bargain. ("Why'dja buy an all-day sucker at four in the afternoon?")

Irish get drunk and fight (". . . and that's why paving blocks are called Irish confetti.")

Greeks run restaurants. ("We got two kinds opple pie, opple and pineopple.")

Scotchmen are stingy. ("Thanks for savin' me bonny boy from drownin', but where's the lad's hat?")

* * *

And, since this column appears in several papers outside the U.S.A.—Americans are money-idolizing mugs who are browbeaten by their wives.

Get this straight. Nobody—Winchell included—objects to the use of dialect when it doesn't ridicule. Everybody who knows the score objects when it is used to point up stories which would delight Julius Streicher and Theodore Bilbo.

In my book, it's not only bad taste—it's bad box office.

Today's Talk

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

The Sense of Wonder

I hope that I shall never lose my abiding sense of wonder. If I do, then surely I shall awaken to the fact that I have a lost youth!

The same wonder what appeared to me as a boy remains wth me as a man. The night sky, the nourishing power of the sunlight, the rotation of the Seasons, the planting of seeds, and their rise from the good earth with their buds and blooms and intricate formation and coloring of leaves, always fill me with wonder. Every flower to me is a miracle. The brilliant feathering of many of our birds, especially of our tropic varieties, breeds wonder in our mind, the moment that we look upon them. The peacock has a right to be proud and vain over the inheritance of beauty that he owns. Even his gorgeous garment is a thing of wonder.

People who carry this sense of wonder about with them, all through their lives, never could be tempted into a pessimistic society. No wonder the Psalmist exclaimed as he looked into the heavens at night, "What is man?" In humility he looked with wonder upon the universe and then speculated upon the importance of mere man in such a creation.

We look, and meditate, as we view great planes now plying the sky, thousands of feet above the earth—a thing that scoffers once said was but an idle and foolish dream. We wonder about the human voice traveling across the oceans, through nothing but the air, and we wonder in like manner as we take our telephone and talk as intimately to our friends as though he were a few feet from us. We wonder about the songs of birds and the antics of animals at play. Wonder and delight are the companions of childhood, and those who retain them into their maturer years never really die old. They merely take up a new trek, initiated by their birth! Emphasizing immortality.

When we cease to wonder, we cease growth, becoming troublesome drones in a world of activity, enterprise and opportunity. It is this sense of wonder that inspires the inventor, the scientist, the geologist, and the astronomer. And it makes healthier, happier individuals of us all!

State Forestry Law Is Becoming Model In Nation

Conservation Plan Proving Profitable

In the nationwide campaign to preserve forests for permanent use and profit, Maryland is very much in the spotlight, William H. Johnson, district forester, commented yesterday. What has put her there, he declared, is the new forestry law enacted by the Legislature in 1943, which has attracted national attention, and which has served as a model for a number of states.

This act provides for timber cutting practices designed to secure sustained production of commercially valuable tree species on Maryland's 2,700,000 acres technically classified as woodland. The rules and regulations established by the Commission of State Forests and Parks under the terms of the law, Johnson emphasizes, are few in number and relatively simple. It is not too much to say, he asserts, that a good part of the country is alert to see how they work.

They can be worked out to the satisfaction of everyone concerned, Johnson believes, through co-operation on the part of timber owners, timber operators, and the Department of State Forests and Parks. Speaking for the Department, Johnson states:

"We think we know how a timber owner can dispose of his mature trees for the most money, and still retain a healthy young stand for future returns. We offer a timber marking service, free up to 25 acres, designed to accomplish this. We also think we know a little something about the problem that confronts sawmill operators, and we offer a separate service, entirely free, in this connection.

"The main fact is that the Department of State Forests and Parks has the facilities and is prepared to do its full part in making the forestry law an unqualified success. It urges timber owners and operators to call upon it for advice and assistence. Simply write the district forester, whose address is Court House, Cumberland, Md., or pay him a call. We need to show the rest of the country that Maryland can handle its forest problems with no outside help or complusion, say, from the Federal Government."

4-H Clubs See Films On Forestry Program

A program of education and entertainment has been worked out by representatives of the Department of State Forests and Parks for members of 4-H Clubs in this county, and Brooks Bodkin, county forester, has been showing films, giving demonstrations and lectures to a number of the clubs.

Last week, 4-H clubs at Pleasant Grove, Flintstone-Piney Plains and Union Grove were visited by Bodkin and the schedule for this week follows:

Wednesday; Eckhart - Winchester Road Club, Thursday and Rawlings, Friday.

Joseph Steger, assistant county farm agent in charge of County 4-H activity said there is wide interest in the program and it is proving highly beneficial to the boys as well as to the state and county, for the development and protection of forests and woodlands.

$143,127,000 Is Bid For "Inch" Pipe Lines

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11—(AP)—The government was offered nearly the fully original cost of the Big Inch and Little Inch pipe lines—a $143,127,000 cash bid by the Texas Eastern Transmission Company of Houston.

This offer from a company proposing to use the lines for natural gas movement topped six "valid" bids opened by War Assets Administration officials in their second effort to get a "fair" price for the Texas-to-New York tubes, built at a cost of $145,800,000. Five bids were ruled out.

House Sergeant-At-Arms Indicted For Fraud

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11—(AP)—A federal grand jury today indicted Kenneth Romney, sergeant-at-arms of the House for 15 years, on a charge of seeking to "cheat, swindle or defraud the government" to conceal a $143,863 shortage in his accounts.

Conviction on the three-count indictment would carry a maximum penalty of 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine on each count.

The shortage came to light early in January when Romney, who had been sergeant-at-arms since 1931, turned over the office to his Republican successor, William Russell.

Nurse And Race Figure Sentenced For Forgery

BALTIMORE, Feb. 11—(AP)—Judge Joseph Sherbow ruled that "infatuation—not fear" drove Bertha Mae Baker, 33-year-old nurse, who her attorney said, played a Trilby to a race-track figure, Svengali, to forge more than $37,000 in checks in her aged patient's name.

He sentenced Miss Baker to 18 months in the State Reformatory for Women. Her co-defendant, Alfred C. Verfaillie, 23, of Methuen Mass., was sentenced to four years in the State Reformatory for Males

Miss Baker had pleaded for probation on the grounds she was driven by fear of Verfaillie in forging 90 checks in the name of William J. Sellick, 85, of Greenwich, Conn., her patient at the Maryland General Hospital.

Old Bailey Court To Be In Movie

LONDON, (AP) — Alfred William Burt, whose everyday job is taking care of the great, gray criminal court building which the world knows as Old Bailey, is going to Hollywood to make a movie.

Perhaps not exactly make a movie, but to keep one straight in depicting the authentic British atmosphere, Burt said as he rushed about clearing his desk in preparation for sailing in the S.S. America.

Producer David O. Selznik wanted a replica of Old Bailey's No. 1 court room, where many a British murderer has heard the pronouncement of doom. To help Director Alfred Hitchock Burt has sent dozens of photographs and measured the space, now he will be technical advisor for the picture.

Gunsmith Course Is College Plan

TRINIDAD, Colo. — (AP) — A two-year course in gunsmith training, believed by school authorities to be the first of its kind in the nation, is to open late this month at Trinidad Junior College.

In announcing the new course, President Dwight C. Baird said the college had received inquiries and applications from 22 states. Many of these came from former service men whose interest in firearms had been awakened during the war and who wanted to make a life's work as gunsmiths.

The idea for the new course came from P. O. Ackley, nationally known gunsmith and operator of a Trinidad gunshop. He received many inquiries from men wanting to learn his trade and, not wishing to undertake the training of apprentices himself, he referred the applicants to the college.

James DeWitt Sloan Weds Josephine A. Bryant

Ceremony Performed In Kirkwood, Mo.

Miss Josephine Anne Bryant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Milton Conway, 2127 East 70th Street, Kansas City, Mo., became the bride of James DeWitt Sloan, son of former Judge and Mrs. D. Lindley Sloan, The Dingle, February 8.

The wedding ceremony was solemnized in the Kirkwood, Mo., home of Mr. and Mrs. L. Frederick Good, uncle and aunt of the bride, with the bride and bridegroom kneeling on a satin covered prie-Dieu, beneath the trellis of huckleberry greens and white snapdragons. Three tiers of lighted candles were arranged at either side. Rev. Charles Kean, rector of Grace Episcopal Church officiated at the ceremony.

Miss Marilyn Ford, Kansas City, was the maid of honor and the bride's only attendant. John M. Good, cousin of the bride, served as Mr. Sloan's best man and David Bryant and Ellis Bryant, brothers of the bride, were the ushers.

The traditional wedding marches and nuptial music were played by Mrs. Lora Krause, harpist.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her uncle, Herbert M. Bryant, was attired in a slate blue, wool dressmakers suit with which she wore a corsage of white and purple violets and pink rosebuds. Her maid of honor wore a gray wool suit and also had a corsage of violets and pink rosebuds.

Mrs. Conway wore a rose wool dress with a gardenia corsage and Mrs. Sloan chose a pale blue wool dress and gardenias for her son's wedding.

The bride's maternal grandfather, the late Maxwell Good, was a brother of Mrs. David W. Sloan, wife of Judge David W. Sloan. The bride is a graduate of Kansas City Junior College.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Mercersburg Academy, Mercersburg, Pa., and the University of Maryland, College Park. A veteran of four and one half years in the Army, he served with the anti aircraft in North Africa and Europe. Upon his return from their wedding trip, he will accept a position with Kelly-Springfield Tire Company.

Mrs. Good, hostess for the wedding reception honoring her niece and her bridal party, was attired in a rose colored wool dress, with which she wore a corsage of gardenias. The bridal motif was repeated in the white tulips decorating the refreshment table and the tiered wedding cake, adorned with a miniature bride and bridegroom.

Mr. Sloan and his bride left for a wedding trip to North Carolina. For traveling Mrs. Sloan chose a brown tailored suit. Upon their return they will reside in Cumberland.

They were given by Mrs. Ethel Bruce, Program chairman, assisted by Mrs. Hazel Neal and Miss Mary Apple.

It was pointed out that they were born in California, of parents of Spanish extraction, and began their career at an early age. He has a special interest in "Spanic" music and "gives a marvelous interpretation of the native music of South America." The South Americans appreciate the fact that he understands and can interpret their music more than any other person not a native.

Teresita, the speakers explained is especially credited for having an appreciation of the true meaning of the South American dances. She was so popular, personally, in Argentina, that secrets of the native ritual dances were revealed to her. Her especially noteworthy accomplishment is the "La Cueca" national dance of Chile. Two other notable dances, she will give here are the "Deer and the Wolf," and the "Dance of Old Men," which is a popular well known dance in South America, and usually done by three young men accompanied by one playing a native string instrument.

Speaking of her costumes, it was pointed out that they are elaborate and authentic reproductions of the South American ceremonial costumes. She designs her costumes herself, even to the colors, which have symbolic meanings to the people of Chile and Argentina. One which she will wear here next week weighs 25 pounds.

Petit Jury Will Resume Duties On Civil Trials

Members of the January petit jury will return to Circuit Court at 9:15 o'clock this morning to resume civil trials, according to Chief Judge William A. Huster.

Scheduled for today is a $25,000 damage suit against the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, by Charles A. Gloyd, a former maintenance-of-way employe, who seeks damages for the loss of his right eye, following a mishap while at work for the company.

Gloyd, represented by Edward J. Ryan and William L. Wilson, Jr., said he was engaged in pegging cross-ties October 11, 1945 near the Okonoko tower, in nearby West Virginia, when a piece of metal flew up and struck him in the eye. It was necessary to remove the eye eight days later in a local hospital, he asserted.

Gloyd, who charged that the company was negligent in furnishing him with defective tools and material, brought the action under the provisions of the Federal Employers' Liability Act, passed by Congress in 1908. The company is represented by William A. Gunter in the litigation.

Mrs. Gladys Tewell today filed suit for an absolute divorce from Ralph Tewell.

Mrs. Buena A. (Wells) Lucas, 22, of Frostburg, has been granted an absolute divorce from Eugene V. Lucas, a veteran, in a decree signed by Judge Huster.

Junior Association

Thomas B. Finan is chairman of the Jaycee Legislative Committee, and was assisted by Kenneth S. Hopwood, C. S. Catherman, Jr., Kenneth F. Gerard, C. William Gilchrist, Hugh D. Shires, Presley W. Mauk, A. Derr Golladay, James Wilkinson, Harry Kauffman and William L. Wilson, Jr., committee members. The report has been approved by the committee, the Jaycee Board of Directors and the general membership, and represents weeks of work, survey and study.

Home Rule

Under the proposals for Home Rule legislation the report states:

"The Cumberland Junior Association of Commerce has recommended home rule for Cumberland for over seven years. The obvious advantages of home rule in modernizing the State Legislature so it can confine its business to matters of statewide importance have been brought out. Nor is it necessary to recite again the well known fact that local autonomous governing bodies are more vitally concerned and better prepared to deal with Cumberland matters than some group from the Eastern Shore, for example.

"Our Legislative delegation has asked for qualifications and definitions of the term "Home Rule." It might be best to answer their specific questions and point out thoughts of this committee.

"First—We do not believe that home rule should mean the establishment of separate courts, a separate health system, a separate educational system for the City of Cumberland.

"Second—We feel that Cumberland should reserve the power to control its own City Police and Fire Departments.

"Third—We feel that there should be a limit on the bond indebtedness and on taxing powers for general purposes.

"Fourth — We do not mean to couple the counties with the cities for these home rule purposes at this time, although the possibility of county home rule should be studied. Chartered counties are provided for by Article 25A of the Maryland Code.

"Fifth—We believe that home rule should now be granted Cumberland on a basis of legislative enactment with the further proviso that a home rule constitutional amendment be presented so that this constitutional ch ge can be submitted to the voters in a referendum election, thereby giving Cumberland constitutional home rule."

Recreation Bond Issue

The committee recommends the adoption of legislatoin sponsored by the Mayor and City Council of Cumberland requesting the passage of $150,000 bond issue for recreational purposes.

It was further recommended in this phase of the report, that the Legislative delegation scrutinize the Juvenile Judiciary System, with the view to adoption of the "Youth Correction Authority Act," as the best application of a plan to save future generations of the state.

"The Youth Correction Authority Act," the report explains, recommended by the American Bar Association, American Law Institute and the Youth Justice Committee, stresses flexibility, treating children as individuals and emphasizing certain intangibles which will turn the juvenile delinquent into a friendlier member of society. Since the Act has a compulsory segregative system for juveniles, adequate facilities for juvenile homes will be incorporated into the broad aspects of the act."

Daylight Saving Time

The Jaycees went on record favoring Daylight Saving Time for Cumberland, and urged the delegation to enact legislation adopting state-wide daylight saving time or in the event state-wide legislation was unsuccessful, to pass a public local law enabling Cumberland to adopt daylight saving time.

The report mentions that Baltimore adopted daylight saving time for 1947 as part of its home rule legislation. Hagerstown had daylight saving time through 1946 and plans it for 1947. Pittsburgh, also has it each summer. A bill is now pending in Congress to make it possible in the District of Columbia, the report outlines.

Sherbow Report

The committee endorsed the Sherbow report for redistribution of state revenues. The committee believes however, the report leaves a gap on revenue to be raised.

"This committee suggests as an additional source of revenue, license fees and heavy taxation on gaming devices, games of chance and gaming. This group does not pay its way now. It should," the report states.

Education

In recommending increased pay for teachers, the report states, "the paramount issue of today would seem to be in the field of education. To phrase it as simply as possible, it is necessary that we have good teachers and enough of them. To meet this criterion, we must be able to offer our teachers provision for more than a so-called 'psychic reward'. They must be given salaries comparable to similar professions which have gone through analogous periods of training and which have been somewhat similarly equipped.

"It is suggested that a state-wide minimum base of $2,000 be granted with contemplated county grants to increase this $2,000 so that the $2,400 figure could be approximated.

The Jaycees recommend uniform schools, smaller classes, and a system of low tuition junior colleges. Expansion of the state educational system of colleges and other higher institutions is recommended to meet "the ever-growing demand for higher education of returning veterans."

Savage River Dam

The report includes a recommendation that the Allegany County Delegation in the General Assembly, sponsor the adoption of a resolution by the Assembly, requesting state representatives in the House and Senate of Congress, to direct their best efforts towards getting the necessary appropriation for the completion of Savage River Dam, and to have this appropriation included in the 1947 budget.

This would move the appropriation up a year, and would enable work on the dam to be completed sooner, as the committee understands that it is presently contemplated to include the federal appropriation for the project in the 1948 budget, it is explained. "It is estimated that one million, nine hundred thousand dollars is needed to complete this project, which terminated in 1942 at the direction of the WPB," the report explains.

Term Of Office

Under state-wide legislation, the local Jaycees urge that legislation be enacted to limit the term of office of governor to two consecutive terms for any one man.

The committee also recommends adoption of legislation which would provide more equitable representation than now exists in the General Assembly for densely populated counties, such as Allegany.

The committee recommends streamlining of certain laws to prevent crime and to aid in apprehension of criminals. It is cited there is a nation-wide increase in crime and Maryland is affected. The uniform pistol act, which would provide for the registration of all firearms, is endorsed.

The uniform arrest act, which would provide greater protection for police and other arresting officers is also recommended for passage by the Jaycee committee.

Veteran's Wife Seeks VFW Help In Finding Home

The local housing shortage constantly comes to light, and numerous persons as well as various organizations are frequently asked for assistance in helping some one find living quarters.

Commander Raymond Reynolds, of Henry Hart Post No. 1411, Veterans of Foreign Wars has received a letter from a local woman, appealing for help in finding a place to live, preferably a small apartment. Henry Hart Post has been unable to assist her thus far, so Commander Reynolds has turned to newspapers in the hope this woman's problem might be solved.

The letter states in part, "Maybe you will find this letter a little out of the ordinary and then you may not. I know that the problem I have before me is one that seems quite common to veterans and their families.

"My husband is a member of Henry Hart Post of the VFW. At the present time he is serving aboard the USS Tanner, but is due for discharge in two months. My problem is one of trying to find a place for us to live.

"I have been able to find a few apartments but the landladies would not rent any of them to me because of the fact that we are expecting a baby. Some would permit pets, but will not rent to families with children.

"Would you please help me? I am now living with my parents, and they are very kind to me. But when my husband returns we have no place to go due to the fact that our house is over-crowded now.

"I have never asked help from anyone, other than a member of my family before, but I am asking now.

"I desperately need two or three rooms, furnished or unfurnished. If there is any possible way would you please help me find them?"

Commander Reynolds said that any person who will rent this young couple a couple of rooms, should telephone him at his residence or at the VFW post headquarters.

Three Men Enlist For Army Service

Three men enlisted in the Army yesterday at the local recruiting station, according to Capt. Laurence M. Bairstow, officer in charge.

Sgt. Kenneth F. Mulledy, Romney, W. Va., a veteran of four years service, signed up for three years in the Air Forces.

Ronald Lee Uplinger, Bowman's Addition, enlisted for 18 months.

Herman E. Harold, 61 Willow Avenue, Keyser, W. Va., who served two years in the Navy, enlisted for three years in the engineers. He held the rating of machinist mate, first class in the Navy and was given a sergeancy in the Army.

The city of Charlotte, N. C., was named for Princess Charlotte, wife of George III.

Small Bungalow Destroyed By Fire

A small bungalow located near Oldtown was completely destroyed by fire that broke out yesterday morning while the occupants, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Collins, were away from home.

Baltimore Pike Volunteer Company and District 16, Oldtown Road Company responded to the fire in the structure owned by M. E. Dullabaun, 200 Humbird street, the loss was covered by insurance.

Mr. and Mrs. Collins found the house razed when they returned home yesterday morning after spending the night at the home of Mrs. Collins' parents in nearby Green Spring, W. Va.

Authorities were called to investigate reports a woman was missing after the fire destroyed the home but the reports were found to be without foundation. Officers were told a curtain apparently was ignited by an electric hot plate in the kitchen.

Sheriff Edward R. Muir, Deputy Edgar M. Lewis, County Investigator Terrence J. Boyle and State Trooper Walter L. Wilt investigated. Collins is employed as a warehouseman by Ralph Sell, local food distributor.

Local Man Joins Parachute Group

Hetzel K. Boden, 218 Oak Street, is enrolled in the two-year aeronautical engineering course at Northrop Aeronautical Institute in Southern California.

Boden was graduated from Fort Hill High School in 1941 and served in the Army Air Force three years. He spent nine months in pilot training. Prior to entering service he worked as a machinist at the B. & O. Railroad shops here.

At the completion of the Northrop Institute's course of study Boden will be graduated as a qualified aeronautical engineer and may then be employed by one of the major airlines or aircraft manufacturers. He will be schooled in practical aspects of engineering, using actual aeronautical projects, during the Institute's courses which are approved by the Veterans' Administration for ex-servicemen under the G. I. Bill of Rights.

Northrop Aeronautical Institute is a division of Northrop Aircraft, Inc. Boden is receiving his education in the school's new buildings adjacent to Northrop's production facilities where development work is constantly being conducted on advanced power-plant designs and revolutionary types of aircraft such as the famous Flying Wing.

The main address of the day was delivered by the Most Rev. Lawrence J. Shean, D.D., auxiliary bishop of Batlimore and Washington. He used as his topic, "Communism As a Menace—its Strength and Its Weakness." More than 200 persons attended the meeting.

Marine Corps League Seeks Beer Permit

Another application for a Class O club license to sell liquor, wine and beer to members has been filed in Circuit Court by Francis K. Finan Detachment, Marine Corps League, 120 South Mechanic Street.

The veterans, represented by Herman Don Bennett, first filed an application January 6, but it was rejected by the judges, due to the ownership of the building at that time, according to officers of the organization. Last week the veterans' group purchased the building, and yesterday filed another publication for a license.

Sherbow Plan Provides No County School Aid

Allegany County would receive no greater benefit with respect to state aid for public schools under Sherbow Commission proposals than it does under the present financial structure, according to the Maryland Public Expenditures Council, which has made a lengthy study of the report.

Only the four non-equalization counties, Harford, Montgomery, Baltimore and Cecil, along with Baltimore City, stand to benefit under the Sherbow system which Would change the method of state revenue allocation for school purposes, the council states.

Under the present system, state aid for Allegany County public schools amounts to $783,643.86, the report states, and under the Sherbow plan state aid is estimated to be exactly the same.

Advice To The Lovelorn

Man Who Wants Wife To Give Him Another Chance Explains View

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

Remember our friend "Repentant?" The man who wanted his wife to give him one more chance to show her that he was capable of being an understanding and reliable husband who could make her happy?

And remember the letter I published a few weeks ago from a woman who commented on "Repentant's" situation, denouncing him as a "miserable cad," and declaring that my own statement that I felt he deserved another chance "made her blood boil?" She also asked, in the course of her far from favorable analysis of his situation: "Would you want to bet that his wife spent many pleading hours with him predicting the eventual outcome of his continued behavior?"

Well, "Repentant," read this woman's letter, as printed in my column, and has written me again. He says that she "has already lost the bet she offers," because his wife never did spend hours pleading with him and predicting the outcome of his behavior. "I wish she had!" he says fervently.

Then he goes on to explain more fully his own view of the situation in which the remoseful and enlightened husband wants a chance to redeem himself, and the injured wife apparently prefers to sit by herself nursing her wounds—and her grudges—than to allow him an opportunity to try and heal them.

"On the theory that a situation like this is not, normally, entirely one-sided, either in cause or effect," he writes, "it is my contention that it is an infinitely greater display of strength of character to attempt solution of the problem, which may require some temporary sacrifice, rather than to run away from it and take refuge in the defeatist attitude that one is 'so full of resentment.' That attitude indicates, among other things, vindictiveness, which, by its very existence, is an unconscious admission of loss of faith in oneself, rather than in the other persons's ability and sincere desire to mend his ways."

In this I find myself in complete agreement with "Repentant," and also when he says: "It is my sincere belief that love, real love, is a pretty difficult thing to kill . . . Love can be, however, very effectively covered up, and may even be thought to be missing entirely, by the existence and magnitude of other emotions."

Referring specifically to his own problem, he then says: "The chance I ask for is merely the one to live and thereby prove the soundness of the above theories and beliefs in the sincere desire to redeem myself in my wife's eyes and to give my family the kind of home life and real happiness they so richly deserve. That this chance must be based on love on both sides, or a common love for our daughter, is axiomatic. I do not, in any case, doubt my wife's ability in that direction, once the desire is created, nor do I doubt my own, inasmuch as the attainment of that goal has become the most important thing in my life."

And at this point let me restate my own point of view in regard to this type of situation, in a little different language from before, perhaps, but with essentially the same meaning.

I do not believe in the wisdom of giving endless "chances" to a man who has nothing to offer a mistreated wife but wishful thinking; by which I mean a man who continually promises to turn over a new leaf, but whose promises are based on superficial and fleeting feelings, rather than on the real change of heart and viewpoint which alone could enable him to be truly different and better husband.

I do believe that a person who has through sincere soul-searching and honest self-analysis, gained sufficient insight into hisself and his problem to recognize and frankly admit where he was at fault, to see how he can correct these faults, and to have the determination and will power to put everything he has into correcting them, deserves, as I said before, another chance. It was because I felt that the original letter of our friend "Repentant" showed him to be of this latter type that I expressed the hope he would get the "other chance" he was seeking.

Veteran Is Sued For $25,000 In Circuit Court

Widow Seeks Damages For Husband's Death

A suit for $25,000 damages was filed in Circuit Court yesterday by attorneys for the widow and three minor children of a traffic accident, against Robert Odell Billmyer, who was in the Army until February 21, 1946. It is alleged, a car driven by Billmyer, struck and killed Robert William Whiteman, while the man was walking along the highway near McCoole, December 21, 1945.

Whiteman's widow, Mrs. Ethelinda Whiteman, and her children Sharon Elaine Whiteman, Linda Irene Whiteman, and Lois Ann Whiteman, are represented by Morgan C. Harris, attorney.

The attorney points out that under the Soldiers and Sailors Relief Act, the driver of thec ar could not be sued while he was in service, but the action is being brought within a year of the date of his discharge.

26 Farm Boys Enter 4-H Hog Raising Project

44 Swine Being Fed For Fall Exhibit

The Allegany County 4-H Club Hog Raising project is well underway with 26 farm boys already raising a total of 44 hogs, according to Joseph Steger, assistant county farm agent. He hopes to add enough more to have about 60 hogs in the county-wide project.

Steger explains the purpose of the program is to teach and train boys in modern methods of feeding, raising and caring for hogs, and to improve the quality of pork marketed from this county. The area offers large possibilities for hog raising, he said, and a program arousing interest among the "future farmers," is regarded as a step in the right direction.

Sometime in October, it is planned to have a 4-H Hog Show and Sale, at which prizes will be awarded for the winning swine, and live stock and meat dealers will be invited to buy the hogs from the boys. In addition to the training from the program, the boys will find themselves amply paid for their time and effort, Steger explained.

The following Allegany county boys have entered the hog raising competition:

Clifford Hartley, 11, Clinton Hartley, 11 and George Hartley 18, all of Piney Grove are feeding five hogs each. Charles Broadwater, 14, of near Westernport, and Harry Johnson, 17, of Willow Brook Road are raising three each.

Marshall L. Mann, 20, of Little Orleans; Raymond Kile, 19, of RFD 3, Keyser; William House, 17, of Oldtown, and Earl Twigg, 17, of Spring Gap, are feeding two each.

Boys feeding one hog each include, James Greise, 14 and Robert Greise, 16, Mason Road; Emory Crites, 11, and Raymond Crites, 10, of near Westernport; Alfred Mueller, 12, Richard Mueller, 14, and Robert Mueller, 17, of near Paw Paw, W. Va.; Douglas Ryan, 15; Joseph Shaid, 16, and Kenneth Shipe, 14, of near Oldtown; Donald Mallow, 15, and Wade Mallow, 13, of Flintstone.

Sylvian Llewellyn, 14, Barton; Donald Poffenberger, 17, Teddy Poffenberger, 12, Piney Grove; Melvin Fletcher, 19, and Wesley McCusker, 14, Little Orleans; Stanley Miller, 18, Herman Miller, 16, Herman Kesner, 14, and Curtis Kesner, 12, of near Keyser.

A patent was granted in 1836 to Alonzo D. Phillips of Springfield, Mass., for the phosphorus match.

NATIVE OF COUNTY HAS LONG SERVICE

A former resident of Flintstone who has become one of the leading citizens of Elkins, W. Va., last Friday completed 50 years of "railroading" for the Western Maryland Railway and today holds the distinction of being the oldest living member of the Order of Railroad Telegraphers.

N. T. Downs, 135 Buffalo Street, Elkins, has found time to participate in civic activities, fraternal work and politics, but railroadng always came first with him from the time he went to work for the Western Maryland, then the West Virginia Central, in Parsons in 1897.

A son of the late William E. and Elizabeth (Chisholm) Downs, he was born and in raised in the Flintstone section, and his early railroad assignments at Parsons, West Virginia Junction, Shaw, and Coketon resulted in his becoming widely known as a young man.

Later he was transferred to Thomas for a brief period and then to Mill Creek where he remained for 40 years as freight and ticket agent. He is now the railroad company's agent at Beverly.

For many years the Downs family resided at Mill Creek where he became affiliated with the Masons, the Odd Fellows and the Royal Arcanum. He was elected a director of the Bank of Mill Creek and served on the District Board of Education for 14 years. Later, when the county system was adopted, he served on the school board for six years. While in Mill Creek, he also served on the town council and as recorder.

Downs later entered a broader political field and has the distinction of being the only citizen of Randolph county to serve in the House of Delegates three successive terms. He was not a candidate for reelection last November.

The family of Mr. and Mrs. Downs consists of two sons and two daughters: Col. Walter W. Downs, Kelly Field, Texas; Henry Downs, Kelly Field, Texas; Julia Downs, Washington, and Mrs. Jane Blankley, Arlington, Va.

Many Voters Think Jurisdictional Strikes Should Now Be Banned

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP
Director
American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., February 11—With the question of jurisdictional strikes bound to come up in Congress during the present session, a coast to coast survey of public opinion on the issue reveals two outstanding facts:

1. People who are able to define the term "jurisdictional strike" vote by about two to one in favor of having Congress place a ban on this type of labor stoppage.

2. In spite of the thousands of persons who have been involved in such strikes during recent months, in spite of the millions of words, the thousands of editorials written about the jurisdictional strikes, only one person in eight among the thousands interviewed in the present poll is able to define the term.

President Truman in his recent message to the new Congress singled out jurisdictional strikes as a kind which should be banned by Congress.

In measuring knowledge about the term and sentiment toward the jurisdictional strikes, the Institute had field reporters all over the nation ask two questions.

1. "What does the term "jurisdictional strike" mean to you?"

Here is how the replies distribute on a correct—incorrect basis:

Correct Replies	12%
Incorrect Replies	17
Don't Know	71

Replies were correct which indicated knowledge that a jurisdictional strike is one resulting from a dispute between two unions as to which should control certain kinds of work, certain workers, or certain areas.

The second question was asked only of the voters who were able to give a correct answer to the first question.

2. "Do you think Congress should or should not forbid jurisdictional strikes?"

The replies of the one out of eight able to define the term jurisdictional strike:

Should Forbid	68%
Should Not Forbid	25
No Opinion	7

On the definition of the term jurisdictional strikes:

Only one out of three among people who have attended college are able to give a satisfactory definition of the term.

Only one out of five among labor union members can define the term correctly.

SECRET LINCOLN LETTERS WILL BE UNVEILED SOON

By BOB PRICE

NEW YORK—This is one Lincoln's Birthday which finds historians and Lincoln students looking to the future instead of to the past. This is the year when the Robert Todd Lincoln collection of his father's letters and private papers is to be made public by the Library of Congress.

Robert Lincoln gave the collection to the nation in 1923, after it had been saved from destruction by the intercession of Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler. The gift had a proviso: That it was to be kept secret for 21 years after Robert Lincoln's death. He died in 1926. The 21-year embargo expires next July 26.

The content of the collection has been a subject of lively conjecture. There has been talk of sensational disclosures, ranging downward from a prediction of proof that Edward Stanton, secretary of war, was a traitor to Lincoln and to the country.

Dr. Butler, who persuaded Robert Lincoln that the papers belonged to the nation, believes that they are nothing more than records and evidence of various happenings in Lincoln's family life.

Such a theory would not explain fully why Robert Lincoln intended to burn the papers, nor why he was so intent upon keeping them from public knowledge until two decades after his death.

Robert Lincoln was at his home in Manchester, Vt., when Dr. Butler learned of his intention from Horace G. Young, an Albany, N. Y., banker and a close personal friend of Robert. As he recounted the story in The Saturday Evening Post some years ago and later in his autobiography, Dr. Butler argued for more than an hour before persuading Robert that the papers should be preserved. It was Butler's suggestion that they be deposited in the Library of Congress with a stipulation of secrecy until a fixed date for opening.

The terms of the gift were modified to permit a complete index of the collection as a means of insuring its safety. This index was started by the late Dr. John C. Fitzpatrick, assistant chief of the Division of Manuscripts of the Library of Congress, but was never completed. More recently, it was resumed by Dr. C. Percy Powell and he, more than any other living man, probably has the best knowledge of what the collection contains.

One mitigating fact against any sensational disclosures is that these papers were used by John G. Nicolay and John Hay, Lincoln's secretaries, in preparation of their Lincoln biography. As Dr. Charles C. Moore said in the report of the Librarian of Congress for 1923, "The collection, having been examined closely by such competent writers, may contain little unpublished material."

However, it should also be noted that the Nicolay-Hay biography was authorized by Robert Lincoln and it seems likely that any material which he deemed objectionable in 1923 would have been even more distasteful to him in 1890 when he inspected and passed the Nicolay-Hay work.

Robert Lincoln never gave any hint of the contents of the collection. In turning them over to the Library of Congress, he spoke only of "letters, manuscripts, documents and other papers."

There are about 2,000 species of ants in Australia.

Mother Goose And Mr. Flanagan

Cop Finds Small Fry Play Safe With Rhymes

OKLAHOMA HIGHWAY PATROLMAN H. J. Flanagan and a typical audience for his nursery safety rhymes that get results.

AP Newsfeatures

OKLAHOMA CITY—Highway Patrolman H. J. Flanagan has used his Irish wit to sugar coat safety lessons for children.

And do the youngsters love it!

All Flanagan has to do to get an audience is to appear in a school yard and the small fry flock around.

It started when Flanagan was assigned to make traffic safety talks to children in grade schools He talked himself hoarse in the regulation manner and all he got for his trouble was a blank look.

At last he decided to speak a language the youngsters could understand. So he picked up a book of nursery rhymes and went to work, writing jingles based on the rhymes and illustrating them with graphic pictures.

One of his favorites shows a girl and her wrecked bicycle beside a road, with an accompanying jingle:

"Mary, Mary, quite contrary, what do your bruises show?

"That you never indicated with your hand the direction you wanted to go."

Others deal with other well known nursery rhyme characters.

Reasons Flanagan:

"The kids all like nursery rhyme characters and figure that if things are all right for the characters they are all right for them."

Frostburg Group Acts To Keep State College

Name Committees For Investigations

FROSTBURG, Feb. 11—A number of local citizens met tonight at the City Hall, to discuss a plan of action to keep Frostburg State Teachers College in Frostburg.

The meeting was a part of a local program to keep the college, following a report and recommendation of the Maryland Commission on Higher Education, that it be closed and discontinued.

Michael J. Byrnes, chairman of the local group named two committees at tonight's meeting. One committee is to contact the State Board of Education and make an appointment to ascertain their plans with regard to the future of State Teachers College. This committee includes Edward J. Ryan, chairman, Dr. W. O. McLane, A. Charles Stewart, E. Irvin Prichard and Henry A. Minick.

It was reported at the meeting that the State Superintendent of Schools opposes construction of new buildings on the east side of State Teachers College, because of a coal mine subsidence there several years ago.

Byrnes named a committee to contact the Bureau of Mines and get an opinion as to whether this ground is safe for building, and also to get their recommendation as to what portions of the College property or other sections of the community are safe for new structures. The committee includes Rudolph Nickel, chairman, Thomas Elias, Harry S. Shupe and G. Gail Townsend.

237 Enrolled

It was reported at the meeting that 237 students enrolled at the opening of the fall semester of the college in September, including 34 nurses from Memorial Hospital, Cumberland.

The following statistics concerning the 203 full-time students at the college disclosed that Allegany county was represented by 156 students, 40 of whom live in the residence hall on the campus. Additional students, numbering 40, who reside in the residence hall, come from Washington county, with 17; Garrett county, with 15; Frederick county, with 2; St. Mary's county, with 1; Harford county, with 1 and 5 out-of-state as follows, New York, 2; Pennsylvania, 1 and West Virginia, 1.

With 80 students living at the college, it was pointed out that 120 commute daily to their classes from a commuting radius including Westernport, Ridgeley, Cumberland, Mt. Savage, Hyndman and Meyersdale. The vast majority of students, it was stated, depend upon commercial transportation and the Cumberland and Westernport Transit Company is co-operating by providing student rates.

If the location of the college is to provide equal opportunity in accessability for all commuting students, then, several speakers insisted, the Maryland State Teachers College at Frostburg meets that requirement since bus service is available from Mt. Savage, Cumberland and Westernport.

90 Veterans Are Students

Concerning the veterans of World War II, it was pointed out that 90 of the 110 men enrolled at the college are veterans and that 75 per cent of the veterans on the campus are enrolled in the junior college curriculum which offers a wide variety of courses allowing full transfer credit, provided a "C" average or better is maintained. Transfer credit at Frostburg and all institutions of higher learning is granted for "C" grade or better.

The citizens attending the meeting were informed that students enrolled are pursuing courses which will enable them to transfer successfully in agriculture, business administration, engineering, forestry, journalism, pre-dentistry, pre-medicine, pharmacy, secondary education and veterinary medicine.

Most of the veterans reside in local communities and find it financially possible to attend a college within commuting distance and are therefore able to take advantage of the educational privileges provided in the G. I. Bill of Rights. It was contended that it would be impossible for many of them to secure an education if it meant becoming a resident in some other institution, as some of them are married and have homes established and would find the subsistence allowance insufficient to take care of living expenses.

Keyser Carpenter Is Injured In Fall

E. K. Armentrout, 35, Route 3, Keyser, W. Va., was admtted to Allegany Hospital yesterday afternoon for treatment of a fracture of the left leg.

Platt Outlines Music Program

Over 700 students in public schools of Allegany County are now studying instrumental music, compared to only 50 a year ago, Jack Platt, supervisor of music in county public schools, told members of the Exchange Club last night at the Shrine Club.

Introduced as the guest speaker by Daniel D'Amicol, president, Platt outlined the musical program of the county and explained the opportunities now offered to students interested in music as a career or merely as an extra activity.

The problem of the underprivileged children in the county is one phase of the program which needs attention, Platt explained. Under the present set-up, only children who can furnish their own musical instruments, or whose parents can afford to buy them, can avail themselves of the musical opportunity.

There are many children, Platt explained, who probably have musical talent and ability, who cannot study because their families have no means to provide them with instruments.

Platt suggested that any members of the club, or any other citizens who have instruments, or who would be willing to sponsor a child in the program, can do so by contacting him.

T. E. Williamson, of the Kelly Springfield Tire Company was also a guest at the dinner meeting.

Putting a Government Bureau in the position of being "Health Czar"—through any system—invariably works out the same. In America it would be "billions of dollars a year, for less health."

No such system covers all the people. Many indigents and a vast portion of the population secure medical service outside such plans.

Billions of dollars a year would be spent for bureaucratic red tape, supervisors, clerical staffs, inadequate and lowered quality medical care, hospital care and medical preparation.

That is the invariable experience of State Medicine, "Social Security Health Plans" or Compulsory Health Insurance.

Let's keep our America free from spending "Billions and Billions for less and less health."

Stocks Negotiate Selected Rally While Profits Restrain Leaders

NEW YORK, Feb. 11—(AP)—The stock market negotiated a selective rally today behind rubbers, motors, a few rails and special issues although profit taking continued to restrain many leaders.

Transfers of 1,300,000 shares were the same as the day before. Principal exchanges will recess tomorrow for Lincoln's Birthday.

The comeback was attributed partly to bullishness over the business outlook, dividends, earnings and persistent optimism regarding the labor picture.

Chrysler advanced 3 at 105, General Motors 1⅜ at 65⅝, Goodrich 3¾ at 71⅜, United States Rubber 2 at 60⅜, Goodyear 2 at 58¾, du Pont 2 at 193, American Woolen 2 at 48⅞ and Schenley 1⅜ at 48⅝.

Canadian Pacific was up 1 at 15¼, New York Central was ahead ⅝ at 21 as Allegheny Corporation tendered voting trust certificates for 250,400 shares of this road to Chesapeake and Ohio.

Other advancers were United States Steel, Republic Steel, Western Union "A," American Telephone, North American, American Smelting, United States Gypsum, General Electric, Westinghouse Electric, Great Northern, Baltimore and Ohio and Lehigh Valley Coal Common and preferreds.

Union Pacific dropped 2 points at 135. Smaller recessions were shown for Sears Roebuck, Woolworth, Douglas Aircraft, United Aircraft, Kennecott, American Can, Union Carbide, J. C. Penny, Philip Morris and Standard Oil (New Jersey).

In the curb Textron jumped 3⅝ points on an upward earnings revision. Modest plus marks were held by American Gas, Humble Oil, St. Regis Paper and Middle West Corporation. Turnover here was 640,000 shares versus 560,000 yesterday.

Railroad obligations recouped most or all of early losses in the bond market.

Investors showed little inclination to take a decisive stand and turnover dwindled to only $3,610,000, smallest for a full session thus far in the month. This compared with $4,100,000 Monday.

It's a simple thing to take a bottle of milk off your doorstep in the early morning.

But to get it there—that's a job that is truly comparable with the maneuvering of an army!

To assemble, transport, test, pasteurize and bottle the right quantity of milk every day and deliver it to thousands of consumers is a major operation indeed—one that calls for the best brains of management, scientists, technicians and engineers behind the man who actually makes the delivery.

Your "milkman" today is a dozen trained men. If you could see the actual operation and sanitary precaution behind a quart of milk, you would probably wonder how so good a food can be brought to you so conveniently and safely at so low a cost.

One of the extra safeguards this dairy uses is the Sealright Hood. Sealed on the bottle at 500 degrees F., this paper closure provides water-proof, tamper-proof protection of the pouring lip of our bottle. It keeps it safe from contact with hands or other exposure all the way from dairy to you. And that is important—because every drop of milk in the bottle must pass over that pouring lip.

KEEPING UP WITH

HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 11—Have you read "Mr. Blanding Builds His Dream House" by Eric Hodgins? If you haven't you should. It's on the best seller list, and it's a highly amusing story of an advertising man who builds a house — and the costs mount up, and up, and up. Anybody who has done any building knows only too well how true it all is.

Noel Coward

Well, Dore Schary, the new production head at RKO, has planked down $200,000 on "Mr. Blanding." his first purchase. He's put Cary Grant and Myrna Loy in the leads—not bad. I feel it should make a very good comedy.

Dore's been busier than the old proverbial one-arm paperhanger and what have you, buying stories, getting stars settled for making pictures, and making plans for the company he now heads.

Through the underground I hear it whispered that Betty Grable's last movie, "Mother Wore Tights," is terrific entertainment, and that Director Walter Lang did a sensational job.

But it's not Betty that this movie will help as much as Dan Dailey, young actor who was formerly with M. G. M. Betty, who is awaiting her second baby, will be off the screen for a year, while Dan will be hurried into a specially written screen play, "The Story Of the Song and Dance Man." This will take advantage of the raves he is sure to get in the Grable movie.

Them is orders from Darryl Zanuck.

Chatter in Hollywood: Jayne Meadows, who is only making her second picture at MGM, threatens to be a headache to producer Nat Perrin. She has a supporting role in "Song Of the Thin Man," and has been griping about many things and threatening to walk out.

She's been before the cameras for eight weeks so, naturally, this would be a serious thing to do. All I can say for Miss Meadows is if she does anything like that, she will be doing more harm to herself than to MGM.

She looks a little like Katherine Hepburn, this Meadows gal who is a socialite and very rich in her own right.

P. S. She goes back to New York after this movie by mutual consent.

For the first time in 25 years, Harpo Marx TALKED through an entire sketch put on at the San Fernando Veterans' Administration Hospital with Bob Armstrong M. C.-ing. The Red-wigged harpist who has always been the "mute" of the Marx clan had a good reason for going oral.

Practically every patient in this hospital is bedridden and unable to get to the auditorium—but in each room and ward there are ear phones and loud speakers. They particularly asked that Harpo have a few words to say to them when he finished his harp solos. Instead of the usual, "so happy to be heres," he worked with a top comedy writer and had the lads roaring with laughter.

The noted playwright, Noel Coward, is cutting Hollywood off his visiting list this time. He's in New York for a few days on his way to the West Indies to stay until March, then back to New York and home to England.

Noel says he is not here for business—just to enjoy himself and relax. You can be sure he is not going to Brooklyn. He hasn't been in this country since 1942—that was before the famous Brooklyn incident.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Josephine Wayne, John's ex, one of Hollywood's most attractive women, is being escorted here and there by Jerry Powell, wealthy oil man.

Spencer Tracy reducing via the tennis court. He has been playing a snappy game at the Palm Springs Racket Club practically every day.

Martha O'Driscoll who has been stymied in every attempt she made the last two years to get a divorce from her husband, Robert Adams, will try again. She has offered to let him get the divorce, but he refuses. Everytime the case comes up in court he asks for a postponement.

Joan Blondell's house is up for sale which either means she is marying Mike Todd or that she'll go to England.

Laraine Day has asked R. K. O. to shoot all her scenes in "Tycoon" first so she can get out of town to join Leo Durocher as soon as possible. Incidentally, she's receiving $100,000 for the one picture, which is more than she used to make in a whole year.

The Carmen Miranda-Donald Buka romance is in high gear.

Lorraine Miller, who made a hit with Helen Hayes in "Happy Birthday," is returning to Hollywood to take up her movie career.

That's all today.

Bath was the first English spa to become popular. Its natural springs had been used by the Romans. A fine Roman swimming pool is still there.

WHAT'S THE CURE FOR MEMORY

What can you do when ghosts throng your trail.

Memory ghosts, plucking at you with bony hands . . darkening the sunshine, chilling your blood with their circling shadows?

A life that can't shake its past—that's Shelia's story. It's an old, old story but as bitter as the first time it was told. They met and loved and were to be married. Then he found he didn't love her and he went away. And now she can't forget.

There's never a moonlight that I don't think of him. Always I'm listening for the sound of his step . . . for the telephone's ring. Memories fill my days. I'm not worth anything, any more, Elsie. Is there no cure for a trouble like mine?"

Millions asking that question . . . millions who are haunted by memories of old happiness . . . old grief . . . old sin, old failure, old success.

How softly it steals on you, saying—"Look at me! I'm all you have left. Your sweetheart is gone . . . your baby is dead . . . they'll never come again . . . you have nothing but me, now. Comfort yourself with me . . . with the memory of the past—"

Or muttering: "If only you could do it all over again! If only you hadn't taken that wrong turn, how different everything would be now. But you did take that wrong turn, and now it's no use. You can't undo what you did. There isn't even any use trying. The only thing you can do is to think and think about it and be sorry."

Or, sneering: "Look at them all! Putting on airs! Well, you were as fine as that once. Finer! You were young and handsome and bright and powerful. They aren't half as wonderful as you were once."

Ghosts . . . plucking ghosts . . . whispering, wailing, leering, sneering, sobbing, stabbing vampire ghosts that suck out hope and energy and leave your life a wasted shell . . . is there no cure for them?

There is! What is the cure for the past is the present!

How shall you forget yesterday? By living today!

Not easy? God knows it isn't. It's the most desperate task a hurt soul can tackle, but it must be done if life is to go on.

Do you really want to be cured? Then stand up! Shake off that plucking hand! Look at that gibbering shadow for the curse it really is. It may not have seemed a curse to you . . . it may have worn the tender guise of Love . . . or the noble mask of Repentance. But no matter what its mask, IT'S A THIEF AND A WASTER!

It's stealing your energy and ambition, your happiness and health. It's wasting your opportunity and deadening your conscience to your responsibility. It's leading you away from TODAY, where you belong.

Shake off that hand . . . turn from that voice . . . REACH OUT AND LAY HOLD OF TODAY. Grab the first job that presents itself. Anchor yourself in the wholesome difficulties of that job. Weary yourself so that you can't hear or feel memories.

THAT'S the cure for the haunting past . . . THE HUSTLING, HEALTHY PRESENT.

FRIDAY GAMES
Beall at Allegany
Fort Hill at Bruce
Central at Barton

Allegany High School scored its seventh straight victory over Central High School in Lonaconing, 48-22. Fort Hill rallied in the third quarter to sink Beall High School before a packed house in Frostburg, 41-29, and Barton tripped Bruce High at Barton, 43-29, in W. M. I. League games played last night.

In handling the Orange and Black its seventh successive defeat, Coach Walter L. Bowers sent 17 AHS players into action and thirteen collected one or more of the 20 fielder goals racked up by the defending champions.

The Campers jumped off to a 14-4 score at the quarter, lengthened their lead to 27-7 at the intermission and were on top by the score of 36-11 when the third period ended.

Freeland Stands Out

Elmer Freeland's shooting highlighted Fort Hill's triumph in the Mountain City. During the first two periods Beall had the better of the argument, leading 8-5 and 16-12, but the tide turned in the third quarter when the Sentinels outscored the home quint 18 to 5 and grabbed the long end of a 30-21 score. Coach Cavanaugh's aggregation also outpointed Beall in the final stanza, 11-8.

Freeland connected for nine fielders and a total of 19 points. The Fort Hill southpaw chalked up eight field goals in the second half.

Bob Truly and Tom Stewart were Beall's best bets, the latter going out of the game on personal fouls in the final period.

In the preliminary game Fort Hill's Jayvees took the Beall Jayvees into camp, 44 to 15.

Coach Paul Footen's Barton High passers moved to within a game of the third place Beall High quint by rallying in the last half to overcome Bruce High School.

Green's Goal Turns Tide

Barton led at the quarter, 11-10 and also at the halfway mark, but Donald Moran's basket sent Coach Grindle's outfit to the fore at 21-20 early in the third stanza. Ira Green's double-decker moved Barton on top only to have Moran connect with another fielder to give Bruce a 23-22 edge. Green's goal started the winning rally and Jimmie Lamberson hooped two free throws and the Braves gained a six-point advantage at the end of the period, 31-25.

Moran, who paced the Bruce attack with 13 points, including six fielders, was banished on personal fouls with the score 24-23 in Barton's favor. Green and Bill Warnick were the "big guns" for Barton with 14 and 12 points.

It was a double victory for Barton as its Junior High quint downed Bruce in the opener of the twin bill, 23-15. Lineups:

Keyser Sweeps Davis Series

Tornado Bags 16th Triumph, 54 To 22

KEYSER, W. Va., Feb. 11 — Using the entire squad of 14 players, with the regulars playing only the first and third quarters, Coach "Tack" Clark's Keyser High Golden Tornado easily swept the season's series with Davis High Wildcats with a 54-22 victory here tonight.

Greenberg Perturbed By Reaction Of Fans

Hank Says Bucs Withheld Story On Retirement

Management Asked Him To Reconsider

BY JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK, Feb. 11—(AP)—Hank Greenberg, perturbed by reaction of Pittsburgh fans to his statement that he was considering retiring, revealed today he had informed the Pirates in his first contact with the club that he would not play with the National League team.

In an exclusive interview, the former Detroit slugger, who was waived out of the American League and sold to the Pirates Jan. 18, said that he had withheld public announcement of his decision at the express request of the Pittsburgh management which asked him "to reconsider" the matter.

However, Hank disclosed today that he was "greatly concerned over the reaction of the Pittsburgh fans to my statement of last Sunday."

In that statement Greenberg said he was "considering retirement from the active playing ranks."

Hank said "I am greatly distressed by the report that the Pittsburgh fans are angry at me.

"I want the Pittsburgh fans to know that the first time I contacted the Pittsburgh management I revealed my decision.

"At the Pirates' request, I refrained from making any announcement until I had given it further consideration," Greenberg said.

"I gave the matter a great deal of thought," he added "but decided to stick to my original decision."

The major leagues home run king of 1946 said that "the Pirates asked me to come to Pittsburgh last Sunday for a conference. I felt that if I attended such a conference and did not sign a contract and later that day went to the Pittsburgh baseball writers' dinner, the fans would be led to believe that I had signed anyway."

"Rather than mislead the fans," he said, "I decided to stay in New York and make that Sunday announcement."

"I want to say now that I have the highest regard for the Pittsburgh management and I don't want to do anything to antagonize our relationship, whether I ever play for Pittsburgh or not."

At Pittsburgh, Roy Hamey, Pirate general manager, admitted Greenberg "probably did say" that he would not play for the Pittsburgh club.

"But there was nothing definite and we labored under the idea that eventually he would play." Hamey said, adding: "We still hope that he will change his mind."

AKRON, O., Feb. 11—(AP)—Marion Motley, star back of the champion Cleveland Browns of the All-America Football Conference, suffered an injured nose and knee last night in an automobile accident south of here, after which he was arrested on a charge of reckless driving.

Motley's new car, purchased only last week, was damaged badly when it struck the rear end of a truck. Motley was quoted by highway patrolmen as saying he fell asleep at the wheel. The 26-year-old grid star will be arraigned tonight.

Rowe Comes To Terms

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 11 (AP) — Pitcher Schoolboy Rowe came to terms with the Philadelphia Phillies today, reducing the Club's holdout list to four.

Rowe signed a contract after a 30-minute huddle with General Manager Herb Pennock and announced he would leave by automobile next week for the Phils' Florida training camp. Salary was not disclosed.

Still on the Phil holdout list are Pitchers Tommy Hughes and Charlie Schanz and Outfielder Ron Northey and Infielder Emil Verban.

Catamounts Open Football Drills

Spring Program Will Run Through April

The Potomac State Catamounts, under Coach Dana "Horse" Lough, will swing their Spring football drill into a full stride today with the issuing of equipment and the first workout. The 1947 gridiron hopefuls were called together on Monday and Lough outlined a program which will run through March to the end of April, terminating in a football game, probably between the first and second teams.

Lough stated that he saw no new players but he expects a few after the ending of the cage tournament for West Virginia Collegiate teams.

The 1947 team will have a mark to shoot at this year. The 1946 eleven set an all-time school record of seven wins, losing only two games. The 1947 team will face the same nine schools that last year's team battled. The '46 team also had the honor of receiving national rating on three successive weeks.

Game Protector Uses Jeep To Set Traps

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Feb. 11—(AP)—Game Protector Harrison Shobe of Grant County informed conservation commission officials here he had found a new use for his jeep.

Shobe uses the vehicle in setting traps for foxes because, he explained, it leaves no man scent on the ground to frighten off the animals.

He reported that on the morning after setting two traps he took out one fox and a skunk, and on another occasion caught two foxes in three traps set from the jeep.

Mounties Battle Once Beaten Navy In Contest Today

Fans To See Annapolis Game Free of Charge

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Feb. 11 (AP) — Coaches Ben Carnevale, of Navy, and Lee Patton, of West Virginia, were as voluable as a couple of Egyptian Sphinxes today on the basketball clash between their teams here tomorrow.

Carnevale described the undefeated Mountaineers as the best team in the country, "except possibly Kentucky."

Patton said Navy is probably the toughest opponent his passers meet this year.

Otherwise, they were mum.

The meeting between the once-beaten "mighty mites" of Navy and the towering Mountaineers is billed as one of the best in the east. The two are rated at the top of the heap in this part of the counry and each has its own contender for individual honors.

Navy has Captain Kenny Shugart, whom Carnevale calls the "greatest little guy I've ever seen in basketball," and West Virginia has Fred Schaus, a 6-foot-4 ex-gob whose keen shooting eye has helped the Mountaineers coast through 12 games.

Both squads worked out here this afternoon. Patton led his 12-man ensemble into town at noon and after lunch hustled them out to get the feel of the court and limber up their shooting and passing arms.

He especially wanted them to acquaint themselves with the fan-shaped backboards Navy favors—and which he emphatically disfavors. The Mountaineers are accustomed to the standard square backboard.

Other than that, both Carnevale and Patton rely on similar cage practices. They both employ a fast break and man-to-man defense, and develops plays of a single or double pivot. Patton, of course, takes advantage of his boys' height. They average 6 feet 3 inches, four inches more than Navy.

Having the game here gives hoop fans a unique break. No matter who the contestants, Navy has a tradition of not charging admission to mid-week sports events, so anyone who happens to be in town at 5 p. m., starting time, can walk into Dahlgren Hall without so much as a tip of the hat.

The open-door area has a basketball seating capacity of almost 5,000, and athletic department officials anticipate a full house.

Walcott Will Meet Sheppard-Bivins Winner

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 10 (AP) — Promoter Herman Taylor announced today that Jersey Joe Walcott, Camden, N. J., heavyweight, will meet the winner of the Curtis Sheppard-Jimmy Bivins fight.

Taylor said no date has been set for the Walcott fight but added it will be held here early in the outdoor season.

Potomac State Is Host To Shenandoah Tonight

Cats Meet Virginia Floormen At 8:30

Coach Dana "Horse" Lough will send his Potomac State Catamounts after their third straight victory tonight when the Cats clash with Shenandoah College in the Potomac State College Field House at 8:30 p. m. Doors will open at 6:30 p. m. and a preliminary at seven will feature Coach Judson "Hodge" Hodges' Potomac State Frosh quintet against the Westernport American Legion.

In the main event the Shenandoah outfit brings here a strong team composed of mostly six footers. The first team has played together since high school days, performing for independent teams before entering the Virginia college. Against Salem and Shepherd, the Virginian team split; beating Shepherd and losing to Salem in the closing seconds of play.

Going into tonight's game, Potomac State boasts a record of eight wins in sixteen starts. A victory would shove the Cats above the "500" mark for the first time since December 13. Coach Lough announced that lanky Dallas Ours would start at the center spot tonight. Ours received his first starting assignment against Frostburg State on Monday night. The rest of the lineup will show Bob Lefever and Mike Yewcic at the forwards and "Bomber" Montgomery and Kenny Simms at the guard posts.

The game tonight will be the third and final of the Cats' current home stand. After tonight Potomac State will play two away games, returning home February 21 to play Westinghouse in the first of four final home games.

MARTINSBURG, W. Va., Feb. 11 (AP) — Opening round games of the Eastern Panhandle sectional basketball tournament here March 5-8 will pit Charles Town against Paw Paw; Martinsburg against Hedgesville and Shepherdstown against Berkeley Springs, tournament director Edwin W. Miller announced today.

Other first round games the next evening will see Harpers Ferry going against Mathias and Wardensville playing the winner of the Martinsburg-Hedgesville contest.

U. S. PULLED FAST ONE, BRITISH WRITER SAYS

LONDON, Feb. 11—(AP)—British sports columnist John Batson said today that the United States pulled a fast one on British golfer Dai Rees by substituting Ben Hogan for Byron Nelson in a challenge match in California.

"You need not know the difference between a putter and a permutation," the Sunday Dispatch columnist wrote, "to be conscious of an ancient and fishlike aroma emanating from such a reshuffle. Another chapter of the old, old story—lil' U. S. A., must win at any price."

The 33-year old Rees, who hails from Wales and was the biggest money winner in Britain last year, beat Nelson three and one in a Ryder Cup match in 1937. Their scheduled meeting for $5,000, winner-take-all, Feb. 22 and 23 was being awaited here as a chance for the Welshman to prove it was no accident.

Redlegs Sell Clay

CINCINNATI, Feb. 11 (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds announced sale of Outfielder Dain Clay to San Diego of the Pacific Coast League. The purchase price was not disclosed. Clay hit only .228 for the Reds last year.

Yankees Sought Trio Who Jumped To Mexican Loop

$150,000 Offered For Klein, Lanier, Martin

BY JACK HAND

NEW YORK, Feb. 11—(AP)—Sam Breadon turned down a $150,000 offer from the New York Yankees for Max Lanier, Fred Martin and Lou Klein after the three St. Louis Cardinal players had obtained travel permits to "jump" to Mexico, the Associated Press learned exclusively today.

The story of the three players' decision to desert the Red Birds for Pasquel gold already was on the streets when Larry MacPhail contacted Breadon at his New York hotel May 23, with the startling cash offer.

Although Breadon was unaware of it at the time, the Yankee president already had convinced the Mexicans to cancel the three travel permits, and was prepared to go the limit in the salary offer for Lanier, the top pitcher in the National League.

Breadon considered the proposition briefly and then belied his reputation as a "pinch-penny" by refusing to take the money. He told MacPhail that Lanier, Martin and Klein must play for the Cardinals or not at all. It wound up being not at all as they continued to Mexico four days later.

When the question of obtaining waivers on the trio was brought up during the discussion MacPhail assured the Cardinal owner that not a single National League club would take a chance on claiming players who already were believed on their way to Mexico.

New York Favors Lip-Tattoo Method

NEW YORK, Feb. 11—(AP)—As a means of preventing "ringer" cases, the Jockey Club (New York), racing's leading control body, has recommended the lip-tattooing method for identification or race horses and suggested that all thoroughbreds be marked in this manner.

The lip tattoo method was developed by the Army Remount Service. Under the system, an identifying number is permanently and irremovably marked inside the horse's lip, thereby preventing substitution of a "ringer."

The Jockey Club stewards suggested that the number tattooed on the lip be identical with a horse's registration certificate number.

Jim Bagby Pleased

ATLANTA, Feb. 11 (AP) — Jim Bagby, Jr., was jubilant today over his sale by the Boston Red Sox to the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Bagby, who served as a relief hurler for the Red Sox last year, said he had asked to be traded to get more work.

"I left on good terms," he said. "I just wanted to work regularly instead of sitting around on the bench."

Sheedy Named Manager

CHICAGO, Feb. 11—(AP)—The Chicago Cubs today announced appointment of Clayton M. Sheedy, 48, Baltimore, and 1923 batting champion of the International League, as business manager of their Clinton, Ia., team in the new Class C Central League.

MINOR RULE CHANGE, BUT IT'LL SAVE A LOT OF HEADACHES

A touchdown has been scored and the teams line up for the extra point. The player kicks the ball but instead of going over the cross-bars, it is blocked.

Then the fun commences. Players on both sides rush for the ball. We've seen defensive players scoop it up and run for their own goal, 98 yards away. (This despite the fact that the team on defense may not score under any circumstances on this play.) We've seen offensive players rush for it; fall on it; try to pick it up; try to pass it; try to rush it across.

This is out as of 1947.

The football rules committee, acting on the recommendation by the Football Coaches' Association, has changed the rule to read:

"If a kick is attempted for a point after touchdown, only successful completion of the kick will be allowed to result in an extra point."

That's better, all around. When a kick is made now, it either is kicked over the cross-bars for a point or the ball is dead. No more fighting for the ball on this play with resultant headaches to players and officials. (By Walter L. Johns, Central Press).

Garden Will Have More Basketball Games Next Year

NEW YORK, Feb. 11—(AP)—Ned Irish, executive vice - president of Madison Square Garden, said today that 29 dates, a record, had been allotted tentatively for college basketball at the big arena for the 1947-8 season. The colleges were given 28 this season.

Irish, who also holds the post as director of basketball at the Garden, said that The New York Knickerbockers, The Basketball Association of America team sponsored by the arena, probably will stage five to seven of its contests in the sports palace.

The Knicks were given five dates this year for the Garden with the remainder of their home games listed for the 69th Regiment Armory. The armory can hold abound 6,000 compared to 18,400 for the Garden.

In his talk at the Metropolitan Basketball Writers Luncheon, Irish said that he was hopeful that the basketball eliminations for the 1948 London Olympics would be held in the Garden in March of that year.

Asa Bushnell, secretary of the Eastern Athletic Conference and chairman of the Selection Committee for the National Invitation Basketball Tournament which is held annually in the Garden in March, said the committee would get to work this week on going over the records of a large number of teams.

"We've got so many good teams around the country that it would be a lot easier to make a 32-team draw rather than to pick out just eight fives," Bushnell said, "but we'll get busy and thin the list down to that eight."

No teams were mentioned but it's almost a sure bet that West Virginia and Duquesne, the only two unbeaten college quintets left in the country, will get a bid along with Kentucky's twice-beaten but high-ranking outfit.

The U. S. Capitol building would fit into any one of the five pie-shaped sections of the U. S. War Department's Pentagon Building in Washington.

Club House Is Destroyed By Fire

GARRISON, Md., Feb. 10 (AP) — Fanned by strong winds, fire of undetermined origin today destroyed the three-story club house of the Green Spring Valley Hunt Club, scene of many Maryland golf tournaments.

One member of the club and four servants were in the rambling frame structure when the blaze was discovered at 10:45 a. m., but all escaped without injuries.

In Memoriam

In memory of my beloved Mother, Mary Elizabeth (Littell) Clifford, who died three years ago today, February 12, 1944.

Of all the gifts that God hath given,
Except for promises of Heaven,
His best was when, to precious few,
He gave a Mother such as you.

Lovingly remembered by
HER DAUGHTER
2-12-1t

In loving memory of our dear Daughter and Wife, Mrs. Kathryn (Yost) Whisner, who died one year ago, February 11, 1946.

You were the sunlight of our home,
Our light, our life, our all.
To know you was to love you,
But you answered Jesus' call.

In our hearts your memory lingers
Sweetly tender, fond and true.
There is not a day Dear Daughter
That we do not think of you.
Sadly missed by: MOTHER,
HUSBAND, BROTHER and SISTER.

RADIO IN REVIEW

By JOHN CROSBY

The B.B.C.'s Third Programme

On Sept. 29, the British Broadcasting Corporation inaugurated its Third Programme, the most ambitious and certainly the most overwhelmingly intellectual broadcasting project anywhere in the world. Up to that time the British had their choice of only two programs, the Home Service Programme which broadcast material of regional interest and the Light Programme which was frankly aimed at pleasing popular tastes.

John Crosby

The aim of the Third Programme was to broadcast masterpieces of literature and music in their entirety, not once but several times. There were to be no compromises to popular taste or to time. Wagner's "Tristan und Isolde," for instance, lasted three and half hours when adapted to radio. Ten times as much time was devoted to the opera's rehearsals. "Man and Superman," virtually never played in its entirety even in the theater, was presented uncut on two successive nights. Repetition is one of the basic tenets of the Third Programme. A listener who hasn't time for all three acts of a play may listen to two on one night and catch the third the following night. But this is not the whole purpose of the repetition. The directors of the program feel that music and drama lovers can't get enough of a masterpiece.

Even to the most cultivated ears, much of the material on the Third Programme is unfamiliar. Sir William Haley, director-general of the B.B.C., declares that the program aims not just at broadcasting the popular works of the great masters but also at airing works that are rarely ever presented anywhere.

This means the Third Programme is presenting music and dramas that are hard to find in any concert halls or theaters. Along with standard classics such as Beethoven quartets and Mozart piano sonatas, many music lovers are hearing for the first time extensive selections from Schubert's 600 songs and little known Liszt piano pieces. Ultimately the directors will blow the dust off Wagner's later operas and Verdi's "Simon Boccanegra," which has never been performed in England.

Even a partial list of the plays which have already been presented shows how deeply the B.B.C. is dipping into the classics. A few of them are Aeschylus's "Agamemnon," Aristophanes's "The Frogs," Dryden's "Marriage a la Mode," Ibsen's "Peer Gynt," Milton's "Comus" and Shakespeare's "Troilus and Cressida," "Romeo and Juliet," "Twelfth Night" and "Love's Labor Lost." Where else can such an imposing list be found?

The Third Programme is not committed only to dead masters. The directors have appealed to England's finest writers to turn in original works written especially for radio. Several of these works have already been aired.

Besides music and drama, the Third Programme offers features, poetry readings and talks, generally weighty ones. Even in the line of peotry the directors have made no concessions to popularity. Possibly the most impressive bit of dramatic poetry was the recital of Chaucer's "Canterbury Tales" in the original English, which to many Britons is almost as foreign a language as Greek.

The reaction of the public to a program cast on such a lofty plane was awaited with considerable nervousness. The towering intellectuality of the program requires of its listeners not only close attention but a great deal of time. Would any one listen for three and a half hours to an opera familiar only to scholars? On the basis of four months' operation, the B.B.C. reports that its listener response is very encouraging. A survey revealed that 7 per cent of the listeners were enthusiastic about the program, and 21 per cent were "interested" in it. Some of the programs have reached as many as 2,000,000 listeners, which is a large audience in a nation of 44,000,000 persons, particularly since the program covers only about fifty per cent of the potential audience.

Whether the Third Programme will lead to a general elevation of the cultural standards of Britain is a moot point. Some of England's most optimistic critics think so. "The Third Programme," according to Edward Sackville-West writing in the 'New Statesman and Nation,' "may well become the greatest educative and civilizing force England has known since the secularization of the theater in the sixteenth century."

Lincoln Will Be Paid Tributes On Networks Today

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD

NEW YORK, Feb. 11 (AP) — Programs directive of Lincoln's birthday are due in at least a couple of pre-announced instances on Wednesday. There may be others, if the late schedulers discover something on a last-minute basis.

The first, as listed, will be the annual pilgrimage to Lincoln's tomb at Springfield, Ill., which NBC is to carry for 15 minutes at 1 p. m. Given as the speakers are Gov. Dwight Green of Illinois and Paul H. Griffith, American Legion commander.

The others, for MBS at 10, will be a half-hour of speeches by three Republican leaders, each coming from a different point. Harold Stassen will be heard direct from New York, with the other two recorded. Sen. Kenneth S. Wherry of Nebraska speaks at Boston and Sen. Leverett Saltonstall of Mass., from Los Angeles.

Handling the program as hostess while Frank Sinatra takes a vacation, reduced to three weeks from the originally intended longer stay, is Jane Powell, from the movies, who acts as hostess. It's CBS 9.

Hollywood Players, to retire from the air before the month is out, is to have Paulette Goddard in "Diary of a Chambermaid" for one its concluders via CBS at 10. . . . Ezra Stone, radio's Henery Aldrich, and Sugar Chile Robinson are on the guest list for Kay Kyser's NBC at 10:30.

Industries Oppose Sen. Kimble's Tax Exemption Bill

County Delegation Conducts Hearing

ANNAPOLIS, Feb. 11 (AP) — Enactment of a Senate measure to rescind certain tax exemptions granted industries in Allegany County would constitute a breach of contract and imperil the industrial growth of the area, a group of Western Maryland legislators was told today.

Representatives of the Celanese Corporation of America, the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company, and the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company asked the Allegany County delegation in the assembly to withhold approval of the bill introduced by Senator Kimble (R-Allegany).

The measure would direct the County Commissioners to annul contracts granted to any industry if it has been located in the area for 20 years.

Albert L. Vreeland of New York, representing Celanese, declared that "any act repealing the exemptions would be unconstitutional in as much as it would nullify a binding contract" his concern has with the Allegany commissioners.

He added that Celanese will not ask for a renewal of its present exemption after it expires in 1952, but added that the company has "spent considerable money for improvements" which it would not have expended if no relief had been granted.

Horace P. Whitworth, Sr., appearing for the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company, asserted his concern had no objection to other measures limiting the exemptions to 10 years, but outright cancellation would be a breach of contract.

Whitworth pointed out that three suits are pending in Allegany County to test the commissioners' right to grant the exemptions and said the question "is for the court to decide, not the legislature."

"They (the exemptions) are contracts," he asserted, adding "there is grave doubt as to the constitutionality of the Senate bill."

Whitworth said the companies had done much for Allegany County's economic welfare, while denial of exemptions would probably keep other industries out of the area.

Exemption Was Inducement

Former Attorney General William C. Walsh, representing Kelly-Springfield, related that the tire firm went bankrupt a number of years ago and was reorganized, with the tax exemption one inducement to bring continuation of its activities in the Cumberland area.

"Never in the world could you induce any industry to come into Cumberland if you rescind the commissioners' power to grant the exemptions," he said, explaining that it would be a "breach of faith."

"Cumberland would be a ghost town," Walsh stated. "The people paying a few cents more on their taxes would suffer irreparable loss."

Walsh emphasized that the firms are exempted from taxation only on tools and machinery, and paid their share of other levies.

Kimble, before the hearing, stated that it was the intention of the 1931 assembly in allowing exemptions to apply them to "any industry desiring to locate in the county," and "not to those" already located there.

He termed the present procedure "not in accord with the spirit and letter" of the act and "contrary to the fundamental prilncple" tnat taxes should be uniform on all classes of property.

Both Walsh and Whitworth pointed out that the language of the Act of 1931 reads that it is for the purpose of encouraging not only the initial location of industries in the county but also for the growth, expansion and extension of industries already located in the county, delegation members said.

Walsh told the legislators that machinery and tools of all industries located in Baltimore City are tax exempt, and cited this as one reason Baltimore has reached a high niche among the industrial cities of the East.

Such exemption, he said, encourages industries to locate in Baltimore, stay there and expand.

Representatives of labor unions, including Benjamin W. O'Rourke, chairman of the Legislative Committee of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, and George A. Meyers, of Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, attended the more than two-hour long session.

Labor, a member of the delegation said, opposed the exemptions and favored Kimble's bill on grounds that exemptions given to industry increase the tax burden of the individual, whereas annulment of the exemptions would ease that burden.

Horace P. Whitworth, Jr., chairman of the delegation, said a delegation meeting when the subject will be considered will be held later this week. He said members of the delegation did not comment on the measure.

Going To School

Master Sgt. Clarence Biehn, recruiter in the local Army recruiting office, will leave today to attend the Adjutant General's Recruiting School, Carlisle Barracks, Pa. He will return to duty here March 13.

Deputies' Pay Raise Bill Passes House

The bill to increase the salaries of sheriff's deputies in Allegany County was passed by the House of Delegates yesterday at Annapolis, according to Horace P. Whitworth, Jr., chairman of the delegation.

Known as House Bill No. 166, the measure provides that the Commissioners of Allegany County shall allow $9,780 for the Sheriff to pay his four deputies. Each of three deputies are to receive $2,400 and the chief deputy $2,580 per year. Present salary of county deputies here is $2,160 annually.

The bill has been sent to the Senate, and if it becomes law, Whitworth said, will be effective June 1 of this year.

Frost Bite Victim Is Improving Here

The condition of Carl L. Wright, 16, Despard, W. Va., who had his feet badly frozen during a hitchhiking trek that started in Clarksburg, W. Va., last Wednesday and ended here Friday, remained "satisfactory" at Memorial Hospital yesterday morning.

Local physicians are attempting to save the Wright boy's feet which were frozen so badly that they had turned black. His hands were less severely nipped by the cold.

Emmett Cooper, 21, 329 Central Avenue, was treated yesterday morning in Memorial Hospital for a puncture wound of the right hand. Attaches said he was using a screw driver when the accident occurred.

LaVale Man Faces 5 Charges After Chase And Fight

Hatfield Is Accused Of Assaulting Officer

Five charges have been filed by State Police against James Rudolph Hatfield, School Street, LaVale, who was taken into custody at 7 p. m. yesterday following a chase in LaVale and a fight with a state trooper near the former's home.

State Trooper William F. Baker, who entered the charges, said Hatfield assaulted him after he was arrested on a state motor vehicle law charge and that "considerable force" was required to subdue him.

Baker said Hatfield, who operates a tire retreading business in Cumberland, was driving a pickup truck "all over the road" in LaVale and that he ignored the trooper's red light ordering him to stop.

Instead of stopping, Hatfield turned off his lights and speeded up, police said, and Baker trailed him, sounding the police car's siren.

Hatfield drove to School Street, LaVale, where he stopped near his home, police reported, and then got out of the machine.

Baker informed him he was under arrest on a driving charge when Mrs. Hatfield approached. As Mr. and Mrs. Hatfield talked, Hatfield struck Trooper Baker in the jaw without provocation, State Police said, and a scuffle ensued before Hatfield was handcuffed and taken to the City Jail. At the jail, police added, Hatfield took another swing at the trooper but missed.

Officers said a number of Hatfield's neighbors were attracted to the scene in LaVale by the sound of the siren and watched the fracas.

Hatfield was arrested on two driving charges as well as charges of turning off his lights to avoid identification, assaulting a police officer and resisting arrest.

He will be given a hearing later this week.

Legal Action Is Taken Over Cadillac Toilet

Landlord Seeks Court Injunction

A bill for an injunction was filed in Circuit Court yesterday by Louis LaNeve and Elizabeth LaNeve, against Frank Molinari and the Cadillac Liquor Stores, Inc., to restrain Molinari from placing doorways and a stairway to adjoining property next door, and to prevent the enlargement of a toilet and lavatory between the two buildings.

The bill explains that LaNeve has leased the property at 26 Baltimore Street to Molinari for the Cadillac Lounge, and that the property next door is owned by Nicholas and Mary Spano.

It is claimed that Spano and LaNeve entered into an agreement September 24, 1942, for Spano to use a 9-foot section on an alley or area way between the rear of the two adjoining properties, so a toilet and lavatory could be installed. This agreement was for a period of five years with a five year renewal option clause.

LaNeve claims now, that Molinari and the Cadillac has cut through the wall of the Cadillac building and is erecting a stairway to this toilet and is enlarging the lavatory. He alleges the joining of the properties damages his building and asks an injunction to stop the remodeling and to order Molinari to cease enlargement of the toilet, to cease placing doors between the properties, and to cease constructing a stairway to the quarters.

LaNeve also asks the Court to command Molinari to restore any portion of LaNeve's property removed or damaged and to replace it as it was when he leased the building.

The Court, through Chief Judge William A. Huster, signed an order to cease construction immediately, and to show cause why the bill should not be granted as requested.

The bill was prepared for LaNeve by Capper and Jenkins.

Fort Ashby Man Held Under $500 Peace Bond

John G. Willison, Fort Ashby, W. Va., was committed to the Mineral County jail for a period not to exceed one year in default of a $500 peace bond imposed yesterday by Magistrate C. A. Jewell in Ridgeley yesterday afternoon.

Magistrate Jewell said the hearing was scheduled after the former serviceman's mother charged that Willison threatened to kill several members of the family, including herself, and asserted she had cause to fear that he would harm somebody. Cpl. R. R. Karrickhoff arrested the Fort Ashby man.

Deadline Extended

The deadline for enlistment in the Regular Army of partially disabled combat wounded veterans of World War II in the grade they held at the time of discharge, has been extended from January 31 to March 31, Lt. George J. Gocke, of the local Army recruiting station, said yesterday.

TAKE PART IN REDEDICATION—The South Cumberland Outpost of the Salvation Army, badly damaged by fire several months ago and since repaired, was rededicated with ceremonies last night. Taking part were (pictured left to right) Rev. Carl H. Clapp, vice-president of the Cumberland Ministerial Association; Capt. Lynn H. Wiseman and Mrs. Wiseman, who will be in charge of the outpost; Roy W. Eves, chairman of the Advisory Board of the Salvation Army; Lt. Col. Robert Rose, divisional commander for Maryland and Northern West Virginia; Mrs. Elmer W. Wall, Mayor Thomas S. Post, Major Elmer W. Wall, who is in charge of the Salvation Army here; and Capt. Walter Swyers, divisional Young People's secretary for Maryland and Northern West Virginia.

County Board Takes No Action On Juvenile Home

No Reports Made At Regular Meeting

No further action was taken on the plans for an emergency Juvenile Home here, at the meeting of the Allegany County Board of Commissioners, as Lewis M. Wilson, attorney to the board was absent due to illness.

County Engineer Albert S. Paye, who is preparing estimates on costs of the addition to the County Home and Infirmary property, did not present his estimates. Last week, Wilson was instructed to contact members of the Allegany County delegation to Annapolis, regarding necessary legislative changes, to use an authorized $100,000 bond issue for remodeling the present county property to include Juvenile quarters, rather than construct a new building.

Grant Abatement

The Board granted an abatement on tax assessment to the Campbell Coal Company for two properties which have been "worked out". The abatement covers 32 acres at Hampshire, assessed at $1,930 and three acres at Phoenix, assessed at $180. This practice of granting abatements has been followed, board members explain, when coal companies report coal fields no longer contain fuel which can be mined profitably.

Decline Comment On Tax

The board declined to comment on moves made in Annapolis to have a state sales tax enacted. At least two members, in recent "off the record" comment, said they did not believe the plan was "advisable."

Commissioners of ten Maryland counties, meeting Monday in the state capital, approved the proposal for a general two per cent sales tax to finance the state's expanded governmental needs. Three other counties of the state's 23 approved it with the reservation that areas contiguous to them should also have such a tax.

Wicomico and Kent county commissioners opposed the plan, while Harford declined to vote at the session of commissioners in Carvel Hall.

Seven Not Represented

Allegany, Garrett, Charles, Caroline, Dorchester, Talbot and Queen Anne's counties were not represented at the conference. Washington and Frederick counties were among those favoring the tax.

The Sherbow Plan for distribution of revenues was approved by most of the commissioners at the session. The plan calls for some additional sources of revenue.

The Allegany commissioners accepted an invitation to attend the dinner of the LaVale Volunteer Fire Company, set for February 25 at the Fire Hall.

Robert Smith, superintendent of the County Home and Sylvan Retreat, turned over $50.50 to the board. It was in the possession of a woman inmate, and will be held by the board for part of the funeral expenses when she dies.

County Engineer Albert Paye was authorized to use a power shovel to prepare for erection of a shed at the county garage, for storage of equipment.

Lt. George Vocke conferred with the board regarding Army recruiting quarters in the Union Street County Office Building, and decision was deferred until it is determined how much space is required by other agencies.

Central Avenue Home Is Damaged By Fire

A fire which started in a partition between the kitchen and the bathroom of the home of Houston G. Leath, 332 Central Avenue, yesterday at 3 p. m. caused slight damage to the kitchen and bathroom walls and floors, East Side Fire Company reported. Firemen worked almost an hour to bring the blaze under control.

The same company extinguished a flue fire at the home of Kenneth Rapson, 451 Bond street, at 6:35 p. m., and West Side Fire Company was called to Springfield Boulevard at 1:16 p. m. to extinguish a grass fire. The blaze was under control in about 50 minutes.

Duo Forfeits Bond On Speeding Charges

Charged with exceeding 30 miles an hour on Route 40 in LaVale on Saturday, Allan D. Macy, 14 Greene street, forfeited bond of $6.45 yesterday in Trial Magistrates Court. Albert E. Fisher, Frostburg, forfeited $6.45 yesterday on charge of exceeding 30 miles an hour in Long and the Narrows on Saturday. Both arrests were made by State Trooper George E. Coddington.

In Police Court, Charles McFaggart, Keyser, W. Va., was fined $5 on a careless driving charge. He was arrested earlier in the day by Officer P. M. Crabtree.

"Wake Up, Cumberland" Broadcasts Are Scheduled To Start March 2

Tentative plans for the first six programs of a Cumberland town meeting of the air, in a series titled "Wake Up, Cumberland," were made last night at a meeting of representatives of the five service clubs and three women's civic organizations which are sponsoring the broadcasts.

Mrs. John A. Cupler, II, education chairman of the Cumberland branch of the American Association of University Women, was named permanent chairman of the committee in charge. Vice president is Robert Ebert of the Cumberland Rotary Club; and secretary is Mrs. D. E. Trieber of the AAUW.

Topics Discussed

The first broadcast, scheduled for Sunday, March 2, will consist of outlining the purpose of the series, which is to provide the WTBO listening public with discussions of various topics of interest to Cumberland and Allegany county.

Subjects suggested for immediately ensuing programs are a consumers sales tax, taxation of gambling devices, a liquor control board for Allegany county, home rule, and the need for a county detention home.

After the programs get underway, the audience will be asked to submit suggestions for future programs. The broadcasts are planned for consecutive Sunday afternoons from 4:30 to 5.

The committee plans to meet every two weeks for a general discussion of the preceding program. Mrs. Aurelia Becker, manager of the Cumberland Broadcasting Company, who is co-operating with the group, suggested that recordings be made of each program to provide the basis for discussions on presentation.

It was decided to appoint small sub-committees of the group of 16 persons on the committee, which includes two representatives from each of the sponsoring clubs, to arrange for each program, selecting the moderator and the speakers.

Clipping File Planned

Other topics suggested for future programs include low cost housing, location of a junior college in Cumberland, recreation, smoke control, new industries, river pollution, a crosstown viaduct, new bus terminal, airline service, flood control, santiary districts, rehabilitation of handicapped persons, child guidance in the schools, and increased teachers' salaries.

F. Alan Weatherholt, representing the Optimist Club, wil lbe requested to take charge of a clipping file of articles from newspapers and magazines which may form a basis for future programs.

Station WTBO was named as the permanent meeting place, at the suggestion of Mrs. Becker, and it was decided that the general committee will meet every other Tuesday at 8:15 p. m. The next meeting will be held February 25.

Organizations represented are the Business and Professional Women's Club, Miss Lillian C. Compton and Miss Mary Murray; the AAUW, Mrs. Trieber and Mrs. Cupler; the Exchange Club, John M. Robb and George Tederick; Rotary Club, Porter D. Collins and Ebert; Kiwanis Club, James W. Bishop and Norman Goldblatt; the Woman's Civic Club, Mrs. William A. Douglas and Mrs. George Henderson; the Optimist Club, Weatherholt and H. Wayne George; and the Lions Club, J. K. Snyder and Alvin E. Yaste.

SCOUTING LEADER—E. S. Black, former Petersburg, W. Va., High School faculty member, will become field executive for Potomac Council, Boy Scouts of America, on February 23. Black is now attending the National Training School for Scout Executives at Mendham, N. J.

Petersburg Man Will Join Local Scouting Staff

E. S. Black To Be Field Executive

Earl S. Black, 26, Petersburg, W. Va., will become Field executive of Potomac Council, Boy Scouts of America, on February 23, Kenneth E. Jackson, council executive, announced yesterday.

Black, a former member of the Petersburg High School faculty, is now attending the National Training School for Scout Executives at Mendham, N. J., and is scheduled to complete his course there on February 20.

While Black will have his headquarters in Cumberland, a large part of his time will be spent in the southern section of the council and the remainder in Cumberland. The council embraces Allegany and Garrett counties in Maryland and Mineral, Hardy, Hampshire and Grant counties in West Virginia.

Jackson said a field executive has been needed by Potomac Council for the last 15 years, because of the size of the council, so that scouting can be made available to all boys who desire to become scouts.

Jackson predicted that with Black's assistance work in the field will almost be trebled. Jackson, who has been doing all of the field work in addition to maintaining the local office, will continue to maintain the office and do some field work while Black will spend almost all of his time in the field promoting scouting and cubbing.

Black's work in Cumberland primarily will be in organizing the cubbing program for boys from 9 through 11 years of age. Up to the present time, Jackson explained, Cumberland has not had this program on a large scale because of shortages of manpower and funds.

The addition of Black to the scouting staff is expected to help raise the standard of scouting and increase its activities as well as enlarge the cubbing program, which has been very limited, Jackson pointed out.

Black, former scoutmaster of Troop 63, Petersburg, is married an dhas one child.

S. Russ Minter, local architect, will speak on veterans' housing at the meeting of the Lions Club in Central YMCA at 12:15 p. m. today.

Gettysburg Alumni Club Is Organized For Western Md.

Chauncey Sanner Named President

The Western Maryland Club of the Gettysburg Alumni Association has organized here and plans to participate in the college program to raise $500,000 for a building program at the school.

Chauncey M. Sanner was elected president at the organization meeting of the club Monday night at Central YMCA. Lowell H. Sowers, was named vice president and John McAlpine, secretary-treasurer. Other members enrolled include, Rev. D. F. Brake, John Brenneman, John W. Fisher, George J. Harris, Paul Gipe, Charles L. Kopp, Melvin H. Long, Rev. and Mrs. H. Hall Sharp, Martin B. Sharp, H. Lee Wilcox, and Rev. and Mrs. Justus H. Liesman.

The meeting here was held simultaneously with 58 other Alumni clubs throughout the country, to announce plans for the half-million dollar expansion program at the college.

Sanner said last night that each Alumni is asked to contribute $50 per year for three years to help finance a new women's dormitory, women's gymnasium, infirmary and a chapel. This is the first time in 50 years that any such program has been attempted or undertaken at the college.

The college plans to continue their fund campaign through November, when the drive will be expanded to churches.

Rev. Mr. Sharp was chairman of the committee in charge of the banquet here, and plans are underway to expand the program of activities of Western Maryland Alumni of Gettysburg. A new list of local Alumni is being compiled by Rev. Mr. Sharp.

Waingold Takes Over Alibi Liquor License

The liquor license for the Alibi, corner of North Mechanic and Baltimore streets, has been transferred by Circuit Court judges from Charles H. Whetsell, to Harold M. Waingold.

The business, established here a few months ago by Whetsell and Cornish, is considered among the most elaborate "night-spots" in this area, and was taken over yesterday by Waingold, after the transfer had been approved.

Waingold has appointed James McKelvey, this city, as manager, and plans are to continue entertainment by out-of-town groups as a regular feature.

The building occupied is owned by Waingold, who applied for the license transfer January 17, after he had entered into a tentative sales agreement with Whetsell and Cornish. There were no protests filed against the transfer, so after the required period, it was granted by the court.

Strip Mining Bill Hearing Is Set For February 20

Frostburg Bond Measures Reported

A joint meeting of the Garrett and Allegany county delegations to Annapolis will be held at 4 p. m. Thursday, February 20, to discuss the proposed strip-mining bill which would affect strip-mine operators in Western Maryland, Horace P. Whitworth, Jr., chairman of the local delegation said last night. Persons wishing to be heard on the measure may appear before the delegation at that time.

The bill has been referred to the Allegany and Garrett delegations with Whitworth as chairman of the joint group.

It would stipulate that operators must furnish bond in the sum of $300 an acre with a minimum of $5,000, to be payable to the State.

With certain information to be filed with the Bureau of Mines, the bill would require that within a year after cessation of operation the operator must cover the exposed face of the soil, then plant upon it trees, shrubs and grasses under a plan proposed by the forester of the State. If this is not done, the bond would revert to the State and be used by the forester for reclamation and reforestation of the dug-over lands.

The bill which would provide a county appropriation for the newly organized Ellerslie Volunteer Fire Company was reported favorably out of committee yesterday, Whitworth said.

Two bond issue measures for Frostburg, totalling $75,000, for water and sewer lines extensions were also given favorable committee reports Tuesday.

Boy Scout Troop Is Reorganized

Reorganization of Boy Scout Troop No. 6, SS. Peter and Paul Church, took place Monday night at a meeting in SS. Peter and Paul School when new committeemen were installed.

Edward F. Maybert was named chairman of the committee, and John J. Bender was named secretary. Father Noel holds the offices of spiritual director and treasurer, and Charles Cunningham has charge of camping activities and properties. Lt. George J. Gocke was named to handle training and public relations, and Joseph F. Challinon is in charge of advancement.

In the reorganization, Charles Muir remains as scoutmaster.

While closely affiliated with SS. Peter and Paul Church, the troop will be open to boys of all religions and creeds. A progressive program of training and recreational activities is being planned and a drive will be made to secure young men interested in scouting to assist.

Troop No. 6 is one of the oldest troops in this vicinity, having been active in scouting activities since March 21, 1927.

LOCAL MAN IS JAILED AFTER HEARINGS ON MOTOR CHARGES

Richard W. Litzenburg, 642 Columbia avenue, was committed to the county jail for 40 days last night in default of fines and costs totaling $111.50 imposed by Magistrate Roy S. Bowman, Cresaptown, on charges of driving while under the influence of liquor and of failing to stop at the scene of an accident.

Litzenburg, a 38-year-old garage worker, was arrested at the Celanese plant Monday at 10 p. m. by Trooper G. M. Rotruck after the car he was operating struck an automobile operated by Keith Skidmore, Keyser, W. Va., near Danville on Route 220.

Magistrate Bowman imposed a fine of $100.75 on the drunken driving charge and $10.75 on a charge of failing to stop after the accident. Litzenburg was acquitted of a charge of reckless driving.

Trooper Rotruck reported Litzenburg sideswiped Skidmore's car as the latter stopped near Danville to pick up a passenger while enroute to work at the Kelly plant.

Assault Hearing Scheduled Today

A hearing is scheduled at 10 o'clock this morning in Trial Magistrates Court on a charge of assault filed against John Liakos, 410 North Centre street, by Anton Anthony, 507 Bedford street, authorities said yesterday.

Police said the alleged assault took place Monday in a local funeral home following a funeral.

Rubber Workers Prepare To File For Portal Pay

Convention Delegates Will Be Named Sunday

Quoting Federal Judge Frank A. Picard's "Let us not be understood as holding that all portal-to-portal suits should be dismissed," Local 26, United Rubber, Cork, Linoleum and Plastic Workers of America, CIO, yesterday asked members to file authorization forms so that a portal-to-portal pay suit can be filed for the local.

The union committee said the Kelly local has never pressed its claims in the belief that the gains in the case might not compensate for the possible disruption of harmonious labor relations.

They added that many of the workers felt, after reading account of the Mt. Clemens Pottery Company decision, that the case for the local was lost.

However, after a meeting of the local last Thursday, the committee yielded to the desires of many of its members and decided to process portal-to-portal pay claims, both through filing of a suit and in negotiation with the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company, and to seek authorization from individual members so that the suit may be processed, a spokesman said.

A notice in today's Cumberland News, signed by E. A. Johnson, union president, notifies members that portal-to-portal forms may be filed at the union hall this week and at a regular membership meeting Sunday afternoon.

A union spokesman said there is a divergence of opinion as to the amount of time due but added that the amount will be determined after questionnaires are filed.

Delegates to the District Council Convention to be held in Akron April 12 and 13 will be elected at Sunday's meeting and a special meeting of all division chairmen and committeemen will be held at 2 p. m., prior to the 2:30 p. m. general meeting.

The second meeting of the Labor Education Program, in charge of Harley V. Brown, District 1 representative, will be held at 7:30 p. m. today. Brown said he hopes to organize a beginners group in addition to the advanced classes now being held.

FCC Accepts FM Application For Station WTBO

The Federal Communications Commission has accepted for filing the WTBO frequency modulation application, in the name of the Cumberland Broadcasting Company, according to Mrs. Aurelia S. Becker, manager.

The application, which is now subject to FCC approval, stipulates 3,000 watts output, as compared to 250 watts on the present AM (amplitude modification), Mrs. Becker said.

She explained that FM will increase the listening area of WTBO five times, so that it will reach an audience estimated at two million persons. The listening area will cover a radius of roughly 140 miles.

Cost of installing FM equipment is estimated at approximately $32,000, and will include a transmitter and an 8-Bay vertical steel tower, about 100 feet high, on Dan's Rock, one of the highest points in the coverage area. Necessary audio equipment for the studio is also included in the estimate.

Mrs. Becker said that the installation of FM will mean the elimination of all static, so that the radio audience may listen to programs in the midst of severe thunderstorms with no interference by static. It will also mean that persons living outside of Cumberland will be able to get WTBO programs much more clearly with a higher quality of reproduced sound, whether of voices or music.

FM operation is expected within a year, at the present rate at which broadcast transmitters are being made available by manufacturers.

Senate Passes Bill To End City Property Qualifications

The Maryland State Senate yesterday passed House Bill No. 150, which eliminates property qualifications of candidates for offices in the City of Cumberland. The bill now goes to Governor William Preston Lane, Jr., for his signature.

Introduced in the House by Allegany County Delegate Charles M. See, the measure eliminates property qualification requirements of candidates for mayor and city council. Under existing law, candidates for mayor must have property assessed at $1,000 for two years preceding the election, and taxes must be paid. For council, candidates must be assessed for $500 for two years preceding the election and taxes must be paid.

Several local groups are on record as opposing the measure.

Weather Moderates In Tri State Area

The coldest spell of the winter in this area, which began with the entrance of February, seemed to be breaking yesterday as mercury began rising from points near zero, closer to the freezing mark.

In Cumberland last night at 11 o'clock temperatures stood at 30 above zero. At Thomas, W. Va., 22 above was reported and about four inches of snow melted during the day. Six inches of snow remains. At Deal, Pa., mercury was at 22 above at 11 p. m., and some of the four inches of snow which fell over the weekend had melted.

The weatherman predicts cloudy skies for today, rising temperatures, but possibly snow in some sections.

Weather Report
Increasing cloudiness with little change in temperature today.

6 BILLION BUDGET CUT FAVORED

Welfare Fund May Cause New Miners' Strike

Remedial Law Would Avoid July Crisis

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11 (AP) — The National Coal Association warned tonight a new bituminous coal strike is "inevitable" by July 1 unless John L. Lewis agrees to give up the Miners' Welfare Fund or Congress passes a remedial law.

Forney Johnston, counsel of the Association, gave that view of the situation to a reporter after testifying before the House Labor Committee.

Mines To Be Returned

He said the bituminous coal industry, or at least a substantial part of it, both North and South, "cannot agree" to continue the fund which was set up by the government after it seized 2,300 mines last May. The government is legally obligated to return the mines before July 1.

Johnston also said it would be "difficult" for Lewis to retreat on the issue.

Therefore, he said, it's up to Congress.

He had given the Coal Association's view of the future in somewhat less positive terms during his testimony, in which he asked Congress to remove the protection of federal laws to all strikes over welfare funds, closed shops, or other "improper objects."

Appealing for action against strikes "contrary to public welfare," he proposed that the benefits of the Wagner Labor Act, and the Anti-injunction law, be withheld from workers walking out in disputes over anything except wages or working conditions. Under his plan even strikes over those issues would be "improper" if the public welfare were at stake.

Understanding Necessary

"Congress should understand," Johnston told the committee "that a large proportion of the coal industry, if not the entire industry, or relinquishment of federal control, cannot agree voluntarily to a collectivist pooling of the mine labor of 2,000 unrelated mines for the levy of a tonnage tax by the mine workers for any such blind pool."

This was a reference to the welfare fund. The coal mines now are paying a royalty of five cents a ton into the fund. That was one of the issues in the strike last spring which led to government seizure.

Johnston said the "reasonable certainty" of a new strike would arise "if the unions are permitted to attempt to perpetuate that exaction, and if Congress fails to limit the sanctions for labor disputes and strikes to the legitimate scope of compulsory bargaining, viz., wages and working conditions."

Truman Opposes Rent Increase

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12 — (AP) — Senator Buck (R-Del.) said today he expects his Senate Banking subcommittee to recommend a general 10 or 15 percent increase in rent ceilings, but the White House was reported to be flatly opposed to any blanket boost.

Buck, chairman of the subcommittee investigating rents, told a reporter he believes also that the group will vote to abolish rent ceilings on new houses and housing newly opened to renters.

Shortly afterward Senator Taylor (D-Idaho), returning to the Capitol from a visit to President Truman, said the Chief Executive opposes a flat increase in rents "and there are no ifs, ands or buts about it."

Merchant Seaman Will Sell His Eyes

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 11 (AP) — Harold Goodwin, 43-year-old seaman who helped transport troops into France on D Day, put his eyesight on the market today in a losing battle against the hunger of his family.

"I've sold everything else of value that I own so that I could buy food and clothing for my family and now I have only my eyes left," he said.

"I got the idea that my eyes might be worth something after reading in a magazine that sightless people were in need of new corneas for their eyes," he explained.

Goodwin was hospitalized last September after he fell on a merchant vessel and suffered a spine injury. He has been in bed or on a crutch ever since.

China Faces New Debacle In Economics

SHANGHAI, Feb. 11—(AP)—Chiang Kai-Shek today asked his leading financial and economics experts for suggestions to end the nation's financial debacle as Chinese inquired anxiously, "Is this the beginning of the end?"

Yuan Drops

For the third straight day, the Chinese National currency tobogganed at a record speed, losing as much as 2,000 points in a single hour in relation to the United States dollar. The Yuan (Chinese dollar) plunged to 19,000 to $1 on the black market—a one-day drop of 4,500 points. The official exchange rate is 3,350 to $1.

From Canton to Peiping the Orientals' staff of life, rice, soared. Hoarders cleaned out stock in many shops in Shanghai. In many cities, merchants withdrew their stocks rather than sell for the cheapening Yuan.

The answer to the question, "Is this the beginning of the end?" usually took the form of another question: "If this is a major inflation, what is the end?"

Chiang, presumably as worried as any Chinese, conferred at his presidential residence in Nanking with Premier T. V. Soong and other top experts. A government spokesman declined to comment on the conference or on possible economic measures proposed "because of the possibility of provocative effects in an already confusing situation."

Hold Secret Session

Chinese newspapers said the Financial, Legislative and Economic Committee of the Legislative Yuan (counsel) held a secret session to discuss recommendations that the government halt all transactions in the United States dollar and in gold bars.

There seems to be little question that China is perilously near chaos. But China has lived at the edge of chaos ever since the war ended, so what would be an abysmal crisis elsewhere might be endured by the long suffering Chinese.

Prices soared in all major cities —and presumably in villages—as news reached them that Shanghai prices, always quick to react, went up.

U. S. And Russia Clash In Debating Arms Commission

Austin Demands Quick Settlement

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., Feb. 11—(AP)—The United States and Soviet Russia clashed over motives in the United Nations Security Council today in a long debate on the scope of a proposed United Nations Arms Commission.

Warren R. Austin, United States Delegate, demanded that the council settle the question "now, once and for all" in a way that would prevent any possible attempt to open up the American Atomic Bomb Secrets.

Gromyko Strikes

Andrei A. Gromyko, soviet delegate, struck at Austin for "stubborn" insistence that the Council specifically keep the functions of the Arms Commission and the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission separate.

The Russian said Austin had made it clear that the United States envisaged some future situation in which Russia would take a position in the Arms Commission conflicting with that of the United States and that was the motive behind Austin's stand.

Gromyko also revealed that when the Atomic Energy Commission report comes up in the Security Council he will make a new move to outlaw Atomic weapons.

Austin told the council for the first time in public just why the United States insists that the proposed commission must not encroach on the Atomic Commission.

Calls For Information

Austin said that:

1. The proposed resolution setting up the commission calls for information on armed forces of the United Nations.

2. Andrei A. Gromyko, Soviet Delegate, said in General Assembly debate last December that any such troop and armaments census should include full information on all types

Jew Fights Jew As New Tel Aviv Resistance Opens

At Least Dozen Persons Are Hurt

JERUSALEM, Feb. 11 (AP)—Bomb-hurling Jewish extremises fought anti-terrorist Jews in the heart of Tel Aviv tonight in a battle in which at least a dozen persons were injured, reliable private sources said.

It was the first major clash of Jew-against-Jew in Palestine since British Military forces began the enforcement of extraordinary security measures in an effort to stamp out underground violence. The fighting broke out as police and military forces waited tensely for an expcted new wave of terrorism.

Youths Start Fight

According to the informants, the fighting began when youths "presumed to be adherents of the Irgun Zvai Leumi," an underground extremist group, attempted to storm the clubrooms of Hashomir Hatzair, an outspokenly anti-terrorist Jewish Political Party.

Hurling "Molotov cocktail" bombs —bottle filled with gasoline—into the clubrooms, the attackers started a series of fires. These were quickly extinguished.

During the battle seven occupants of the clubrooms and at least five of the attackers were wounded, the informants said.

The tense Holy Land was made even more jittery when a loud but harmless explosion shook the harbor at Haifa, 50 miles north of Tel Aviv.

There also was a report from a private source that a ship with several hundred Jewish refugees was approaching the Palestine coast apparently in preparation for an attempt to run the immigrtion blockade. This would mark the second attempt in the last few days to get refugees into the Holy Land.

Explosion Explained

The explosion in Haifa harbor was officially explained as the deliberate firing of a depth charge by a port launch. The police officially denied that the port area had been cleared of personnel, although reports from police sources a half-hour before the explosion said a warning had been received of the planting of a bomb and that all residents and workers in the port area were ordered to clear out.

Brennan To Retire

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11 (AP) — Emmett J. Brennan, whose name has been appearing on 14,000,000 checks a month, will retire March 1 as the treasury's chief disbursing officer then.

His name on checks will be replaced by that of Paul B. Banning, a veteran of 25 years in the government.

Program Of Hate, Violence Cited

ATLANTA, Feb. 11 (AP)—A Nazi-like scheme for world domination by the anti-negro, anti-jew Columbians, Inc., was outlined to a jury today by the state as it opened prosecution of the first indictment against high officials of the organization.

"This act of violence was the minor part of a general conspiracy," said Solicitor General E. E. Andrews of a riot charge against Executive Secretary Homer L. Loomis, Jr., of New York.

Conspiracy Charged

He charged that President Emory Burke of the Columbians and Loomis entered into a "general conspiracy" for the organization to establish domination in Atlanta and eventually the entire world as they spread their doctrine of race hatred. He added that "young boys who could be easily persuaded" to do "their street fighting" were enrolled.

Both Loomis and Burke were indicted on the riot charge in connection with the blackjacking last October of a negro, Clifford Hines. A severance was granted on motion of Burke's counsel and the state proceeded with the trial of Loomis.

The riot offense is a misdemeanor, with a maximum penalty on conviction of 12 months in a public works camp, or six months in jail and a $1,000 fine.

Loomis appeared in court wearing the organization's brown shirt with the thunder-bolt shoulder patch. Some four other members were similarly dressed but Burke was attired conservatively in a blue suit.

A veteran who served with the Army's Second Armored Division, Loomis leaned over to confer fre-

Federal Health Bill Challenged By Administration

Insurance Program Asked By SS Board

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7 (AP) — The proposal of Senator Taft (R-Ohio) for $200,000,000 in federal grants for free medical care today ran into revived administration demands for nationwide health insurance.

The Social Security Board, in its 11th report to Congress, called for a health insurance program financed by contributions from workers and employers, in the manner of old-age benefits.

Board Criticizes

The board criticized the "free treatment" theory, declaring that most normally self-supporting persons would prefer a system of prepaid medical care "rather than seek free care after they have been reduced to dependency."

This followed the argument of President Truman's State of the Union message, in which he rejected "charity" methods and asserted that a national health program paid for by the beneficiaries was "the most important recommendation" in his entire social welfare program.

The social security board's report, transmitted by Federal Security Administrator Watson B. Miller, asked these additional welfare measures:

Edison's Family, Friends Celebrate His Anniversary

NEW YORK, Feb. 11—(AP)—The family and associates of Thomas A. Edison joined with plain American citizens, each beneficiary of some of his 1,097 inventions, in a nationwide observance today of the 100th anniversary of his birth.

Dinners, pilgrimages and other ceremonies were held in more than 20 American cities to honor the great inventor whose genius produced the phonograph, incandescent lamp, motion pictures, fluoroscope and fluorescent lamp, and many other marvels.

A message from President Truman to the inventor's widow was read at a luncheon here of the Edison Pioneers, whose members were associates and friends of Edison.

"The world in which we live," the president wired, "would be a poorer place without the heritage which the genius of Thomas Alva Edison gave us as a permanent contribution to our daily comfort and convenience."

Dr. Robert C. Clothier, vice president of the Thomas Alva Edison Foundation and president of Rutgers University, announced at the luncheon a plan for an annual $1,500 scholarship competition sponsored by the foundation. The winner, to be selected each year at final tests at West Orange, N. J., will receive a four-year college course.

At Milan, Ohio, a village of 800 persons where Edison was born February 11, 1847, Assistant Postmaster General Joseph J. Lawler, Jr., presented to Mrs. Madeleine Edison Sloane, the inventor's only daughter, the first sheet of memorial stamps issued in honor of his centennial.

Inland Oasis Is Discovered At South Pole

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

Land 40 Mile Wide

A 40-mile-wide land of lakes region with conical mounds rising 500 feet above the surface in an area completely devoid of ice was located inland in the vicinity of the Knox Coast by fliers of the expedition's western task group reconnoitering in PBM Mariner planes Monday, Capt. Robert S. Quackenbush, Jr., chief of the expeditionary staff, said.

Discovery of the lakes and mounds, which resembled chocolate drops from the air, raised the question as to whether the area might be warm enough to support year-round human settlements comfortably. Expeditionary leaders said they considered the discovery of greatest significance from the standpoints of geology and geography.

Dispatches to this headquarters ship from Capt. Charles A. Bond, commanding the western wing, said the lakes were "of a pea green, muddy color, interspersed with dark blue and light green," and that conical shaped mounds rising 500 feet were dark brown in color.

The reports said there was no smoke seen in the region. The reference to smoke indicated that the mounds resembled volcanic peaks, but no further explanation was given.

The exact location of the area and the number of lakes and mounds sighted were not specified. Bond's dispatches, however, said some of the lakes were big enough for a PBM to land on.

The lake region had a radius of about 20 miles, Bond said, with the width of the area stretching about 40 miles. Photographers' planes took colored motion pictures and still shots of the area.

One Volcano Known

At least one active volcano—Mount Erebus—is known to exist in antarctica. Mount Erebus is located at the western side of the Ross Sea near McMurdo Sound.

The same flights also discovered numerous nunataks or islands of rocks standing above the surrounding ice sheet on the shackleton shelf of ice of the Queen Mary Coast. They also found a new glacier, but the specific positions of all these discoveries were not announced.

Marines returning to the mothership noticed much new ice forming on the sea, Quackenbush said. This might be additional evidence that the new land-of-lakes region was comparatively warm enough to remain free of ice while freezing was going on elsewhere in the same general area.

Father Of Five Admits Slaying Store Employe

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11 — (AP) — Floyd Page Wilson, 31, father of five children, was held without bail on a first degree murder charge today in connection with a holdup-killing carried out to pay a $17 coal bill.

Chief of Detectives Robert J. Barrett said Wilson acknowledged the slaying in a two and one-half page statement and surrendered a .32 caliber pistol as the death weapon. Wilson's arraignment was postponed a week when he was taken before a United States Commissioner today.

Barrett quoted Wilson as saying he accidentally shot Milton E. Lowe, brother-in-law of a chain grocery store manager, during an attempt to seize the store's $10,000 receipts for last Saturday.

The victim, himself the father of three children, was mortally wounded in a scuffle outside a store managed by his brother-in-law, Shelby Funk. The slayer fled and temporarily made good his escape.

Less than 48 hours later, police arrested Wilson after tracking down three clues: an old envelope, a carelessly parked car, and a southern accent.

Police said Wilson first went to another grocery store on the night of the shooting. Finding it closed, he sought entrance by persistently waving an envelope in front of the store window as if he had a message to deliver.

British Plan To Save Fuel 'Not So Good'

LONDON, Feb. 11—(AP)—Great Britain's desperate campaign to build up its dangerously low coal piles proved a failure during the first 24 hours of its operation and the fuel ministry announced gloomily tonight that the public response to the appeal for power and coal conservation was "not so good."

Stocks Dwindle

The fuel ministry, fighting to ease the coal shortages which have shut down thousands of industries and thrown more than 4,000,000 persons out of work in 38 of the 64 counties in England and Wales, said the semi-voluntary coal and electricity savings scheme had failed to augment coal stocks at power stations in those counties.

In the remaining 26 English and Welsh counties, the Ministry added, coal supplies dwindled.

Although Prime Minister Clement R. Attlee, chief of the Labor Government which nationalized Britain's entire coal producing industry on January 1, appealed to Britons Monday to use as little coal, power and light as possible, today's electricity usage was nearly 500,000 kilowatts higher than Monday, the Ministry said.

The usage report indicated the public was disregarding the power saving plan, and caused the ministry to term public co-operation "not so good."

In addition to apparent public disregard of the labor government's frantic pleas for economy, bitter, below freezing weather, which forecasts said would last for "several days" more, hindered sea shipments of coal and caused a drop in production at the mines.

Snow Halts Shipment

Only a trickle of coal was getting through to London via the snow-choked railway systems and over the choppy coastal waters. Because of the weather 125 ships, carrying 195,000 tons of coal, were immobilized at Newcastle, chief coal port.

The Fuel Ministry said further restrictions on the British Public were being considered, including spreading power cuts to all of the United Kingdom except Northern Scotland, the introduction of double summer time and a universal curtailment of street lighting.

Taft To Oppose D. E. Lilienthal As Atom Chairman

Patterson Praises Former TVA Head

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11 (AP)—Secretary of War Patterson made an unheralded appearance before a Senate Committee today to endorse David E. Lilienthal as chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission amid a controversy that threatened to erupt into an historic fight.

Cites Qualifications

Patterson declared that Lilienthal was qualified "by character, ability and loyalty" for the post. The War Department, he added, "has a strong interest in phases of atomic energy development" and the commission posts are "of extreme importance."

Prospects of powerful new opposition to Lilienthal's confirmation sprang up with a report that Senator Taft (R-Ohio) would vote against the Presidential appointee.

Friends of Taft said the Ohio Senator took his stand because Lilienthal is "a new dealer."

Another witness, Dr. Arthur E. Morgan ousted by President Roosevelt in 1938 as chairman of the Tennessee Valley Authority, testified that Lilienthal aspired to be "irresponsibly in power" and had issued "dishonest" public statements.

Morgan, who followed Patterson as a witness before the Senate section of the Joint Atomic Energy Committee, conceded that Lilienthal had "excellent abilities in some ways."

Succeeded Dr. Morgan

Lilienthal succeeded Dr. Morgan as TVA chairman.

Taft himself said he had no public statement at this time. Friends of the Ohio lawmaker represented him as saying that he had no idea what stand the Republican delegation would take generally, but that he would vote against Lilienthal.

Near 2 Billions Would Be Taken Off Army Fund

Gen. Eisenhower Protests Slash

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11 (AP) — A Senate-House Budgetary Subcommittee voted for a $6,000,000,000 slash in President Truman's $37,500,000,00 budget today in the face of an emergency protest by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower against cutting army funds.

Just before the final subcommittee vote the Chief of Staff rushed to the Capitol.

It was learned that he protested that any reduction of army funds would cripple defense plans.

Figures Army Slash

Senator Gurney (R-CD) later figured the Armed forces' shares of the cut at $1,750,000,000.

One Senator said Eisenhower agreed that some reductions could be made in Army funds but that he wanted Congress to know just what would happen.

Certain Army camps must be closed and a large number of civil activities of the Army Engineers will be shut down, the General told the Congressional Budget Makers.

It was learned also that the reduced budget would call for elimination of about half a million persons now on federal payrolls.

A bitter wrangle over the question whether such a slash would impair the nation's defense preceded the vote.

Chairman Gurney (R-SD) of the Senate Armed Services Committee declined to join in the voting, declaring:

"I wouldn't vote for anything that hamstrings our national security."

The 20-man subcommittee approved the budgetary cut by an 8 to 2 vote, with three members declining to ballot. It sent its recommendation up to the 102-member Senate-House Budget Committee for action, probably on Friday.

To Act By Feb. 15

The Congressional Reorganization Act requires Congress to review President Truman's budget and set its own ceiling on federal spending by February 15.

Gurney, as the subcommittee adjourned its tumultuous four-hour session, gave this statement to reporters:

"I did not vote for the motion.

"I shold not want to jeopardize the national security right at the time General Marshall (Secretary of State) has so many problems. I couldn't vote for anything that hamstrings the national security."

Gurney declared the $6,000,000,000 budgetary slash would mean a $1,750,000,000 cut in funds for the Army and Navy.

Former Soldiers Must Return Loot

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11 (AP) — Artistic and historical loot brought home by members of the American Armed Forces is to be rounded up for return, and the government threatens prosecution for refusal to give up any such objects worth $5,000 or more.

The plan was disclosed today in a memorandum drawn up by the State Department and circulated in the War and Navy Departments. It declares:

"The introduction of looted objects of art into this country is contrary to the general policy of the United States and to the commitments of the United States under the Hague Convention of 1907, and in case of objects of a value of $5,000 or more is a contravention of Federal Law. It is incumbent on this government, therefore, to exert every reasonable effort to right such wrongs as may be brought to light."

Jilting British Girl Puts Her Marriage Plans On Shelf Again

WELCH, W. Va., Feb. 11 (AP)—The romantic troubles of Eileen Edwards took a new turn for the worse today with the result marriage plans again were put on the shelf.

Eileen ruefully disclosed that McDowell County Clerk John S. Renn had refused to honor a cablegram as bona fide evidence of parental consent for the London girl to wed William Theodore Crabtree, 19-year-old coal miner of Superior.

Happily, she had announced only yesterday receipt of a cable from her parents in London giving their blessing to the proposed marriage, and said the ceremony would take place Saturday.

With today's new turn of events, she said she would write her mother an air mail special delivery letter asking that she put her approval in her own handwriting. Renn also stipulated that the consent letter should be notarized in England.

Mrs. Edith White, executive secretary of the Red Cross Chapter here, said Renn previously had informed her and Miss Edwards that a notarized consent would be required but that in the excitement and haste the parents apparently had overlooked this stipulation.

The Circuit Judge has authority to act in such matters but he happens to be on his winter vacation in Florida.

Daughter's Birthday Cake Lights Cell Of Mother Held For Murder

DETROIT, Feb. 11 (AP)—A candled cake lit up gloomy old Recorder's Court today as pig-tailed little girl celebrated her ninth birthday with her mother, accused as a murderess.

Sandy-haired Frankie De Vore her slight body clad in a neat, plaid dress, lost the composure that has marked her five months detention in the juvenile home as a witness in the slaying of her father.

She sniffled like any 9-year-old when she embraced her mother, Vera, 37, again. Her tears rolled unrestrained when she opened her birthday presents.

They included a red wool skirt, a white blouse, a little red hat and matching purse, wool gloves, two boxes of candy and fruit.

Mrs. De Vore broke down. Then she regained partial composure and smiled through her tears as her daughter blew out the nine candles on the iced cake.

A few feet away, Judge W. McKay Skillman, his court attaches and a drab collection of petty criminals turned away and fumbled for their handkerchiefs.

Mrs. DeVore is accused of shooting to death her husband, Robert, 41, last October 14 after a drinking party at their home.

Talmadge Force Begins Pushing 'White Primary'

Measure Passes House 133 To 62

ATLANTA, Feb. 11 (AP) — Talmadge leaders swept aside heated but isolated opposition in the State Senate today and began to push through, section by section, the White Primary Bill under which they plan to close the Democratic party polls to negroes in Georgia.

Passed House

The measure already has passed the House by a vote of 133 to 62. It strikes from the State Statutes all regulation of primaries. By its adoption, proponents hope to circumvent a United States Supreme Court decision that the primary is a state election and that negroes must be allowed to participate.

The Democratic primary is tantamount to election in one-party Georgia. With repeal of state regulations, the Democrats plan to operate under their own rules and bar negroes from party participation. Passage of the bill is advocated by Governor-Claimant Herman Talmadge.

Eight of the 51 sections of the bill were approved by majorities ranging from 29 to 14 to 23 to 5 in the Senate today despite vigorous opposition led by Senator G. Everett Millican, who represents the populous Atlanta district.

Millican said the bill would not stand a United States Supreme Court test and added that in addition to the negroes' right to vote "it takes away the rights of the white people also."

Bill Defended

The bill was defended by Senator Alex S. Weaver of Macon, another populous area, who said its sole purpose was to bar negroes from the Democratic ballot. He was joined in his defense of the measure by Senator Vendie H. Hooks, a Baptist clergyman.

Just when the Senate would reach a final vote on the controversial measure was problematical. It first will vote on each section separately, then on the bill as a whole.

Still to be considered is an amendment offered by the Senate's Special Judiciary Committee authorizing a referendum on the proposal in the general election of 1948. Negroes would be given a voice in the bill's consideration under this proposal.

PROUD EXHIBITOR—Four-year-old Marion Schultz is shown with her pet kitten "Hoby" at the Madison Square Boys Club's 25th annual pet show in New York City. She has carefully bundled up "Hoby" as protection against the cold winds, which gripped the Manhattan area.

Chairman Reece Says New Deal Was "Corrupt"

Day Of Reckoning Here He Declares

CHICAGO, Feb. 11 (AP)—Republican National Chairman Carroll Reece declared tonight that evidence is being uncovered that the New Deal Administration was "corrupt, as well as inefficient and extravagant."

"We may expect additional evidence along that line during the coming months," he said in an address prepared for delivery before a Lincoln Day dinner of the Illinois State Republican Committee.

Reece did not elaborate, but went on to say:

Day Of Reckoning Here

"Now the days of reckoning are arriving. One of them occurred on November 5, 1946; another will come in November, 1948. However, at the moment, the task which is presented to the American people is to pull together and by hard work and thrift and self-sacrifice repair the damage which has been done."

Reece said that during the past decade and a half the United States "has strayed far away from the principles enunciated by Lincoln, and far away from the principles under which this nation has attained a position of power and a state of prosperity unequalled elsewhere."

"We have seen the growth in Washington," he added, "of an irresponsible and confused bureaucracy, many members of which seem to be intent upon suppressing, or at least disregarding, the basic rights of our citizens.

"More recently, we are beginning to uncover evidence that, in some parts at least, this bureaucracy was corrupt, as well as inefficient and extravagant. That need not surprise us. Corruption is the inevitable accompaniment of irresponsible power."

The GOP chairman said millions of American citizens are denied the right to vote in southern states and continued:

"I am sure the citizens of Chicago are not unaware of the fact that this intolerant and powerful group in the South has been one of the most powerful allies of the political machine which for many years past has mis-governed and looted this city.

"I feel quite confident that if Abraham Lincoln were alive today, and if he were in Chicago, he would denounce this unholy alliance and call upon the people of this great city to complete the job which was started last November by breaking the power of this machine forever. You citizens of Chicago have a great opportunity to do just that in the municipal election to be held this year."

WHY, SHORE!—Why, shore! Beauteous Elaine Rost, who plays the role of "Patti" in one of those Monday-through-Friday daytime radio serials, paints her own Valentine to be sent to some lucky fellow.

After Hannibal crossed the Alps in 218 B. C., the Romans held possession of Gaul (ancient name of France) until 428 A. D., when the Franks, a Germanic people, expelled them as a governing class, and began the gradual establishment of the Kingdom of France, which then included Belgium and the Rhine valley to the sea, as well as much of Germany.

Allegany County Is Exempted From Bill Allowing Woman Jury

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Feb. 11 (AP)—Bounced about in parliamentary maneuvering, the Woman's Jury Bill—always proposed but never passed—moved today to final passage stage in the Senate, but not before 10 counties were exempted from its provisions.

The Senate went through four roll call votes before the bill went to the printers to be readied for a final vote.

Senator George (D-Queen Anne's) led the assault on the measure with a motion to table it. This was defeated by a 16 to 13 vote.

Then the Senate adopted the Judiciary Committee's favorable report by a similar count, and Senator Kimble, Republican floor leader, offered an amendment to exempt Allegany, Garrett, Carroll and Washington counties from provisions of the bill. It won 15 to 14.

Senator T. F. Johnson (D-Worcester) sought to have the bill made a special order of business for tomorrow, but later he said he would be satisfied if Senate President Byrnes granted ten minutes delay in which amendments might be prepared.

Byrnes granted the time and Johnson came up with the names of six more counties which desired exemption — Queen Anne's, Talbot, Worcester, Howard, St. Mary's and Kent. The adopting vote was 19-10.

Senator Bolton (D-Baltimore County, chairman of the Judiciary Committee, told his colleagues he believed they had had sufficient time to offer amendments while his group considered the bill.

He added, however, that the attorney general advised him the measure would be constitutional if certain counties were exempted.

On the other hand, President Byrnes, in voting no on the amended bill, said that in his opinion it was unconstitutional.

The House, meanwhile, held its longest session to date—more than two hours with much of the time spent in beating down an attempt to amend from the floor a bill providing optional closing of banks on Saturday.

Whether the woman's jury bill would be constitutional at all was a point which Senator Della (D-Balto sixth) said he would raise when it came up for final passage. He said a constitutional amendment might be necessary.

Dr. Horace E. Flack, director of the Bureau of Legislative reference, agreed that Della's point might be well taken.

The Fifth article of the declaration of rights in the constitution guarantees that Marylanders are "entitled to the common law of England and the trial by jury x x x."

The Common Law of England at the time provided for male juries only.

Otherwise, it was a fairly big day in the Senate with 11 more bills introduced and 19 passed.

Churchill's Daughter Weds

LONDON, Feb. 11 (AP) — Winston Churchill's youngest daughter was married today to Capt. Christopher Soames of the Coldstream Guards, in a ceremony attended by 800 government, diplomatic and society leaders.

Waxed paper is merely a thin sheet of paper which has been treated with purified parrafin, a wax similar to that used in preserving jelly. To make it, rolls of paper are fed over rollers into tanks of hot liquid parrafin. Then the paper goes through a squeezing process similar to that of a washing machine wringer, and passes into cold water bath which sets the wax.

Husband Is Held For Questioning In Wife's Death

Denies Knowledge Of Lipstick Killing

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 11. (AP)—Police technicians today took over investigation of the brutal killing, second of its kind here in less than a month, of Mrs. Jeanne French, 40, whose lipstick-initialed, trampled and beaten body was found in a field yesterday.

Her estranged husband, Frank F. French, 47, aircraft plant worker and veteran Marine, was booked on suspicion of murder. He stoutly denied the crime, telling reporters in the presence of police officers.

"Before me and my God I did not harm my wife; I didn't lay a hand on her."

Detective Lieut. Gene Bechtel of the Homicide Division said "his story stands up very well."

Police crime laboratory experts took plaster casts of heel prints, apparently from a man's shoe, found on the semi-nude body of Mrs. French. She was a onetime bit actress, an aviatrix in the 30's and a former nurse.

They hunted for fingerprints on her purse, a partly filled wine bottle, two brown shoes and articles of clothing near the body. They examined Mrs. French's roadster, located in Santa Monica.

Capt. Jack Donahoe, chief of the Homicide Division, said it appeared the killer "got his ideas from the Dahlia case"—the unsolved slaying of Elizabeth Short, 22 year old waitress known to her friends as the "Black Dahlia," whose nude bisected body was found January 15 in a lot about seven miles from where Mrs. French's body lay.

French and his wife, separated since February 2 when he was arrested on a wife-beating charge which Mrs. French dropped the next day, were married two years ago in Jacksonville, N. C.

Columbia Gas Company Seeks To Lay Pipes

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11 (AP)—The Federal Power Commission announced today the Columbia Gas and Electric Corporations' Charleston, W. Va., and Pittsburgh, Pa., groups had asked permission to construct additional natural gas facilities costing $25,492,040.

Announcement also was made that United Fuel Gas Company, and Ohio Fuel Gas Company, also subsidiaries of Columbia, had applied to build a 100-mile 20-inch gas transmission line from the Tennessee Gas and Transmission Company line near Ceredo, W. Va., to Ohio Fuel's Crawford Station in Fairfield County, Ohio, at a cost of $4,398,620.

The Charleston and Pittsburgh groups said greater pipeline delivery capacity was needed to meet demand in markets served by the Columbia Companies, including the Washington Gas Light Company, the Manufacturers Light and Heat Company and the Home Gas Company.

Plans submitted include these construction projects:

By Atlantic Seaboard Corporation and Virginia Gas Transmission Corp., members of the Charleston group, a 268-mile 24-inch pipeline from Cobb, W. Va., to the two companies main line near Rockville, Md.

By the Manufacturers Light and Heat and the Home Gas Companies, a 130-mile, 14-inch line from Manufacturers' Main line at Coatesville, Pa., to Port Jervis, N. Y.

Greek Guerillas Kill 25, Wound 50

ATHENS, Feb. 11 (AP) — Heavily-armed Leftist Guerillas, striking at a Greek village 10 miles from the Yugoslav border, killed 25 inhabitants, wounded 50 and seized 10, a press dispatch from Salonika said tonight.

The Leftists struck at the village of Constania, north of Mount Paikon, the correspondent of the Athens newspaper Embros said.

Mortars were used by the attacking force. The wife of Stavros Euthimiades, a Populist Party member of Parliament, was among the 10 persons seized, the Dispatch said.

The attack was made while a United Nations Commission was in Greece investigating Balkan disturbances. The Greek government has charged that Yugoslavia, Albania and Bulgaria have given aid and shelter to Leftists making raids on Greek soil.

Communists Slay 200 In Bold Raid

PEIPING, Feb. 11—(AP)—Government military leaders moved to bolster the defenses of Peiping and environs today after 3,000 Chinese Communists in a bold raid sacked and burned parts of Tunghsien, 13 miles east.

Military leaders met at Chiang Kai-Shek's Peiping headquarters while the smoke still rose from a dozen Tunghsien buildings put to the torch before the raiders withdrew after several hours of bloody occupation yesterday.

Chinese newspapers reported 200 persons slain in the brief but furious onslaught in which the main attacking force broke through the east gate while others used ladders to scale Tunghsien's walls.

The few hundred defenders put out a hurried call for help and a government armored train, sent out along a spur line ending at Tunghsien, helped rout the Communists.

800 Fight Flash Fire That Wipes Out Part Of Town

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Ark., Feb. 11 (AP)—Eight hundred men and boys joined bucket brigades in this Northern Arkansas County seat town of 1,500 today to halt a flash fire which wiped out a quarter of the business district before it was brought under control.

No one was reported injured.

With water only from wells and cisterns to fight the spreading blaze—a hard freeze two nights ago had burst the town's water pipes—the community's small fire department and volunteer firemen battled for more than two hours to save the rest of the business section and surrounding residences.

No immediate estimate of the damage was available, but 11 businesses were destroyed and a number of others weer damaged.

An explosion occurred when Henry Sutton lit an oil burner in his barber shop at 1:30 p. m.

"After the explosion, the fire spread through the block before most of us realized it," related Harry Dale, editor of the weekly Mountain View Herald and one of the fire fighters he estimated at 800.

"There wasn't much wind, but the flames spread rapidly because we had no powered water to fight them—only water buckets and sand bags."

The same section destroyed today was wrecked by fire August 22, 1936.

quently with his father, a New York admiralty lawyer who resides on Park Avenue.

The older Loomis objected strenuously as the prosecutor told the court the state would prove the conspiracy for world domination. He argued that the statements were designed solely to "flame passion" but his objection was overruled.

Andrews told the jury that Burke and Loomis with their "program of hate and violence" hoped to establish domination of "white gentiles."

"Sections Were Zoned"

Andrews said the Columbians "zoned certain sections of Atlanta" with members in charge to prevent negroes from "hanging around or loitering in white neighborhoods." He said negroes violating their order would be killed and they even "planned to dynamite the city auditorium" and the home of Editor Ralph McGill of the Atlanta Constitution who had been critical of their activities.

Early witnesses testified that Hines was attacked by four members of the organization as he walked down a street. They added that police arrived after the negro had been loaded into an automobile and took charge.

Andrews told the jury Loomis, who did not participate, ordered the Columbians to patrol the area.

PALM SPRINGS, Calif., Feb. 11 (AP) — Kenneth C. Hogate, 49, one of the nation's leading publishers and distributors of financial news, died today in a hospital here. He was chairman of the board of Dow-Jones and Company, publishers of the Wall Street Journal.

The 12,865,518 Negroes in the United States at the last census furnished 45.8 per cent of the domestic service, 26 per cent of sawmill and planing mills workers, 24.2 of tobacco factory workers, 20.2 per cent of hotel and lodging place workers.

From 1942 through 1945, state governments in the United States collected $2,272,000,000 in truck taxes, which was more than the states spent on highway construction, maintenance and administration in the same period.

Congress Should Be Most Cautious On Rent Problem

On the ground that landlords now are practically the only people subject to price ceilings, it would be easy to assume an arbitrary attitude toward the rent control problem, currently a poser in Congress, and contend that these ceilings should be removed entirely. After all, as the argument logically goes, expenses for landlords have risen in about the same proportions as costs to everyone else. Or, a good position can be maintained in behalf of a flat increase for all rentals—10 to 15 percent across the board.

It would be equally easy to make out a case for the maintenance of tight ceilings on all rentals, with the possible exception of what the Senators call "hardship" cases. OPA took notice of some of these cases last year and granted rent increases. The job is to attack the problem, fairly and squarely, in the interest of the general economy. The landlord is entitled to his day in court. Likewise the tenant.

By taking individual cases, good arguments can be made out on both sides. Many tenants are bad news. Whatever profits a landlord may expect from his ownership often are lost because the tenant has abused the property. Some landlords are disagreeable, penny-pinching, out to exploit the property regardless of rules, regulations and ethics. But what about the general welfare?

The outstanding shortage, right now in this country, is the housing shortage. Thousands of families still are holed up in in-the-wall compartments. Thousands are sharing cramped quarters with in-laws, friends and even strangers. Housing is a basic necessity. Its effects on the warp and woof of the national character is tremendous. In importance, it is on the same level with food, medicine and family life.

So whatever Congress does should be done with the utmost care, with the plight of the landlord and the tenant thoughtfully considered, but the risks to the national economy—the welfare of all—even more diligently weighed.

An across-the-board increase would provide relief — perhaps inadequate in some cases — for some landlords who were caught with their ceilings too low. It also would simply cushion the velvet for others—those, for instance, who started under rent control with better-than-average rentals and provided only the barest maintenance throughout the control period.

Congress had better proceed with this problem in an atmosphere of extreme caution, with the plight of the many tenants constantly in mind. The effect of a general increase might provide the pin that punctured the bubble.

Soviet Government Has Broken Another Promise

Russia has broken another promise. At a meeting of the Council of Foreign Ministers in New York last month, Mr. Molotov asked that its next session be held in Moscow. Former Secretary of State Byrnes, before accepting the invitation, asked whether assurances could be given that the same procedure for reporting the work of the Council would be followed as had obtained in Paris and New York.

His inquiry was pertinent, because freedom of the press is not recognized in Russia and few foreign correspondents are allowed to visit that country. But Mr. Molotov, in his reply, said: "The Soviet Government will be happy to see the ministers in Moscow and everything will be done, in spite of the housing difficulties, to accommodate the correspondents and to create the most favorable conditions for their work. They will be able to report from Moscow on the proceedings of the conference as they reported in Paris and New York." On that basis, Mr. Byrnes voted to accept the Russian invitation.

Seventy-three American correspondents have applied for Russian visas for the meeting to begin March 10. The ship for the first leg of the trip leaves New York February 14, and to date not one of the 73 applications has been approved. Now Moscow advises that because of a "housing shortage," only twenty American correspondents can be accommodated —and that includes photographers, newsreels men, radio broadcasters and magazine writers as well as reporters for press associations and newspapers.

By contrast, 2600 press and radio representatives were registered at San Francisco for the first meeting of the United Nations. And the meeting at Moscow is the most important international assembly since the Versailles Conference in 1919. No limitations as to the numbers were imposed at Paris, New York or London. Those cities had housing problems too. But the press is welcome in France, England and the United States. It isn't welcome in Russia, and there is no point in evading the issue.

That the Kremlin wants to discuss the German and Austrian settlements under iron-curtain conditions, if it can, is all too obvious. The housing shortage probably is only the first step toward that end. Secretary Marshall will make a serious mistake, in our opinion, if he permits the Muscovites to get away this initial breach of faith. This meeting was not forced on the Russians. They asked for it. If they are not equal to its obligations, the site can be changed.

The Soviets should be made to understand that, when they give us their word on something, we expect them to keep it. This is a good place to begin driving that home to them.

Proof Of One World

Recent weather conditions are further proof, if any more proof were needed, that we're all citizens of a single world. The weather hasn't the slightest respect for the national boundaries set up by man.

Winds warmed in the vicinity of Bikini gave Montana and Wyoming mild weather the other day, while at the same time cold air from Alaska chilled Cumberland and the eastern part of the United States. Even Florida didn't escape the effects of the Arctic blast.

Of course, this has always been so, although man didn't fully understand the worldwide character of weather until modern times. Swift communication has given him more information on it. This swift communication also is accompanied by danger. Aircraft, for example, can travel about the world almost as freely as the winds.

If man takes the lesson to heart, and learns to get along with neighbors who now are so close, he will be better off than ever before. If he doesn't, the machines that ride the winds may destroy him.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

THE HISTORY OF DIABETES

MOST of us are familiar with the names of Banting and Best as the discovers of insulin. No one knows how many lives the drug has saved and victims of diabetes and their families thruout the world are forever grateful. But vital advances like this rarely "just happen" and are usually the culmination of several centuries of research. Who are the unsung heroes in the study of the disease?

Approximately 1900 years ago Aretaeus of Cappadocia (30-90 A. D.) coined the word "diabetes" (meaning "syphon") to describe a wasting condition in which the patient passed tremendous amounts of urine. He wrote of rapid weight loss, unquenchable thirst, and the fact that the ailment seemed to follow an acute infection. Galen appeared on the scene 100 years later and referred to "a weakness of the kidneys which cannot hold back water."

But ancient Chinese, Japanese, Arabian and Hindu medical men were also making observations on the disturbance and, if anything, understood it somewhat better than their Greek and Roman colleagues. One Hindu physician called the abnormality "madhumeha," which means "honey urine." In other words, he realized that the secretion contained sugar. Avicenna (980-1027 A. D.), the great Arab doctor, went into such great detail that little has been added since his time. He recorded the symptoms, knew that sugar could be found in the urine, stated that diabetes should be suspected in anyone suffering from boils or gangrene, and that it was not uncommon in victims of tuberculosis.

So far, considerable progress had been made even tho the origin was unknown nor were recommendations on treatment offered. Willis (1621-1675) believed that diabetes was a blood disease and in 1776, Dobson demonstrated that the urine of diabetics contained sugar that ferments and that the blood was sweet. The turning point came with Bouchardat (1806-1886). He developed tests for studying the urinary excretions and suggested alterations in the diet such as less carbohydrates and more fats. His patients were encouraged to go on periodic fasts after he noticed that during the siege of Paris, when food was scarce, they did better than at any other time. Claude Bernard analyzed the pancreatic juice and Mering and Minkowski showed that removal of the pancreas of animals caused hyperglycemia.

This was the state of affairs at the turn of the 20th century. Insulin had not yet been produced but physicians were beginning to suspect the pancreas as the seat of the illness. The site was further narrowed down to certain types of cells within this organ, the islands of Langerhans, and the great race to make the extract started.

Zuelzer, Dohrn, and Marxer came closest without actually succeeding. Their preparation resembled insulin, but was so impure that after every injection a reaction occurred. Meanwhile, Massaglia in 1912 attempted to treat the malady with a pancreatic extract. With the appearance of insulin, we were supplied with a safe product that is successful when used intelligently. Physicians all over the world were galvanized into action and the disease was lifted immediately from the "hopeless" class.

RESTLESSNESS

T. R. writes: What causes fidgety legs in a grownup?

REPLY

A restless mind. Sometimes the circulation is at fault.

SPIDER VEINS

L. P. writes: I have small broken blood vessels on the sides of the nose and over the cheekbones. I am not a toper, so don't advise me to give up drinking. Can anything be done about these nuisances?

REPLY

The disorder may appear following injury such as insect bites or squeezing blackheads and is often associated with skin disorders such as acne rosacea. It is more common in women and children with delicate skin and sometimes appears subsequent to prolonged exposure to wind or sun. Occasionally it "runs in families" and now and then no cause can be found. Skin specialists treat the condition by radiation, the injection of sclerosing agents, or electrolysis.

It Says Here

By BOB HOPE

I was master of ceremonies Saturday at the local celebration of the 37th anniversary of the Boy Scouts of America.

At first I told them I couldn't get away from the studio and they should give a merit badge for diplomacy to the scout who issued the invitation. He said, "you have to do it—where else can we get a comedian just exactly the same age as our organization?"

So, naturally, I went. You can't blame me. To an actor a one year error in his age is important.

But am I glad I went. It was an extremely interesting experience. They made me a member of one of their patrols.

Readers who expect fourteen wolf pack jokes to follow had just as well turn the page and get back to the real funny stuff. Try under "houses for sale."

No, sir, they inducted me into the beaver patrol, but I earned the honor—all I had to do was race three beavers in a dam building contest. Of course I won, nose down.

The whole experience made me regret that I wasn't a boy scout, even though it wasn't my fault I didn't make it. Every time I tried to help an old lady across the street she ran for the police, yelling "pick pocket."

I finaly got one across safely, and even then the scout master flunked me. How did I know I wasn't supposed to use the fireman's carry.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Gen. Marshall Makes Negro Officer Feel At Home In White House; Truman's Ex-Naval Aide Works For Installment Buying; Haggling Over Philippines.

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11—During the reconstruction days following Abraham Lincoln's proclamation of emancipation, negroes frequently were invited to the White House.

After this there was a lapse, and the question of White House entertainment seldom arose until the days of Herbert Hoover, who invited Oscar De Priest, colored GOP congressman from Chicago, to tea. This caused a tremendous furor, and, significantly, it was largely congressmen from the party of Abraham Lincoln who made the most comment.

Since then, Mrs. Roosevelt frequently invited colored guests to the White House and the Trumans have done the same. No longer is there public comment, but it remains a fact that a lone Negro guest frequently looks conspicuous and ill-at-ease.

Such was the case when President and Mrs. Truman entertained for the armed forces last week.

As the President and the First Lady made their grand entry down the main staircase, a large assemblage of three and four-star Generals plus the highest Admirals in the Navy stood on either side. General Eisenhower, the chief of staff, and Admiral Nimitz, the highest ranking officer of the Navy, were in the group, together with every other General and Admiral stationed in Washington. It was the greatest conglomeration of silver stars and gold braid Washington has seen in decades.

On the fringe of this glittering constellation stood Brig. Gen. B. O. Davis—the one Negro general in the United States Army.

Seeing him, the new secretary of state, General George Marshall, left the presidential party, ignored General Eisenhower, passed by Admiral Nimitz, paid no attention to all the Admirals and three-and-four-star generals, while he shook hands with General Davis.

Many others in the room would have given their eyeteeth to have been singled out by the most colorful and famous member of the Truman cabinet. They watched as Marshall greeted Davis.

After Marshall broke the ice, various others, led by Congressman Paul Kilday of San Antonio, Texas, stepped forward to shake hands with the negro general.

Note—Col. B. O. Davis, Jr., son of General Davis, is an aviator, now commanding Lockbourne Army Air Base, Lockbourne, Ohio.

Installment-Buying Vardaman

Commodore Jake Vardaman, President Truman's ex-naval aide, now elevated to a lush $14,000 job on the Federal Reserve Board, is waging a hot campaign—indirectly aimed at Federal Reserve Chairman Marriner Eccles—to lift all credit controls on installment buying.

Vardaman, who once euchred himself into the position of getting 10 per cent extra seagoing pay while attached to the White House and comfortably sleeping on dry land, and who ordered Navy enlisted men to paint and repair his home, is a minority of one on the reserve Board. Other members feel that inflation is by no means over and some control over installment buying must be retained.

At present there is no restriction on goods purchased for less than $50. But credit controls still apply to installment purchases, of autos, furniture, floor coverings, and major household appliances, such as refrigerators and washing machines.

Instalment purchasers of such goods costing up to $2,000 must pay a third down and the remainder within 12 months, except for floor coverings and furniture which have a 15-month maturity.

Aside from Vardaman, other members of the federal reserve board feel that these controls against inflation should remain in effect unless Congress acts to the contrary.

Gov. Warren's Hurdle

Gov. Earl Warren of California will be forced to take or refuse a significant political hurdle when he testifies before the House appropriations subcommittee of the Interior Department tomorrow.

Gov. Warren will be cross-examined on the dynamite-laden question of restricting to 160 acres the land any one person can own of a government reclamation area. All the big land interests of California are opposing this restriction. They want to be able to hold more than 160 acres of government-reclaimed land.

On the other hand, thousands of war veterans anxious to obtain small farms of their own want the 160-acre limit retained. The other day, 15,000 people applied for 84 new farmsteads in the Klamath Valley, Ore. Finally 3,000 veterans were sifted out of the 15,000 applicants, and the competition was so keen that, in the end, lots were drawn to see who would be the lucky 84.

The Interior Department contends that when the U. S. Government pays the cost of reclaiming land, the amount held by any one person should be limited. Otherwise, the land, improved at the expence of all the taxpayers, would all fall into the hands of big ranchers.

Note—What will make Gov. Warren's decision difficult is the fact that his close friend, Senator Knowland, whom he appointed to the Senate, has introduced a bill abolishing the 160-acre limitation.

Haggling Over Philippines

With Congress wrestling over a new budget involving billions, President Truman had to devote almost an hour the other day straightening out a relatively "chicken-feed" transaction of $75,000,000. Though small in the amount of cash involved, however, the transaction was all-important to the Philippine islands.

For seven months a $75,000,000 loan authorized by Congress to help rehabilitate the war-torn Philippines has been held up, due to the tight-fisted banker tactics of the RFC and the national advisory council, which must approve all foreign loans.

The national advisory council, headed by Secretary of the Treasury John Snyder, had refused to clear the loan without a guarantee that it would be fully repaid in three and a half years. However, Democratic Congressman Jasper Bell of Missouri, sponsor of the loan bill, argued that it would be "physically impossible" for the islands to repay on such short maturity terms.

Philippin Ambasador Joaquin Elizalde reported that while his government could get by with an initial extension of $25,000,000, chiefly for the upkeep of schools and hospitals, the Philippines would need five years or more to repay the full $75,000,000.

Secretary Snyder and Will Clayton of the state department finally thawed out during the argument and, with some coaxing by the President, agreed to extend the repayment period to five years. They also agreed that, if the Philippines can't pay in that time, the loan will be renegotiated.

Bureaucrats Held "Troublesome Pests Of Hour" By Congressman

By SAMUEL B. PETTENGILL

Congressman Lemke of North Dakota got out his old snickersee and went after the "bureaucratic pencil pushers" the other day. He said: "By snarling the taxpayer in a maze of red tape, they extort more taxes than the taxpayer should rightfully pay . . . Every new complicated scheme brings out a batch of so-called tax experts who thrive on the public's bewilderment . . . The whole system has become a racket."

We will give up the earnings of three months in 1947 to pay for the rent and groceries of the bureaucrats — these "troublesome insects of the hour," as Edmund Burke would call them. Isn't three months enough? Ah, no. "The lucrative business of mystery" must be paid for also. We must spend hundreds of millions more hiring experts, soothsayers, necromancers, and examiners of entrails to make a stab at what these endless webs of words might mean. And then, in utter weariness, we throw up our hands, paying more, probably, than we should, rather than go through the agony of explaining what we thought they meant, perhaps three or five years from now.

Would Pension Lemke

Lemke, go to it! If you can get for America one single night of sleep unbroken by the endless zingzing of these insects, we will pension you for life!

But, Congressman, you'd better start on your own colleagues! A United States Senator the other day spoke with harsh sarcasm of the "primrose path of tax reduction!" Ye Gods, has it come to pass that taxpayers have no right even to gripe?

Big Government, the curse of every civilization since time began, is rolling along. Do you remember the scorn poured out on the "Pharisees" and "Publicans," or tax gatherers, in Bible days? How a decree went out from Caesar Augustus that "all the world should be taxed"?

The American people have lucid intervals at times when they see through the big new racket and lifetime career of making jobs at the public trough. But one has to admit that these insects may finally break the spirit of our people, as they are doing in England, until everyone is too tired, too beaten, too apathetic to fight any longer against the bugs that suck their blood.

For myself, I claim that an honest-to-God humanitarian would exert himself, to make it possible for wage earners, farmers and school ma'ams to keep what they earn rather than tax this and deduct that until there is not enough left in the pay envelope to build a nest egg, or a house.

Selfishness vs. Unselfishness

Just why it is selfish for you to keep and spend your own money, and unselfish and noble for some bureaucrat to spend it, is a mystery too deep for me.

But until, and unless, you taxpayers get as fighting mad at these "locusts who eat our substance" as our Revolutionary forefathers did in 1776, we may win an occasional election, but lose the war.

New Dealers are worming their way into the Republican Party. They are all the more dangerous because it takes still more of our time and strength to pull their disguises off.

All over the world, government is becoming the master of men—all under the beautiful slogans of "humanitarianism" and the "social gospel."

The individual means nothing to these professional Pecksniffs. They "would make the world so perfect that no one need be good." They would cure the selfishness of the individual by substituting the greed of the group.

Meantime, crime, divorce and juvenile delinquency march on—waving banners!

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11—Congress is undecided as to what kind of law to write to take care of presidential succession. President Truman, with commendable frankness, has spoken of the delicacy of the situation that exists and has recommended that a law be passed permitting the Speaker of the House of Representatives to succeed the President whenever there is no vice president.

Mr. Truman said that the presidency should go to some person elected by the people and not to a cabinet officer as provided under present law. But, it is contended, the speaker, while elected by the people from his district, has in no way been selected by any people's process in any national method of selection.

This brings up a simple solution which it seems strange that Congress has never adopted but which is the obvious answer. The Constitution itself provides for a method of selecting a President when there is no clear majority in the electoral college for any of the candidates for president or vice president who have been voted for in a national election. It was foreseen by the founding fathers that there might be a three-corner or even a four-one ballot as a unit for a candidate, of any group or faction or bloc would receive a majority.

What Constitution Provides

So the Constitution says that soon after such an election deadlock, the House of Representatives shall go into session constituting itself as an electoral college. Each state delegation then is required to poll its members and each state votes one ballot as a uit for a candidate. In case of a tie, a half vote is cast. This method was used in the famous Tilden-Hayes contest in 1877. It gives the people's legislature a chance to pick a president and for public opinion to function, and this is in consonance with the systems that have prevailed in parliamentary government for many centuries.

But, it will be asked, what provision can be made for the handling of the executive power at the White House until the House of Representatives does act? It took several weeks, for example, before the House picked Rutherford Hayes in 1877. The answer is merely to amend the present law so that the President Pro Tempore of the Senate shall hold the office of President of the United States temporarily—that is, until such time as the House of Representatives shall have chosen a President.

The Congress may by law provide for presidential succession and, at present by a law passed in 1886, the secretary of state is designated to succeed when there is no vice president. From 1792 to 1886 it was the president of the Senate and then the speaker of the House who were to be in line of succession. Since Congress was given full power by the Constitution to determine the method of succession and to change that method, whenever it felt change was desirable, there is no constitutional barrier to the selection of an "acting" president who shall serve merely until the House of Representatives makes a selection. It would be a step incidental to the selection process.

Held Mistake to Elect Speaker

It would be a mistake to permit the speaker of the House to become "acting" president because his services will be needed in presiding over the House while a president is being selected to serve out the unexpired term of the chief executive who will have died or become disabled. The presiding officer of the Senate would be a neutral trustee in such circumstances.

Incidentally, in the twentieth amendment—usually called the "lame duck" amendment—provision is made that "Congress may by law provide for the case wherein neither a president-elect nor a vice-president-elect shall have qualified" at the time fixed for the beginning of the presidential term.

This shows clearly that is has been intended to give Congress the right to choose a president when unusual circumstances arise.

It has been suggested that the House may be Republican at the time when a Democratic president and vice president have died or become disabled and that the executive power would pass to the opposite party. This is true, but if the people have changed control of the House, it would mean that an election by the House would be in tune with the national will at the time the vacancy was being filled, and this in line with the trend of representative government anyway—toward methods of choosing a president by the national legislature in accordance with the people's will at the time the vacancy occurs.

I'd like to add my two cents to Winchell's attack on bum dialecticians.

I want to discuss it, not only as a man who hates intolerance, but as a showman who loves good entertainment.

Let me start with the flat statement that, without exception, the fellows peddling race ridicule are inferior comedians and midget talents. No top performer on Broadway today is telling the gag about Rastus and the chickens. No real star in the movies reaches for the easy laugh about the moth in Sandy MacPherson's wallet. No big radio funnyman is telling the one about the Jew who burned down his shop for the insurance. These corny cracks come only from the mouths of second-raters.

Billy Rose

These jokes not only make me mad—they make me sleepy. I laughed at them twenty years ago. I yawned at them ten years ago. I winced at them five years ago. Today they nauseate me. Their punch lines were telegraphed long before Morse.

You don't hear them from the Bobby Clarks, Danny Kayes, Ethel Mermans and Bea Lillies. The race crack is the crutch of the stumble bum who is too scared, too stupid or too stingy to lay it on the line for good material. You hear it from the vaudevillian who helped kill vaudeville, the Monster of Ceremonies at the Flyby Night Club, and the radio miss-out who owes Hooper ten points. I don't know whether Bob Hope, Edgar Bergen and Fibber McGee are socially conscious. I do know they're allergic to obscurity.

I'm not suggesting Fred Allen get rid of Mrs. Nussbaum, or Jack Benny dispense with Rochester and Kitzel. I am suggesting these two highly talented gentlemen make sure those yocks aren't knocks.

• • •

Now, don't start telling me about the dear, dead days of Potash and Perlmuttar, and Lew Dockstader. In today's show business, they wouldn't gross enough to pay off the stagehands.

A misguided movie company recently remade "Abie's Irish Rose." After looking at the grosses, they're thinking of cutting up the film for mandolin picks.

I've made a lot of coffee and zvelback out of show business, and I think I know what I'm talking about when I level on the broken-syllable boys. Before the war, most of them didn't work two weeks in fifty. During the war, these brassy, not-so-classy comics got their chance. Two hundred dollar talents got up to two thousand a week. It's my guess two hundred will look pretty good to some of them two years from today.

If I were managing one of these alleged comedians, I would first wash out his mouth with the Bill of Rights. I would tell him that if a gag is truly funny, it doesn't matter whether it's told about a Frenchman or a Choctaw Indian. I'd point out that the top attractions in the cabaret business—Olsen and Johnson, Milton Berle, Joe E. Lewis and Jimmy Durante—have gotten rich without resorting to the Pat-Sandy-Moe routines. I would read him the long list of entertainment greats who never settled for the laugh that hurts.

• • •

I would prove to him that the fabulous moneygetters, from Chaplin to Abbott and Costello, depend on jokes rather than jeers.

I would make him hang the stale-joke formulas on his dressing-room wall, and warn him to steer clear of them if he wants his name in lights. Here are a few:

Negroes carry razors, get scared in graveyards and rob hen coops. ("Nossuh, Boss, nobuddy heah but use chickens.")

Englishmen have no sense of humor, and their names are 'Erbert, 'Awkins and Halice.

Jews drive a hard bargain. ("Why'dja buy an all-day sucker at four in the afternoon?")

Irish get drunk and fight (". . . and that's why paving blocks are called Irish confetti.")

Greeks run restaurants. ("We got two kinds opple pie, opple and pineopple.")

Scotchmen are stingy. ("Thanks for savin' me bonny boy from drownin', but where's the lad's hat?")

• • •

And, since this column appears in several papers outside the U.S.A.—

Americans are money-idolizing mugs who are browbeaten by their wives.

Get this straight. Nobody—Winchell included—objects to the use of dialect when it doesn't ridicule. Everybody who knows the score objects when it is used to point up stories which would delight Julius Streicher and Theodore Bilbo.

In my book, it's not only bad taste—it's bad box office.

Today's Talk

The Sense of Wonder

I hope that I shall never lose my abiding sense of wonder. If I do, then surely I shall awaken to the fact that I have a lost youth!

The same wonder what appeared to me as a boy remains with me as a man. The night sky, the nourishing power of the Seasons, the rotation of the Seasons, the planting of seeds, and their rise from the good earth with their buds and blooms and intricate formation and coloring of leaves, always fill me with wonder. Every flower to me is a miracle. The brilliant feathering of many of our birds, especially of our tropic varieties, breeds wonder in our mind, the moment that we look upon them. The peacock has a right to be proud and vain over the inheritance of beauty that he owns. Even his gorgeous garment is a thing of wonder.

People who carry this sense of wonder about with them, all through their lives, never could be tempted into a pessimistic society. No wonder the Psalmist exclaimed as he looked into the heavens at night, "What is man?" In humility he looked with wonder upon the universe and then speculated upon the importance of mere man in such a creation.

We look, and meditate, as we view great planes now plying the sky, thousands of feet above the earth—a thing that scoffers once said was but an idle and foolish dream. We wonder about the human voice traveling across the oceans, through nothing but the air, and we wonder in like manner as we take our telephone and talk as intimately to our friends as though he were a few feet from us. We wonder about the songs of birds and the antics of animals at play. Wonder and delight are the companions of childhood, and those who retain them into their maturer years never really die old. They merely take up a new trek, initiated by their birth! Emphasizing immortality.

When we cease to wonder, we cease growth, becoming troublesome drones in a world of activity, enterprise and opportunity. It is this sense of wonder that inspires the inventor, the scientist, the geologist, and the astronomer. And it makes healthier, happier individuals of us all!

State Forestry Law Is Becoming Model In Nation

Conservation Plan Proving Profitable

In the nationwide campaign to preserve forests for permanent use and profit, Maryland is very much in the spotlight, William H. Johnson, district forester, commented yesterday. What has put her there, he declared, is the new forestry law enacted by the Legislature in 1943, which has attracted national attention, and which has served as a model for a number of states.

This act provides for timber cutting practices designed to secure sustained production of commercially valuable tree species on Maryland's 2,700,000 acres technically classified as woodland. The rules and regulations established by the Commission of State Forests and Parks under the terms of the law, Johnson emphasizes, are few in number and relatively simple. It is not too much to say, he asserts, that a good part of the country is alert to see how they work.

They can be worked out to the satisfaction of everyone concerned, Johnson believes, through co-operation on the part of timber owners, timber operators, and the Department of State Forests and Parks. Speaking for the Department, Johnson states:

"We think we know how a timber owner can dispose of his mature trees for the most money, and still retain a healthy young stand for future returns. We offer a timber marking service, free up to 25 acres, designed to accomplish this. We also think we know a little something about the problem that confronts sawmill operators, and we offer a separate service, entirely free, in this connection.

"The main fact is that the Department of State Forests and Parks has the facilities and is prepared to do its full part in making the forestry law an unqualified success. It urges timber owners and operators to call upon it for advice and assistence. Simply write the district forester, whose address is Court House, Cumberland, Md., or pay him a call. We need to show the rest of the country that Maryland can handle its forest problems with no outside help or complusion, say, from the Federal Government."

4-H Clubs See Films On Forestry Program

A program of education and entertainment has been worked out by representatives of the Department of State Forests and Parks for members of 4-H Clubs in this county, and Brooks Bodkin, county forester, has been showing films, giving demonstrations and lectures to a number of the clubs.

Last week, 4-H clubs at Pleasant Grove, Flintstone-Piney Plains and Union Grove were visited by Bodkin and the schedule for this week follows:

Wednesday; Eckhart - Winchester Road Club, Thursday and Rawlings, Friday.

Joseph Steger, assistant county farm agent in charge of County 4-H activity said there is wide interest in the program and it is proving highly beneficial to the boys as well as to the state and county, for the development and protection of forests and woodlands.

$143,127,000 Is Bid For "Inch" Pipe Lines

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11—(AP)—The government was offered nearly the fully original cost of the Big Inch and Little Inch pipe lines—a $143,127,000 cash bid by the Texas Eastern Transmission Company of Houston.

This offer from a company proposing to use the lines for natural gas movement topped six "valid" bids opened by War Assets Administration officials in their second effort to get a "fair" price for the Texas-to-New York tubes, built at a cost of $145,800,000. Five bids were ruled out.

House Sergeant-At-Arms Indicted For Fraud

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11—(AP)—A federal grand jury today indicted Kenneth Romney, sergeant-at-arms of the House for 15 years, on a charge of seeking to "cheat, swindle or defraud the government" to conceal a $143,863 shortage in his accounts.

Conviction on the three-count indictment would carry a maximum penalty of 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine on each count.

The shortage came to light early in January when Romney, who had been sergeant-at-arms since 1931, turned over the office to his Republican successor, William Russell.

Nurse And Race Figure Sentenced For Forgery

BALTIMORE, Feb. 11—(AP)—Judge Joseph Sherbow ruled that "infatuation—not fear" drove Bertha Mae Baker, 33-year-old nurse, who her attorney said, played a Trilby to a race-track figure, Svengali, to forge more than $37,000 in checks in her aged patient's name.

He sentenced Miss Baker to 18 months in the State Reformatory for Women. Her co-defendant, Alfred C. Verfaillie, 23, of Methuen Mass., was sentenced to four years in the State Reformatory for Males

Miss Baker had pleaded for probation on the grounds she was driven by fear of Verfaillie in forging 90 checks in the name of William J. Sellick, 85, of Greenwich, Conn., her patient at the Maryland General Hospital.

Old Bailey Court To Be In Movie

LONDON, (AP) — Alfred William Burt, whose everyday job is taking care of the great, gray criminal court building which the world knows as Old Bailey, is going to Hollywood to make a movie.

Perhaps not exactly make a movie, but to keep one straight in depicting the authentic British atmosphere, Burt said as he rushed about clearing his desk in preparation for sailing in the S.S. America.

Producer David O. Selznik wanted a replica of Old Bailey's No. 1 court room, where many a British murderer has heard the pronouncement of doom. To help Director Alfred Hitchock Burt has sent dozens of photographs and measured the space, now he will be technical advisor for the picture.

Gunsmith Course Is College Plan

TRINIDAD, Colo. — (AP) — A two-year course in gunsmith training, believed by school authorities to be the first of its kind in the nation, is to open late this month at Trinidad Junior College.

In announcing the new course, President Dwight C. Baird said the college had received inquiries and applications from 22 states. Many of these came from former service men whose interest in firearms had been awakened during the war and who wanted to make a life's work as gunsmiths.

The idea for the new course came from P. O. Ackley, nationally known gunsmith and operator of a Trinidad gunshop. He received many inquiries from men wanting to learn his trade and, not wishing to undertake the training of apprentices himself, he referred the applicants to the college.

THANKS

Here is a message from the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Co.

WE are pleased to announce that, with the moderating weather, the critical gas supply situation has been considerably improved. Gas pressures in our lines have built up substantially. Both domestic and commercial users now have normal supplies of gas and it will not be long before industrial users will also have gas service again.

TO all who cooperated with us during the past few days by postponing their laundering, limiting their use of hot water and by conserving gas in many other ways, we want to express our sincere thanks.

YOUR cooperation has helped us immeasurably over a very critical period.

They were given by Mrs. Ethel Bruce, Program chairman, assisted by Mrs. Hazel Neal and Miss Mary Apple.

It was pointed out that they were born in California, of parents of Spanish extraction, and began their career at an early age. He has a special interest in "Spanic" music and "gives a marvelous interpretation of the native music of South America." The South Americans appreciate the fact that he understands and can interpret their music more than any other person not a native.

Teresita, the speakers explained is especially credited for having an appreciation of the true meaning of the South American dances. She was so popular, personally, in Argentina, that secrets of the native ritual dances were revealed to her. Her especially noteworthy accomplishment is the "La Cueca" national dance of Chile. Two other notable dances, she will give here are the "Deer and the Wolf," and the "Dance of Old Men," which is a popular well known dance in South America, and usually done by three young men accompanied by one playing a native string instrument.

Speaking of her costumes, it was pointed out that they are elaborate and authentic reproductions of the South American ceremonial costumes. She designs her costumes herself, even to the colors, which have symbolic meanings to the people of Chile and Argentina. One which she will wear here next week weighs 25 pounds.

Scheduled for today is a $25,000 damage suit against the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, by Charles A. Gloyd, a former maintenance-of-way employe, who seeks damages for the loss of his right eye, following a mishap while at work for the company.

Gloyd, represented by Edward J. Ryan and William L. Wilson, Jr., said he was engaged in pegging cross-ties October 11, 1945 near the Okonoko tower, in nearby West Virginia, when a piece of metal flew up and struck him in the eye. It was necessary to remove the eye eight days later in a local hospital, he asserted.

Gloyd, who charged that the company was negligent in furnishing him with defective tools and material, brought the action under the provisions of the Federal Employers' Liability Act, passed by Congress in 1908. The company is represented by William A. Gunter in the litigation.

Mrs. Gladys Tewell today filed suit for an absolute divorce from Ralph Tewell.

Mrs. Buena A. (Wells) Lucas, 22, of Frostburg, has been granted an absolute divorce from Eugene V. Lucas, a veteran, in a decree signed by Judge Huster.

(2) Assembly Representation; (3) Chesapeake Bay Bridge; (4) Traffic Safety; (5) Administration of Criminal Justice—Uniform Arrest Act and Uniform Pistol Act.

Thomas B. Finan is chairman of the Jaycee Legislative Committee, and was assisted by Kenneth S. Hopwood, C. S. Catherman, Jr., Kenneth F. Gerard, C. William Gilchrist, Hugh D. Shires, Presley W. Mauk, A. Derr Golladay, James Wilkinson, Harry Kauffman and William L. Wilson, Jr., committee members. The report has been approved by the committee, the Jaycee Board of Directors and the general membership, and represents weeks of work, survey and study.

Home Rule

Under the proposals for Home Rule legislation the report states:

"The Cumberland Junior Association of Commerce has recommended home rule for Cumberland for over seven years. The obvious advantages of home rule in modernizing the State Legislature so it can confine its business to matters of statewide importance have been brought out. Nor is it necessary to recite again the well known fact that local autonomous governing bodies are more vitally concerned and better prepared to deal with Cumberland matters than some group from the Eastern Shore, for example.

"Our Legislative delegation has asked for qualifications and definitions of the term "Home Rule." It might be best to answer their specific questions and point out thoughts of this committee.

"First—We do not believe that home rule should mean the establishment of separate courts, a separate health system, a separate educational system for the City of Cumberland.

"Second—We feel that Cumberland should reserve the power to control its own City Police and Fire Departments.

"Third—We feel that there should be a limit on the bond indebtedness and on taxing powers for general purposes.

"Fourth — We do not mean to couple the counties with the cities for these home rule purposes at this time, although the possibility of county home rule should be studied. Chartered counties are provided for by Article 25A of the Maryland Code.

"Fifth—We believe that home rule should now be granted Cumberland on a basis of legislative enactment with the further proviso that a home rule constitutional amendment be presented so that this constitutional change can be submitted to the voters in a referendum election, thereby giving Cumberland constitutional home rule."

Recreation Bond Issue

The committee recommends the adoption of legislatoin sponsored by the Mayor and City Council of Cumberland requesting the passage of $150,000 bond issue for recreational purposes.

It was further recommended in this phase of the report, that the Legislative delegation scrutinize the Juvenile Judiciary System, with the view to adoption of the "Youth Correction Authority Act," as the best application of a plan to save future generations of the state.

"The Youth Correction Authority Act," the report explains, recommended by the American Bar Association, American Law Institute and the Youth Justice Committee, stresses flexibility, treating children as individuals and emphasizing certain intangibles which will turn the juvenile delinquent into a friendlier member of society. Since the Act has a compulsory segregative system for juveniles, adequate facilities for juvenile homes will be incorporated into the broad aspects of the act."

Daylight Saving Time

The Jaycees went on record favoring Daylight Saving Time for Cumberland, and urged the delegation to enact legislation adopting state-wide daylight saving time or in the event state-wide legislation was unsuccessful, to pass a public local law enabling Cumberland to adopt daylight saving time.

The report mentions that Baltimore adopted daylight saving time for 1947 as part of its home rule legislation. Hagerstown had daylight saving time through 1946 and plans it for 1947. Pittsburgh, also has it each summer. A bill is now pending in Congress to make it possible in the District of Columbia, the report outlines.

Sherbow Report

The committee endorsed the Sherbow report for redistribution of state revenues. The committee believes however, the report leaves a gap on revenue to be raised.

"This committee suggests as an additional source of revenue, license fees and heavy taxation on gaming devices, games of chance and gaming. This group does not pay its way now. It should," the report states.

Education

In recommending increased pay for teachers, the report states, "the paramount issue of today would seem to be in the field of education. To phrase it as simply as possible, it is necessary that we have good teachers and enough of them. To meet this criterion, we must be able to offer our teachers provision for more than a so-called 'psychic reward'. They must be given salaries comparable to similar professions which have gone through analogous periods of training and which have been somewhat similarly equipped.

"It is suggested that a state-wide minimum base of $2,000 be granted with contemplated county grants to increase this $2,000 so that the $2,400 figure could be approximated.

The Jaycees recommend uniform schools, smaller classes, and a system of low tuition junior colleges. Expansion of the state educational system of colleges and other higher institutions is recommended to meet "the ever-growing demand for higher education of returning veterans."

Savage River Dam

The report includes a recommendation that the Allegany County Delegation in the General Assembly, sponsor the adoption of a resolution by the Assembly, requesting state representatives in the House and Senate of Congress, to direct their best efforts towards getting the necessary appropriation for the completion of Savage River Dam, and to have this appropriation included in the 1947 budget.

This would move the appropriation up a year, and would enable work on the dam to be completed sooner, as the committee understands that it is presently contemplated to include the federal appropriation for the project in the 1948 budget, it is explained. "It is estimated that one million, nine hundred thousand dollars is needed to complete this project, which terminated in 1942 at the direction of the WPB," the report explains.

Term Of Office

Under state-wide legislation, the local Jaycees urge that legislation be enacted to limit the term of office of governor to two consecutive terms for any one man.

The committee also recommends adoption of legislation which would provide more equitable representation than now exists in the General Assembly for densely populated counties, such as Allegany.

The committee recommends streamlining of certain laws to prevent crime and to aid in apprehension of criminals. It is cited there is a nation-wide increase in crime and Maryland is affected. The uniform pistol act, which would provide for the registration of all firearms, is endorsed.

The uniform arrest act, which would provide greater protection for police and other arresting officers is also recommended for passage by the Jaycee committee.

Veteran's Wife Seeks VFW Help In Finding Home

The local housing shortage constantly comes to light, and numerous persons as well as various organizations are frequently asked for assistance in helping some one find living quarters.

Commander Raymond Reynolds, of Henry Hart Post No. 1411, Veterans of Foreign Wars has received a letter from a local woman, appealing for help in finding a place to live, preferably a small apartment. Henry Hart Post has been unable to assist her thus far, so Commander Reynolds has turned to newspapers in the hope this woman's problem might be solved.

The letter states in part, "Maybe you will find this letter a little out of the ordinary and then you may not. I know that the problem I have before me is one that seems quite common to veterans and their families.

"My husband is a member of Henry Hart Post of the VFW. At the present time he is serving aboard the USS Tanner, but is due for discharge in two months. My problem is one of trying to find a place for us to live.

"I have been able to find a few apartments but the landladies would not rent any of them to me because of the fact that we are expecting a baby. Some would permit pets, but will not rent to families with children.

"Would you please help me? I am now living with my parents, and they are very kind to me. But when my husband returns we have no place to go due to the fact that our house is over-crowded now.

"I have never asked help from anyone, other than a member of my family before, but I am asking now.

"I desperately need two or three rooms, furnished or unfurnished. If there is any possible way would you please help me find them?"

Commander Reynolds said that any person who will rent this young couple a couple of rooms, should telephone him at his residence or at the VFW post headquarters.

Three Men Enlist For Army Service

Three men enlisted in the Army yesterday at the local recruiting station, according to Capt. Laurence M. Bairstow, officer in charge.

Sgt. Kenneth F. Mulledy, Romney, W. Va., a veteran of four years service, signed up for three years in the Air Forces.

Ronald Lee Uplinger, Bowman's Addition, enlisted for 18 months.

Herman E. Harold, 61 Willow Avenue, Keyser, W. Va., who served two years in the Navy, enlisted for three years in the engineers. He held the rating of machinist mate, first class in the Navy and was given a sergeancy in the Army.

The city of Charlotte, N. C., was named for Princess Charlotte, wife of George III.

Small Bungalow Destroyed By Fire

A small bungalow located near Oldtown was completely destroyed by fire that broke out yesterday morning while the occupants, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Collins, were away from home.

Baltimore Pike Volunteer Company and District 16, Oldtown Road Company responded to the fire in the structure owned by M. E. Dullabaun, 200 Humbird street, the loss was covered by insurance.

Mr. and Mrs. Collins found the house razed when they returned home yesterday morning after spending the night at the home of Mrs. Collins' parents in nearby Green Spring, W. Va.

Authorities were called to investigate reports a woman was missing after the fire destroyed the home but the reports were found to be without foundation. Officers were told a curtain apparently was ignited by an electric hot plate in the kitchen.

Sheriff Edward R. Muir, Deputy Edgar M. Lewis, County Investigator Terrence J. Boyle and State Trooper Walter L. Wilt investigated. Collins is employed as a warehouseman by Ralph Sell, local food distributor.

Local Man Joins Parachute Group

Hetzel K. Boden, 218 Oak Street, is enrolled in the two-year aeronautical engineering course at Northrop Aeronautical Institute in Southern California.

Boden was graduated from Fort Hill High School in 1941 and served in the Army Air Force three years. He spent nine months in pilot training. Prior to entering service he worked as a machinist at the B. & O. Railroad shops here.

At the completion of the Northrop Institute's course of study Boden will be graduated as a qualified aeronautical engineer and may then be employed by one of the major airlines or aircraft manufacturers. He will be schooled in practical aspects of engineering, using actual aeronautical projects, during the Institute's courses which are approved by the Veterans' Administration for ex-servicemen under the G. I. Bill of Rights.

Northrop Aeronautical Institute is a division of Northrop Aircraft, Inc. Boden is receiving his education in the school's new buildings adjacent to Northrop's production facilities where development work is constantly being conducted on advanced power-plant designs and revolutionary types of aircraft such as the famous Flying Wing.

Marine Corps League Seeks Beer Permit

Another application for a Class O club license to sell liquor, wine and beer to members has been filed in Circuit Court by Francis K. Finan Detachment, Marine Corps League, 120 South Mechanic Street.

The veterans, represented by Herman Don Bennett, first filed an application January 6, but it was rejected by the judges, due to the ownership of the building at that time, according to officers of the organization. Last week the veterans' group purchased the building, and yesterday filed another publication for a license.

Sherbow Plan Provides No County School Aid

Allegany County would receive no greater benefit with respect to state aid for public schools under Sherbow Commission proposals than it does under the present financial structure, according to the Maryland Public Expenditures Council, which has made a lengthy study of the report.

Only the four non-equalization counties, Harford, Montgomery, Baltimore and Cecil, along with Baltimore City, stand to benefit under the Sherbow system which Would change the method of state revenue allocation for school purposes, the council states.

Under the present system, state aid for Allegany County public schools amounts to $783,643.86, the report states, and under the Sherbow plan state aid is estimated to be exactly the same.

Man Who Wants Wife To Give Him Another Chance Explains View

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

Remember our friend "Repentant?" The man who wanted his wife to give him one more chance to show her that he was capable of being an understanding and reliable husband who could make her happy?

And remember the letter I published a few weeks ago from a woman who commented on "Repentant's" situation, denouncing him as a "miserable cad," and declaring that my own statement that I felt he deserved another chance "made her blood boil?" She also asked, in the course of her far from favorable analysis of his situation: "Would you want to bet that his wife spent many pleading hours with him predicting the eventual outcome of his continued behavior?"

Well, "Repentant," read this woman's letter, as printed in my column, and has written me again. He says that she "has already lost the bet she offers," because his wife never did spend hours pleading with him and predicting the outcome of his behavior. "I wish she had!" he says fervently.

Then he goes on to explain more fully his own view of the situation in which the remoseful and enlightened husband wants a chance to redeem himself, and the injured wife apparently prefers to sit by herself nursing her wounds—and her grudges—than to allow him an opportunity to try and heal them.

"On the theory that a situation like this is not, normally, entirely one-sided, either in cause or effect," he writes, "it is my contention that it is an infinitely greater display of strength of character to attempt solution of the problem, which may require some temporary sacrifice, rather than to run away from it and take refuge in the defeatist attitude that one is 'so full of resentment.' That attitude indicates, among other things, vindictiveness, which, by its very existence, is an unconscious admission of loss of faith in oneself, rather than in the other persons's ability and sincere desire to mend his ways."

In this I find myself in complete agreement with "Repentant," and also when he says: "It is my sincere belief that love, real love, is a pretty difficult thing to kill . . . Love can be, however, very effectively covered up, and may even be thought to be missing entirely, by the existence and magnitude of other emotions."

Referring specifically to his own problem, he then says: "The chance I ask for is merely the one to live and thereby prove the soundness of the above theories and beliefs in the sincere desire to redeem myself in my wife's eyes and to give my family the kind of home life and real happiness they so richly deserve. That this chance must be based on love on both sides, or a common love for our daughter, is axiomatic. I do not, in any case, doubt my wife's ability in that direction, once the desire is created, nor do I doubt my own, inasmuch as the attainment of that goal has become the most important thing in my life."

And at this point let me restate my own point of view in regard to this type of situation, in a little different language from before, perhaps, but with essentially the same meaning.

I do not believe in the wisdom of giving endless "chances" to a man who has nothing to offer a mistreated wife but wishful thinking; by which I mean a man who continually promises to turn over a new leaf, but whose promises are based on superficial and fleeting feelings, rather than on the real change of heart and viewpoint which alone could enable him to be truly different and better husband.

I do believe that a person who has through sincere soul-searching and honest self-analysis, gained sufficient insight into hisself and his problem to recognize and frankly admit where he was at fault, to see how he can correct these faults, and to have the determination and will power to put everything he has into correcting them, deserves, as I said before, another chance. It was because I felt that the original letter of our friend "Repentant" showed him to be of this latter type that I expressed the hope he would get the "other chance" he was seeking.

26 Farm Boys Enter 4-H Hog Raising Project

44 Swine Being Fed For Fall Exhibit

The Allegany County 4-H Club Hog Raising project is well underway with 26 farm boys already raising a total of 44 hogs, according to Joseph Steger, assistant county farm agent. He hopes to add enough more to have about 60 hogs in the county-wide project.

Steger explains the purpose of the program is to teach and train boys in modern methods of feeding, raising and caring for hogs, and to improve the quality of pork marketed from this county. The area offers large possibilities for hog raising, he said, and a program arousing interest among the "future farmers," is regarded as a step in the right direction.

Sometime in October, it is planned to have a 4-H Hog Show and Sale, at which prizes will be awarded for the winning swine, and live stock and meat dealers will be invited to buy the hogs from the boys. In addition to the training from the program, the boys will find themselves amply paid for their time and effort, Steger explained.

The following Allegany county boys have entered the hog raising competition:

Clifford Hartley, 11, Clinton Hartley, 11 and George Hartley 18, all of Piney Grove are feeding five hogs each. Charles Broadwater, 14, of near Westernport, and Harry Johnson, 17, of Willow Brook Road are raising three each.

Marshall L. Mann, 20, of Little Orleans; Raymond Kile, 19, of RFD 3, Keyser; William House, 17, of Oldtown, and Earl Twigg, 17, of Spring Gap, are feeding two each.

Boys feeding one hog each include, James Greise, 14 and Robert Greise, 16, Mason Road; Emory Crites, 11, and Raymond Crites, 10, of near Westernport; Alfred Mueller, 12, Richard Mueller, 14, and Robert Mueller, 17, of near Paw Paw, W. Va.; Douglas Ryan, 15; Joseph Shaid, 16, and Kenneth Shipe, 14, of near Oldtown; Donald Mallow, 15, and Wade Mallow, 13, of Flintstone.

Sylvian Llewellyn, 14, Barton; Donald Poffenberger, 17, Teddy Poffenberger, 12, Piney Grove; Melvin Fletcher, 19, and Wesley McCusker, 14, Little Orleans; Stanley Miller, 18, Herman Miller, 16, Herman Kesner, 14, and Curtis Kesner, 12, of near Keyser.

A patent was granted in 1836 to Alonzo D. Phillips of Springfield, Mass., for the phosphorus match.

NATIVE OF COUNTY HAS LONG SERVICE

A former resident of Flintstone who has become one of the leading citizens of Elkins, W. Va., last Friday completed 50 years of "railroading" for the Western Maryland Railway and today holds the distinction of being the oldest living member of the Order of Railroad Telegraphers.

N. T. Downs, 135 Buffalo Street, Elkins, has found time to participate in civic activities, fraternal work and politics, but railroadng always came first with him from the time he went to work for the Western Maryland, then the West Virginia Central, in Parsons in 1897.

A son of the late William E. and Elizabeth (Chisholm) Downs, he was born and in raised in the Flintstone section, and his early railroad assignments at Parsons, West Virginia Junction, Shaw, and Coketon resulted in his becoming widely known as a young man.

Later he was transferred to Thomas for a brief period and then to Mill Creek where he remained for 40 years as freight and ticket agent. He is now the railroad company's agent at Beverly.

For many years the Downs family resided at Mill Creek where he became affiliated with the Masons, the Odd Fellows and the Royal Arcanum. He was elected a director of the Bank of Mill Creek and served on the District Board of Education for 14 years. Later, when the county system was adopted, he served on the school board for six years. While in Mill Creek, he also served on the town council and as recorder.

Downs later entered a broader political field and has the distinction of being the only citizen of Randolph county to serve in the House of Delegates three successive terms. He was not a candidate for reelection last November.

The family of Mr. and Mrs. Downs consists of two sons and two daughters: Col. Walter W. Downs, Kelly Field, Texas; Henry Downs, Kelly Field, Texas; Julia Downs, Washington, and Mrs. Jane Blankley, Arlington, Va.

Storage Building Razed By Fire In Westernport

Owner Says Edifice Will Be Rebuilt

By GEORGE W. DADDYSMAN

WESTERNPORT, Feb. 11 — The one-story frame storage building owned by Ruel C. Roberts, located on Front street adjoining the Cumberland and Pennsylvania Railroad, which was destroyed by fire early this morning will be rebuilt, Roberts stated this morning.

The building was built over 35 years ago by the German Brewing Company. Roberts estimates his loss at $1,500, which is partly covered by insurance. The fire, which started in the rear of the building, may have been started by transients.

Potomac Fire Company No. 2 of Westernport and Tri-Towns Fire Company No. 1 of Piedmont fought the blaze for two hours, after it was discovered at 12:30 a. m. The firemen were praised by Roberts for their fine work in confining the flames to the building. Nearby garages owned by Roberts and C. W. Greitzner were not damaged.

Recreation Association Meets

Vernon A. Staggers, principal of Piedmont High School, who is preparing a questionnaire form for the citizens of the Tri-Towns to indicate the type of all-year recreation program for all ages desired, stated at the meeting of the Tri-Towns Recreation Association last night at the Piedmont library that the forms would be ready for distribution early next week to the pupils of the schools. The 5,000 copies will be mimeographed at the Luke plant of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company the latter part of this week.

A letter of commendation was ordered written by the secretary, Miss May Rose, to Mayor J. Milton McIntyre and the Commissioners of Westernport for their action taken at a recent meeting in proposing a joint meeting with Mayor Harold Fredlock and the Piedmont City Council and Mayor Fred W. Wiseman and Luke Council for the purpose of passing a curfew law for the Tri-Towns. A letter also will be written to the Piedmont and Luke officials urging that a law be enacted.

The type of summer playground equipment was discussed and available ground was discussed. Some of the places suggested were the Piedmont High School grounds, Bruce High School grounds and the area in the rear of Memorial park, Oak View and Greene's addition, all in Westernport; and the Luke school grounds.

The next meeting date will be set by the chairman, Mrs. Raymond L. Moore.

P.-T.A. Plans Event

Founders Day will be observed at the February meeting of the Piedmont Parent-Teacher Association at the Piedmont High School Thursday at 8 p. m. It is the 50th anniversary of the PTA.

The program will also include the reading of a message from the national chairman of the Parent-Teacher Association by Mrs. Norman Baughman; and songs by Girls Glee Club, "There Are Such Things" and "Let Me Call You Sweetheart". The group is composed of Lila McDonald, Lillian Taylor, Ruth Ervin, Dorothy Sowers, Iona Furgeson, Mary Louise Paugh, Joann Sager, Flora Mae Hood, Ruth Basye, Dorothy Kelly, Sandra Ashenfelter, Lois Shreve, Ruth Brown, Joan Bell and Barbara Albright.

A poem "Golden Year," read by Mrs. Arthur Hartman; group song, "My Tribute"; and an orchestra selection, "President Lincoln March," by the high school orchestra directed by Miss Anita Dickens, will also be featured.

The Parent-Teachers Association will observe the 50th anniversary of Founder's Day Thursday evening at the Hammond street school at Westernport. The teachers will be in their class rooms from 7:30 to 8 o'clock.

Following a short business meeting a play will be presented, entitled "The Tale of Three Letters". Mrs. Clyde Kalbaugh will be the narrator. Others taking part will be Mesdames Kenneth Howe, Edmund Ross, D. W. Moomau, Oris Marsh, Milton McIntyre, Eldridge Schoppert, Wayne Gift and Mrs. Machin. Mrs. Eldon Cook will be the piano accompanist. Refreshments will be served, including a birthday cake.

Permits Issued

Permits to the Knights of Columbus to build a concrete block storage room on the rear of their home on Third street, and to the Hoffman Ice Cream Company of Cumberland to erect a hanging sign in front of W. T. Davis's store on East Harrison street were granted at the meeting of Mayor Harold Fredlock and Piedmont City Council.

Officer Thomas Walsh asked for an increase in salary. Mayor Fredlock informed him the council would discuss the request.

Brief Items

The Loyal Order of Moose will hold an initiation at their home at Piedmont Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Following the ceremony a luncheon, floor show and dance will be held.

Many Voters Think Jurisdictional Strikes Should Now Be Banned

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP
Director
American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., February 11—With the question of jurisdictional strikes bound to come up in Congress during the present session, a coast to coast survey of public opinion on the issue reveals two outstanding facts:

1. People who are able to define the term "jurisdictional strike" vote by about two to one in favor of having Congress place a ban on this type of labor stoppage.

2. In spite of the thousands of persons who have been involved in such strikes during recent months, in spite of the millions of words, the thousands of editorials written about the jurisdictional strikes, only one person in eight among the thousands interviewed in the present poll is able to define the term.

President Truman in his recent message to the new Congress singled out jurisdictional strikes as a kind which should be banned by Congress.

In measuring knowledge about the term and sentiment toward the jurisdictional strikes, the Institute had field reporters all over the nation ask two questions.

1. "What does the term "jurisdictional strike" mean to you?"

Here is how the replies distribute on a correct—incorrect basis:

Correct Replies	12%
Incorrect Replies	17
Don't Know	71

Replies were correct which indicated knowledge that a jurisdictional strike is one resulting from a dispute between two unions as to which should control certain kinds of work, certain workers, or certain areas.

The second question was asked only of the voters who were able to give a correct answer to the first question.

2. "Do you think Congress should or should not forbid jurisdictional strikes?"

The replies of the one out of eight able to define the term jurisdictional strike:

Should Forbid	68%
Should Not Forbid	25
No Opinion	7

On the definition of the term jurisdictional strikes:

Only one out of three among people who have attended college are able to give a satisfactory definition of the term.

Only one out of five among labor union members can define the term correctly.

By BOB PRICE

NEW YORK—This is one Lincoln's Birthday which finds historians and Lincoln students looking to the future instead of to the past. This is the year when the Robert Todd Lincoln collection of his father's letters and private papers is to be made public by the Library of Congress.

Robert Lincoln gave the collection to the nation in 1923, after it had been saved from destruction by the intercession of Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler. The gift had a proviso: That it was to be kept secret for 21 years after Robert Lincoln's death. He died in 1926. The 21-year embargo expires next July 26.

The content of the collection has been a subject of lively conjecture. There has been talk of sensational disclosures, ranging downward from a prediction of proof that Edward Stanton, secretary of war, was a traitor to Lincoln and to the country.

Dr. Butler, who persuaded Robert Lincoln that the papers belonged to the nation, believes that they are nothing more than records and evidence of various happenings in Lincoln's family life.

Such a theory would not explain fully why Robert Lincoln intended to burn the papers, nor why he was so intent upon keeping them from public knowledge until two decades after his death.

Robert Lincoln was at his home in Manchester, Vt., when Dr. Butler learned of his intention from Horace G. Young, an Albany, N. Y., banker and a close personal friend of Robert. As he recounted the story in The Saturday Evening Post some years ago and later in his autobiography, Dr. Butler argued for more than an hour before persuading Robert that the papers should be preserved. It was Butler's suggestion that they be deposited in the Library of Congress with a stipulation of secrecy until a fixed date for opening.

The terms of the gift were modified to permit a complete index of the collection as a means of insuring its safety. This index was started by the late Dr. John C. Fitzpatrick, assistant chief of the Division of Manuscripts of the Library of Congress, but was never completed. More recently, it was resumed by Dr. C. Percy Powell and he, more than any other living man, probably has the best knowledge of what the collection contains.

One mitigating fact against any sensational disclosures is that these papers were used by John G. Nicolay and John Hay, Lincoln's secretaries, in preparation of their Lincoln biography. As Dr. Charles C. Moore said in the report of the Librarian of Congress for 1923, "The collection, having been examined closely by such competent writers, may contain little unpublished material."

However, it should also be noted that the Nicolay-Hay biography was authorized by Robert Lincoln and it seems likely that any material which he deemed objectionable in 1923 would have been even more distasteful to him in 1890 when he inspected and passed the Nicolay-Hay work.

Robert Lincoln never gave any hint of the contents of the collection. In turning them over to the Library of Congress, he spoke only of "letters, manuscripts, documents and other papers."

Mother Goose And Mr. Flanagan

Cop Finds Small Fry Play Safe With Rhymes

AP Newsfeatures

OKLAHOMA CITY—Highway Patrolman H. J. Flanagan has used his Irish wit to sugar coat safety lessons for children.

And do the youngsters love it!

All Flanagan has to do to get an audience is to appear in a school yard and the small fry flock around.

It started when Flanagan was assigned to make traffic safety talks to children in grade schools He talked himself hoarse in the regulation manner and all he got for his trouble was a blank look.

At last he decided to speak a language the youngsters could understand. So he picked up a book of nursery rhymes and went to work, writing jingles based on the rhymes and illustrating them with graphic pictures.

One of his favorites shows a girl and her wrecked bicycle beside a road, with an accompanying jingle:

"Mary, Mary, quite contrary, what do your bruises show?

"That you never indicated with your hand the direction you wanted to go."

Reasons Flanagan:

"The kids all like nursery rhyme characters and figure that if things are all right for the characters they are all right for them."

Frostburg Group Acts To Keep State College

Name Committees For Investigations

FROSTBURG, Feb. 11—A number of local citizens met tonight at the City Hall, to discuss a plan of action to keep Frostburg State Teachers College in Frostburg.

The meeting was a part of a local program to keep the college, following a report and recommendation of the Maryland Commission on Higher Education, that it be closed and discontinued.

Michael J. Byrnes, chairman of the local group named two committees at tonight's meeting. One committee is to contact the State Board of Education and make an appointment to ascertain their plans with regard to the future of State Teachers College. This committee includes Edward J. Ryan, chairman, Dr. W. O. McLane, A. Charles Stewart, E. Irvin Prichard and Henry A. Minick.

It was reported at the meeting that the State Superintendent of Schools opposes construction of new buildings on the east side of State Teachers College, because of a coal mine subsidence there several years ago.

Byrnes named a committee to contact the Bureau of Mines and get an opinion as to whether this ground is safe for building, and also to get their recommendation as to what portions of the College property or other sections of the community are safe for new structures. The committee includes Rudolph Nickel, chairman, Thomas Elias, Henry S. Shupe and G. Gail Townsend.

237 Enrolled

It was reported at the meeting that 237 students enrolled at the opening of the fall semester of the college in September, including 34 nurses from Memorial Hospital, Cumberland.

The following statistics concerning the 203 full-time students at the college disclosed that Allegany county was represented by 156 students, 40 of whom live in the residence hall on the campus. Additional students, numbering 40, who reside in the residence hall, come from Washington county, with 17; Garrett county, with 15; Frederick county, with 2; St. Mary's county, with 1; Harford county, with 1 and 5 out-of-state as follows, New York, 2; Pennsylvania, 1 and West Virginia, 1.

With 80 students living at the college, it was pointed out that 120 commute daily to their classes from a commuting radius including Westernport, Ridgeley, Cumberland, Mt. Savage, Hyndman and Meyersdale. The vast majority of students, it was stated, depend upon commercial transportation and the Cumberland and Westernport Transit Company is co-operating by providing student rates.

If the location of the college is to provide equal opportunity in accessability for all commuting students, then, several speakers insisted, the Maryland State Teachers College at Frostburg meets that requirement since bus service is available from Mt. Savage, Cumberland and Westernport.

90 Veterans Are Students

Concerning the veterans of World War II, it was pointed out that 90 of the 110 men enrolled at the college are veterans and that 75 per cent of the veterans on the campus are enrolled in the junior college curriculum which offers a wide variety of courses allowing full transfer credit, provided a "C" average or better is maintained. Transfer credit at Frostburg and all institutions of higher learning is granted for "C" grade or better.

The citizens attending the meeting were informed that students enrolled are pursuing courses which will enable them to transfer successfully in agriculture, business administration, engineering, forestry, journalism, pre-dentistry, pre-medicine, pharmacy, secondary education and veterinary medicine.

Most of the veterans reside in local communities and find it financially possible to attend a college within commuting distance and are therefore able to take advantage of the educational privileges provided in the G. I. Bill of Rights. It was contended that it would be impossible for many of them to secure an education if it meant becoming a resident in some other institution, as some of them are married and have homes established and would find the subsistence allowance insufficient to take care of living expenses.

Keyser Carpenter Is Injured In Fall

E. K. Armentrout, 35, Route 3, Keyser, W. Va., was admtted to Allegany Hospital yesterday afternoon for treatment of a fracture of the left leg.

Armentrout, a carpenter for the Cumberland Home Insulation Company, told attaches he was injured when he fell while working on a Shade's Lane home. His condition is good.

Mrs. Mary Eagen, 86, 107 Greene Street, was admitted to the same hospital yesterday at noon after she fell at her home and bumped her head against a wall. She was reported in a good condition last night after she was treated for a deep laceration on the right side of her head.

Platt Outlines Music Program

Over 700 students in public schools of Allegany County are now studying instrumental music, compared to only 50 a year ago, Jack Platt, supervisor of music in county public schools, told members of the Exchange Club last night at the Shrine Club.

Introduced as the guest speaker by Daniel D'Amicol, president, Platt outlined the musical program of the county and explained the opportunities now offered to students interested in music as a career or merely as an extra activity.

The problem of the underprivileged children in the county is one phase of the program which needs attention, Platt explained. Under the present set-up, only children who can furnish their own musical instruments, or whose parents can afford to buy them, can avail themselves of the musical opportunity.

There are many children, Platt explained, who probably have musical talent and ability, who cannot study because their families have no means to provide them with instruments.

Platt suggested that any members of the club, or any other citizens who have instruments, or who would be willing to sponsor a child in the program, can do so by contacting him.

T. E. Williamson, of the Kelly Springfield Tire Company was also a guest at the dinner meeting.

Officer C. W. Thompson preferred the charge.

Police said Mrs. George "took a swing" at Thompson at Police Headquarters before she was taken to a cell.

Chief speaker will be Michael F. Kelley, Baltimore, executive secretary of the Eastern Community Council, Incorporated, who has spent a number of years in recreation and community welfare work.

Putting a Government Bureau in the position of being "Health Czar"—through any system—invariably works out the same. In America it would be "billions of dollars a year, for less health."

No such system covers all the people. Many indigents and a vast portion of the population secure medical service outside such plans.

Billions of dollars a year would be spent for bureaucratic red tape, supervisors, clerical staffs, inadequate and lowered quality medical care, hospital care and medical preparation.

That is the invariable experience of State Medicine, "Social Security Health Plans" or Compulsory Health Insurance.

Stocks Negotiate Selected Rally While Profits Restrain Leaders

NEW YORK, Feb. 11—(AP)—The stock market negotiated a selective rally today behind rubbers, motors, a few rails and special issues although profit taking continued to restrain many leaders.

Transfers of 1,300,000 shares were the same as the day before. Principal exchanges will recess tomorrow for Lincoln's Birthday.

The comeback was attributed partly to bullishness over the business outlook, dividends, earnings and persistent optimism regarding the labor picture.

Chrysler advanced 3 at 105, General Motors 1¾ at 65¾, Goodrich 3¼ at 71¾, United States Rubber 2 at 60⅜, Goodyear 2 at 58¾, du Pont 2 at 193, American Woolen 2 at 48⅞ and Schenley 1⅝ at 48⅜.

Canadian Pacific was up 1 at 15⅛, New York Central was ahead ⅝ at 21 as Allegheny Corporation tendered voting trust certificates for 250,400 shares of this road to Chesapeake and Ohio.

Other advancers were United States Steel, Republic Steel, Western Union "A," American Telephone, North American, American Smelting, United States Gypsum, General Electric, Westinghouse Electric, Great Northern, Baltimore and Ohio and Lehigh Valley Coal Common and preferreds.

Union Pacific dropped 2 points at 135. Smaller recessions were shown for Sears Roebuck, Woolworth, Douglas Aircraft, United Aircraft, Kennecott, American Can, Union Carbide, J. C. Penny, Philip Morris and Standard Oil (New Jersey).

In the curb Textron jumped 3⅝ points on an upward earnings revision. Modest plus marks were held by American Gas, Humble Oil, St. Regis Paper and Middle West Corporation. Turnover here was 640,000 shares versus 560,000 yesterday.

Railroad obligations recouped most or all of early losses in the bond market.

Investors showed little inclination to take a decisive stand and turnover dwindled to only $3,610,000, smallest for a full session thus far in the month. This compared with $4,100,000 Monday.

It's a simple thing to take a bottle of milk off your doorstep in the early morning.

But to get it there—that's a job that is truly comparable with the maneuvering of an army!

To assemble, transport, test, pasteurize and bottle the right quantity of milk every day and deliver it to thousands of consumers is a major operation indeed—one that calls for the best brains of management, scientists, technicians and engineers behind the man who actually makes the delivery.

Your "milkman" today is a dozen trained men. If you could see the actual operation and sanitary precaution behind a quart of milk, you would probably wonder how so good a food can be brought so you so conveniently and safely at so low a cost.

One of the extra safeguards this dairy uses is the Sealright Hood. Sealed on the bottle at 500 degrees F., this paper closure provides water-proof, tamper-proof protection of the pouring lip of our bottle. It keeps it safe from contact with hands or other exposure all the way from dairy to you. And that is important—because every drop of milk in the bottle must pass over that pouring lip.

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 11—Have you read "Mr. Blanding Builds His Dream House" by Eric Hodgins? If you haven't you should. It's on the best seller list, and it's a highly amusing story of an advertising man who builds a house — and the costs mount up, and up, and up. Anybody who has done any building knows only too well how true it all is.

Noel Coward

Well, Dore Schary, the new production head at RKO, has planked down $200,000 on "Mr. Blanding." his first purchase. He's put Cary Grant and Myrna Loy in the leads—not bad. I feel it should make a very good comedy.

Dore's been busier than the old proverbial one-arm paperhanger and what have you, buying stories, getting stars settled for making pictures, and making plans for the company he now heads.

Through the underground I hear it whispered that Betty Grable's last movie, "Mother Wore Tights," is terrific entertainment, and that Director Walter Lang did a sensational job.

But it's not Betty that this movie will help as much as Dan Dailey, young actor who was formerly with M. G. M. Betty, who is awaiting her second baby, will be off the screen for a year, while Dan will be hurried into a specially written screen play, "The Story Of the Song and Dance Man." This will take advantage of the raves he is sure to get in the Grable movie.

Them is orders from Darryl Zanuck.

Chatter in Hollywood: Jayne Meadows, who is only making her second picture at MGM, threatens to be a headache to producer Nat Perrin. She has a supporting role in "Song Of the Thin Man," and has been griping about many things and threatening to walk out.

She's been before the cameras for eight weeks so, naturally, this would be a serious thing to do. All I can say for Miss Meadows is if she does anything like that, she will be doing more harm to herself than to MGM.

She looks a little like Katherine Hepburn, this Meadows gal who is a socialite and very rich in her own right.

P. S. She goes back to New York after this movie by mutual consent.

For the first time in 25 years, Harpo Marx TALKED through an entire sketch put on at the San Fernando Veterans' Administration Hospital with Bob Armstrong M. C.-ing. The Red-wigged harpist who has always been the "mute" of the Marx clan had a good reason for going oral.

Practically every patient in this hospital is bedridden and unable to get to the auditorium—but in each room and ward there are ear phones and loud speakers. They particularly asked that Harpo have a few words to say to them when he finished his harp solos. Instead of the usual, "so happy to be heres," he worked with a top comedy writer and had the lads roaring with laughter.

The noted playwright, Noel Coward, is cutting Hollywood off his visiting list this time. He's in New York for a few days on his way to the West Indies to stay until March, then back to New York and home to England.

Noel says he is not here for business—just to enjoy himself and relax. You can be sure he is not going to Brooklyn. He hasn't been in this country since 1942—that was before the famous Brooklyn incident.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Josephine Wayne, John's ex, one of Hollywood's most attractive women, is being escorted here and there by Jerry Powell, wealthy oil man.

Spencer Tracy reducing via the tennis court. He has been playing a snappy game at the Palm Springs Racket Club practically every day.

Martha O'Driscoll who has been stymied in every attempt she made the last two years to get a divorce from her husband, Robert Adams, will try again. She has offered to let him get the divorce, but he refuses. Everytime the case comes up in court he asks for a postponement.

Joan Blondell's house is up for sale which either means she is marying Mike Todd or that she'll go to England.

Laraine Day has asked R. K. O. to shoot all her scenes in "Tycoon" first so she can get out of town to join Leo Durocher as soon as possible. Incidentally, she's receiving $100,000 for the one picture, which is more than she used to make in a whole year.

The Carmen Miranda-Donald Buka romance is in high gear.

Lorraine Miller, who made a hit with Helen Hayes in "Happy Birthday," is returning to Hollywood to take up her movie career.

That's all today.

Bath was the first English spa to become popular. Its natural springs had been used by the Romans. A fine Roman swimming pool is still there.

WHAT'S THE CURE FOR MEMORY

What can you do when ghosts throng your trail.

Memory ghosts, plucking at you with bony hands . . darkening the sunshine, chilling your blood with their circling shadows?

A life that can't shake its past—that's Shelia's story. It's an old, old story but as bitter as the first time it was told. They met and loved and were to be married. Then he found he didn't love her and he went away. And now she can't forget.

There's never a moonlight that I don't think of him. Always I'm listening for the sound of his step . . . for the telephone's ring. Memories fill my days. I'm not worth anything, any more, Elsie. Is there no cure for a trouble like mine?"

Millions asking that question . . . millions who are haunted by memories of old happiness . . . old grief . . . old sin, old failure, old success.

How softly it steals on you, saying—"Look at me! I'm all you have left. Your sweetheart is gone . . . your baby is dead . . . they'll never come again . . . you have nothing but me, now. Comfort yourself with me . . . with the memory of the past—"

Or muttering: "If only you could do it all over again! If only you hadn't taken that wrong turn, how different everything would be now. But you did take that wrong turn, and now it's no use. You can't undo what you did. There isn't even any use trying. The only thing you can do is to think and think about it and be sorry."

Or, sneering: "Look at them all! Putting on airs! Well, you were as fine as that once. Finer! You were young and handsome and bright and powerful. They aren't half as wonderful as you were once."

Ghosts . . . plucking ghosts . . . whispering, wailing, leering, sneering, sobbing, stabbing vampire ghosts that suck out hope and energy and leave your life a wasted shell . . . is there no cure for them?

There is! What is the cure for the past is the present!

How shall you forget yesterday? By living today!

Not easy? God knows it isn't. It's the most desperate task a hurt soul can tackle, but it must be done if life is to go on.

Do you really want to be cured? Then stand up! Shake off that plucking hand! Look at that gibbering shadow for the curse it really is. It may not have seemed a curse to you . . . it may have worn the tender guise of Love . . . or the noble mask of Repentance. But no matter what its mask, IT'S A THIEF AND A WASTER!

It's stealing your energy and ambition, your happiness and health. It's wasting your opportunity and deadening your conscience to your responsibility. It's leading you away from TODAY, where you belong.

Shake off that hand . . . turn from that voice . . . REACH OUT AND LAY HOLD OF TODAY. Grab the first job that presents itself. Anchor yourself in the wholesome difficulties of that job. Weary yourself so that you can't hear or feel memories.

THAT'S the cure for the haunting past . . . THE HUSTLING, HEALTHY PRESENT.

FRIDAY GAMES
Beall at Allegany
Fort Hill at Bruce
Central at Barton

Allegany High School scored its seventh straight victory over Central High School in Lonaconing, 48-22. Fort Hill rallied in the third quarter to sink Beall High School before a packed house in Frostburg, 41-29, and Barton tripped Bruce High at Barton, 43-29, in W. M. I. League games played last night.

In handling the Orange and Black its seventh successive defeat, Coach Walter L. Bowers sent 17 AHS players into action and thirteen collected one or more of the 20 fielder goals racked up by the defending champions.

The Campers jumped off to a 14-4 score at the quarter, lengthened their lead to 27-7 at the intermission and were on top by the score of 36-11 when the third period ended.

Freeland Stands Out

Elmer Freeland's shooting highlighted Fort Hill's triumph in the Mountain City. During the first two periods Beall had the better of the argument, leading 8-5 and 16-12, but the tide turned in the third quarter when the Sentinels outscored the home quint 18 to 5 and grabbed the long end of a 30-21 score. Coach Cavanaugh's aggregation also outpointed Beall in the final stanza, 11-8.

Freeland connected for nine fielders and a total of 19 points. The Fort Hill southpaw chalked up eight field goals in the second half.

Bob Truly and Tom Stewart were Beall's best bets, the latter going out of the game on personal fouls in the final period.

In the preliminary game Fort Hill's Jayvees took the Beall Jayvees into camp, 44 to 15.

Coach Paul Footen's Barton High passers moved to within a game of the third place Beall High quint by rallying in the last half to overcome Bruce High School.

Green's Goal Turns Tide

Barton led at the quarter, 11-10 and also at the halfway mark, but Donald Moran's basket sent Coach Grindle's outfit to the fore at 21-20 early in the third stanza. Ira Green's double-decker moved Barton on top only to have Moran connect with another fielder to give Bruce a 23-22 edge. Green's goal started the winning rally and Jimmie Lamberson hooped two free throws and the Braves gained a six-point advantage at the end of the period, 31-25.

Moran, who paced the Bruce attack with 13 points, including six fielders, was banished on personal fouls with the score 24-23 in Barton's favor. Green and Bill Warnick were the "big guns" for Barton with 14 and 12 points.

It was a double victory for Barton as its Junior High quint downed Bruce in the opener of the twin bill, 23-15. Lineups:

Greenberg Perturbed By Reaction Of Fans

Hank Says Bucs Withheld Story On Retirement

Management Asked Him To Reconsider

BY JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK, Feb. 11—(AP)—Hank Greenberg, perturbed by reaction of Pittsburgh fans to his statement that he was considering retiring, revealed today he had informed the Pirates in his first contact with the club that he would not play with the National League team.

In an exclusive interview, the former Detroit slugger, who was waived out of the American League and sold to the Pirates Jan. 18, said that he had withheld public announcement of his decision at the express request of the Pittsburgh management which asked him "to reconsider" the matter.

However, Hank disclosed today that he was "greatly concerned over the reaction of the Pittsburgh fans to my statement of last Sunday."

In that statement Greenberg said he was "considering retirement from the active playing ranks."

Hank said "I am greatly distressed by the report that the Pittsburgh fans are angry at me.

"I want the Pittsburgh fans to know that the first time I contacted the Pittsburgh management I revealed my decision.

"At the Pirates' request, I refrained from making any announcement until I had given it further consideration," Greenberg said.

"I gave the matter a great deal of thought," he added "but decided to stick to my original decision."

The major leagues home run king of 1946 said that "the Pirates asked me to come to Pittsburgh last Sunday for a conference. I felt that if I attended such a conference and did not sign a contract and later that day went to the Pittsburgh baseball writers' dinner, the fans would be led to believe that I had signed anyway."

"Rather than mislead the fans," he said, "I decided to stay in New York and make that Sunday announcement."

"I want to say now that I have the highest regard for the Pittsburgh management and I don't want to do anything to antagonize our relationship, whether I ever play for Pittsburgh or not."

At Pittsburgh, Roy Hamey, Pirate general manager, admitted Greenberg "probably did say" that he would not play for the Pittsburgh club.

"But there was nothing definite and we labored under the idea that eventually he would play." Hamey said, adding: "We still hope that he will change his mind."

Motley's new car, purchased only last week, was damaged badly when it struck the rear end of a truck. Motley was quoted by highway patrolmen as saying he fell asleep at the wheel. The 26-year-old grid star will be arraigned tonight.

Rowe Comes To Terms

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 11 (AP) — Pitcher Schoolboy Rowe came to terms with the Philadelphia Phillies today, reducing the Club's holdout list to four.

Rowe signed a contract after a 30-minute huddle with General Manager Herb Pennock and announced he would leave by automobile next week for the Phils' Florida training camp. Salary was not disclosed.

Still on the Phil holdout list are Pitchers Tommy Hughes and Charlie Schanz and Outfielder Ron Northey and Infielder Emil Verban.

Catamounts Open Football Drills

Spring Program Will Run Through April

The Potomac State Catamounts, under Coach Dana "Horse" Lough, will swing their Spring football drill into a full stride today with the issuing of equipment and the first workout. The 1947 gridiron hopefuls were called together on Monday and Lough outlined a program which will run through March to the end of April, terminating in a football game, probably between the first and second teams.

Lough stated that he saw no new players but he expects a few after the ending of the cage tournament for West Virginia Collegiate teams.

The 1947 team will have a mark to shoot at this year. The 1946 eleven set an all-time school record of seven wins, losing only two games. The 1947 team will face the same nine schools that last year's team battled. The '46 team also had the honor of receiving national rating on three successive weeks.

Game Protector Uses Jeep To Set Traps

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Feb. 11—(AP)—Game Protector Harrison Shobe of Grant County informed conservation commission officials here he had found a new use for his jeep.

Shobe uses the vehicle in setting traps for foxes because, he explained, it leaves no man scent on the ground to frighten off the animals.

He reported that on the morning after setting two traps he took out one fox and a skunk, and on another occasion caught two foxes in three traps set from the jeep.

Mounties Battle Once Beaten Navy In Contest Today

Fans To See Annapolis Game Free of Charge

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Feb. 11 (AP) — Coaches Ben Carnevale, of Navy, and Lee Patton, of West Virginia, were as voluable as a couple of Egyptian Sphinxes today on the basketball clash between their teams here tomorrow.

Carnevale described the undefeated Mountaineers as the best team in the country, "except possibly Kentucky."

Patton said Navy is probably the toughest opponent his passers meet this year.

Otherwise, they were mum.

The meeting between the once-beaten "mighty mites" of Navy and the towering Mountaineers is billed as one of the best in the east. The two are rated at the top of the heap in this part of the counry and each has its own contender for individual honors.

Navy has Captain Kenny Shugart, whom Carnevale calls the "greatest little guy I've ever seen in basketball," and West Virginia has Fred Schaus, a 6-foot-4 ex-gob whose keen shooting eye has helped the Mountaineers coast through 12 games.

Both squads worked out here this afternoon. Patton led his 12-man ensemble into town at noon and after lunch hustled them out to get the feel of the court and limber up their shooting and passing arms.

He especially wanted them to acquaint themselves with the fan-shaped backboards Navy favors—and which he emphatically disfavors. The Mountaineers are accustomed to the standard square backboard.

Other than that, both Carnevale and Patton rely on similar cage practices. They both employ a fast break and man-to-man defense, and develops plays of a single or double pivot. Patton, of course, takes advantage of his boys' height. They average 6 feet 3 inches, four inches more than Navy.

Having the game here gives hoop fans a unique break. No matter who the contestants, Navy has a tradition of not charging admission to mid-week sports events, so anyone who happens to be in town at 5 p. m., starting time, can walk into Dahlgren Hall without so much as a tip of the hat.

The open-door area has a basketball seating capacity of almost 5,000, and athletic department officials anticipate a full house.

Walcott Will Meet Sheppard-Bivins Winner

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 10 (AP) — Promoter Herman Taylor announced today that Jersey Joe Walcott, Camden, N. J., heavyweight, will meet the winner of the Curtis Sheppard-Jimmy Bivins fight.

Taylor said no date has been set for the Walcott fight but added it will be held here early in the outdoor season.

MINOR RULE CHANGE, BUT IT'LL SAVE A LOT OF HEADACHES

A touchdown has been scored and the teams line up for the extra point. The player kicks the ball but instead of going over the cross-bars, it is blocked.

Then the fun commences. Players on both sides rush for the ball. We've seen defensive players scoop it up and run for their own goal, 98 yards away. (This despite the fact that the team on defense may not score under any circumstances on this play.) We've seen offensive players rush for it; fall on it; try to pick it up; try to pass it; try to rush it across.

This is out as of 1947.

The football rules committee, acting on the recommendation by the Football Coaches' Association, has changed the rule to read:

"If a kick is attempted for a point after touchdown, only successful completion of the kick will be allowed to result in an extra point."

That's better, all around. When a kick is made now, it either is kicked over the cross-bars for a point or the ball is dead. No more fighting for the ball on this play with resultant headaches to players and officials. (By Walter L. Johns, Central Press).

Potomac State Is Host To Shenandoah Tonight

Cats Meet Virginia Floormen At 8:30

Coach Dana "Horse" Lough will send his Potomac State Catamounts after their third straight victory tonight when the Cats clash with Shenandoah College in the Potomac State College Field House at 8:30 p. m. Doors will open at 6:30 p. m. and a preliminary at seven will feature Coach Judson "Hodge" Hodges' Potomac State Frosh quintet against the Westernport American Legion.

In the main event the Shenandoah outfit brings here a strong team composed of mostly six footers. The first team has played together since high school days, performing for independent teams before entering the Virginia college. Against Salem and Shepherd, the Virginian team split; beating Shepherd and losing to Salem in the closing seconds of play.

Going into tonight's game, Potomac State boasts a record of eight wins in sixteen starts. A victory would shove the Cats above the "500" mark for the first time since December 13. Coach Lough announced that lanky Dallas Ours would start at the center spot tonight. Ours received his first starting assignment against Frostburg State on Monday night. The rest of the lineup will show Bob Lefever and Mike Yewcic at the forwards and "Bomber" Montgomery and Kenny Simms at the guard posts.

The game tonight will be the third and final of the Cats' current home stand. After tonight Potomac State will play two away games, returning home February 21 to play Westinghouse in the first of four final home games.

U. S. PULLED FAST ONE, BRITISH WRITER SAYS

LONDON, Feb. 11—(AP)—British sports columnist John Batson said today that the United States pulled a fast one on British golfer Dai Rees by substituting Ben Hogan for Byron Nelson in a challenge match in California.

"You need not know the difference between a putter and a permutation," the Sunday Dispatch columnist wrote, "to be conscious of an ancient and fishlike aroma emanating from such a reshuffle. Another chapter of the old, old story—lil' U. S. A., must win at any price."

The 33-year old Rees, who hails from Wales and was the biggest money winner in Britain last year, beat Nelson three and one in a Ryder Cup match in 1937. Their scheduled meeting for $5,000, winner-take-all, Feb. 22 and 23 was being awaited here as a chance for the Welshman to prove it was no accident.

Redlegs Sell Clay

CINCINNATI, Feb. 11 (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds announced sale of Outfielder Dain Clay to San Diego of the Pacific Coast League. The purchase price was not disclosed. Clay hit only .228 for the Reds last year.

Yankees Sought Trio Who Jumped To Mexican Loop

BY JACK HAND

NEW YORK, Feb. 11—(AP)—Sam Breadon turned down a $150,000 offer from the New York Yankees for Max Lanier, Fred Martin and Lou Klein after the three St. Louis Cardinal players had obtained travel permits to "jump" to Mexico, the Associated Press learned exclusively today.

The story of the three players' decision to desert the Red Birds for Pasquel gold already was on the streets when Larry MacPhail contacted Breadon at his New York hotel May 23, with the startling cash offer.

Although Breadon was unaware of it at the time, the Yankee president already had convinced the Mexicans to cancel the three travel permits, and was prepared to go the limit in the salary offer for Lanier, the top pitcher in the National League.

Breadon considered the proposition briefly and then belied his reputation as a "pinch-penny" by refusing to take the money. He told MacPhail that Lanier, Martin and Klein must play for the Cardinals or not at all. It wound up being not at all as they continued to Mexico four days later.

When the question of obtaining waivers on the trio was brought up during the discussion MacPhail assured the Cardinal owner that not a single National League club would take a chance on claiming players who already were believed on their way to Mexico.

New York Favors Lip-Tattoo Method

NEW YORK, Feb. 11—(AP)—As a means of preventing "ringer" cases, the Jockey Club (New York), racing's leading control body, has recommended the lip - tattooing method for identification or race horses and suggested that all thoroughbreds be marked in this manner.

The lip tattoo method was developed by the Army Remount Service. Under the system, an identifying number is permanently and irremovably marked inside the horse's lip, thereby preventing substitution of a "ringer."

The Jockey Club stewards suggested that the number tattooed on the lip be identical with a horse's registration certificate number.

Jim Bagby Pleased

ATLANTA, Feb. 11 (AP) — Jim Bagby, Jr., was jubilant today over his sale by the Boston Red Sox to the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Bagby, who served as a relief hurler for the Red Sox last year, said he had asked to be traded to get more work.

"I left on good terms," he said. "I just wanted to work regularly instead of sitting around on the bench."

LAKE PLACID, N. Y., Feb. 10 (AP) — The AAU Senior Bobsledding Championships were called off today after two heats because of snow and ice conditions on the Mt. Van Hoevenberg Olympic mile run.

Garden Will Have More Basketball Games Next Year

NEW YORK, Feb. 11—(AP)—Ned Irish, executive vice - president of Madison Square Garden, said today that 29 dates, a record, had been allotted tentatively for college basketball at the big arena for the 1947-8 season. The colleges were given 28 this season.

Irish, who also holds the post as director of basketball at the Garden, said that The New York Knickerbockers, The Basketball Association of America team sponsored by the arena, probably will stage five to seven of its contests in the sports palace.

The Knicks were given five dates this year for the Garden with the remainder of their home games listed for the 69th Regiment Armory. The armory can hold abound 6,000 compared to 18,400 for the Garden.

In his talk at the Metropolitan Basketball Writers Luncheon, Irish said that he was hopeful that the basketball eliminations for the 1948 London Olympics would be held in the Garden in March of that year.

Asa Bushnell, secretary of the Eastern Athletic Conference and chairman of the Selection Committee for the National Invitation Basketball Tournament which is held annually in the Garden in March, said the committee would get to work this week on going over the records of a large number of teams.

"We've got so many good teams around the country that it would be a lot easier to make a 32-team draw rather than to pick out just eight fives," Bushnell said, "but we'll get busy and thin the list down to that eight."

No teams were mentioned but it's almost a sure bet that West Virginia and Duquesne, the only two unbeaten college quintets left in the country, will get a bid along with Kentucky's twice-beaten but high-ranking outfit.

The U. S. Capitol building would fit into any one of the five pie-shaped sections of the U. S. War Department's Pentagon Building in Washington.

Club House Is Destroyed By Fire

GARRISON, Md., Feb. 10 (AP) — Fanned by strong winds, fire of undetermined origin today destroyed the three-story club house of the Green Spring Valley Hunt Club, scene of many Maryland golf tournaments.

One member of the club and four servants were in the rambling frame structure when the blaze was discovered at 10:45 a. m., but all escaped without injuries.

In Memoriam

In memory of my beloved Mother, Mary Elizabeth (Littell) Clifford, who died three years ago today, February 12, 1944.

Of all the gifts that God hath given,
Except for promises of Heaven,
His best was when, to precious few,
He gave a Mother such as you.

Lovingly remembered by
HER DAUGHTER
2-12-1t

In loving memory of our dear Daughter and Wife, Mrs. Kathryn (Yost) Whisner, who died one year ago, February 11, 1946.

You were the sunlight of our home,
Our light, our life, our all.
To know you was to love you,
But you answered Jesus' call.

In our hearts your memory lingers
Sweetly tender, fond and true.
There is not a day Dear Daughter
That we do not think of you.

Sadly missed by: MOTHER, HUSBAND, BROTHER and SISTER.

RADIO IN REVIEW

By JOHN CROSBY

The B.B.C.'s Third Programme

On Sept. 29, the British Broadcasting Corporation inaugurated its Third Programme, the most ambitious and certainly the most overwhelmingly intelectual broadcasting project anywhere in the world. Up to that time the British had their choice of only two programs, the Home Service Programme which broadcast material of regional interest and the Light Programme which was frankly aimed at pleasing popular tastes.

John Crosby

The aim of the Third Programme was to broadcast masterpieces of literature and music in their entirety, not once but several times. There were to be no compromises to popular taste or to time. Wagner's "Tristan und Isolde," for instance, lasted three and half hours when adapted to radio. Ten times as much time was devoted to the opera's rehearsals. "Man and Superman," virtually never played in its entirety even in the theater, was presented uncut on two successive nights. Repetition is one of the basic tenets of the Third Programme. A listener who hasn't time for all three acts of a play may listen to two on one night and catch the third the following night. But this is not the whole purpose of the repetition. The directors of the program feel that music and drama lovers can't get enough of a masterpiece.

Even to the most cultivated ears, much of the material on the Third Programme is unfamiliar. Sir William Haley, director-general of the B.B.C., declares that the program aims not just at broadcasting the popular works of the great masters but also at airing works that are rarely ever presented anywhere.

This means the Third Programme is presenting music and dramas that are hard to find in any concert halls or theaters. Along with standard classics such as Beethoven quartets and Mozart piano sonatas, many music lovers are hearing for the first time extensive selections from Schubert's 600 songs and little known Liszt piano pieces. Ultimately the directors will blow the dust off Wagner's later operas and Verdi's "Simon Boccanegra," which has never been performed in England.

Even a partial list of the plays which have already been presented shows how deeply the B.B.C. is dipping into the classics. A few of them are Aeschylus's "Agamemnon," Aristophanes's "The Frogs," Dryden's "Marriage a la Mode," Ibsen's "Peer Gynt," Milton's "Comus" and Shakespeare's "Troilus and Cressida," "Romeo and Juliet," "Twelfth Night" and "Love's Labor Lost." Where else can such an imposing list be found?

The Third Programme is not committed only to dead masters. The directors have appealed to England's finest writers to turn in original works written especially for radio. Several of these works have already been aired.

Besides music and drama, the Third Programme offers features, poetry readings and talks, generally weighty ones. Even in the line of poetry the directors have made no concessions to popularity. Possibly the most impressive bit of dramatic poetry was the recital of Chaucer's "Canterbury Tales" in the original English, which to many Britons is almost as foreign a language as Greek.

The reaction of the public to a program cast on such a lofty plane was awaited with considerable nervousness. The towering intellectuality of the program requires of its listeners not only close attention but a great deal of time. Would any one listen for three and a half hours to an opera familiar only to scholars? On the basis of four months' operation, the B.B.C. reports that its listener response is very encouraging. A survey revealed that 7 per cent of the listeners were enthusiastic about the program, and 21 per cent were "interested" in it. Some of the programs have reached as many as 2,000,000 listeners, which is a large audience in a nation of 44,000,000 persons, particularly since the program covers only about fifty per cent of the potential audience.

Whether the Third Programme will lead to a general elevation of the cultural standards of Britain is a moot point. Some of England's most optimistic critics think so. "The Third Programme," according to Edward Sackville-West writing in the 'New Statesman and Nation,' "may well become the greatest educative and civilizing force England has known since the secularization of the theater in the sixteenth century."

Industries Oppose Sen. Kimble's Tax Exemption Bill

County Delegation Conducts Hearing

ANNAPOLIS, Feb. 11 (AP) — Enactment of a Senate measure to rescind certain tax exemptions granted industries in Allegany County would constitute a breach of contract and imperil the industrial growth of the area, a group of Western Maryland legislators was told today.

Representatives of the Celanese Corporation of America, the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company, and the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company asked the Allegany County delegation in the assembly to withhold approval of the bill introduced by Senator Kimble (R-Allegany).

The measure would direct the County Commissioners to annul contracts granted to any industry if it has been located in the area for 20 years.

Albert L. Vreeland of New York, representing Celanese, declared that "any act repealing the exemptions would be unconstitutional in as much as it would nullify a binding contract" his concern has with the Allegany commissioners.

He added that Celanese will not ask for a renewal of its present exemption after it expires in 1952, but added that the company has "spent considerable money for improvements" which it would not have expended if no relief had been granted.

Horace P. Whitworth, Sr., appearing for the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company, asserted his concern had no objection to other measures limiting the exemptions to 10 years, but outright cancellation would be a breach of contract.

Whitworth pointed out that three suits are pending in Allegany County to test the commissioners' right to grant the exemptions and said the question "is for the court to decide, not the legislature."

"They (the exemptions) are contracts," he asserted, adding "there is grave doubt as to the constitutionality of the Senate bill."

Whitworth said the companies had done much for Allegany County's economic welfare, while denial of exemptions would probably keep other industries out of the area.

Exemption Was Inducement

Former Attorney General William C. Walsh, representing Kelly-Springfield, related that the tire firm went bankrupt a number of years ago and was reorganized, with the tax exemption one inducement to bring continuation of its activities in the Cumberland area.

"Never in the world could you induce any industry to come into Cumberland if you rescind the commissioners' power to grant the exemptions," he said, explaining that it would be a "breach of faith."

"Cumberland would be a ghost town," Walsh stated. "The people paying a few cents more on their taxes would suffer irreparable loss."

Walsh emphasized that the firms are exempted from taxation only on tools and machinery, and paid their share of other levies.

Kimble, before the hearing, stated that it was the intention of the 1931 assembly in allowing exemptions to apply them to "any industry desiring to locate in the county," and "not to those" already located there.

He termed the present procedure "not in accord with the spirit and letter" of the act and "contrary to the fundamental principle" that taxes should be uniform on all classes of property.

Both Walsh and Whitworth pointed out that the language of the Act of 1931 reads that it is for the purpose of encouraging not only the initial location of industries in the county but also for the growth, expansion and extension of industries already located in the county, delegation members said.

Walsh told the legislators that machinery and tools of all industries located in Baltimore City are tax exempt, and cited this as one reason Baltimore has reached a high niche among the industrial cities of the East.

Such exemption, he said, encourages industries to locate in Baltimore, stay there and expand.

Representatives of labor unions, including Benjamin W. O'Rourke, chairman of the Legislative Committee of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, and George A. Meyers, of Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, attended the more than two-hour long session.

Labor, a member of the delegation said, opposed the exemptions and favored Kimble's bill on grounds that exemptions given to industry increase the tax burden of the individual, whereas annulment of the exemptions would ease that burden.

Horace P. Whitworth, Jr., chairman of the delegation, said a delegation meeting when the subject will be considered will be held later this week. He said members of the delegation did not comment on the measure.

Going To School

Master Sgt. Clarence Biehn, recruiter in the local Army recruiting office, will leave today to attend the Adjutant General's Recruiting School, Carlisle Barracks, Pa. He will return to duty here March 13.

Deputies' Pay Raise Bill Passes House

The bill to increase the salaries of sheriff's deputies in Allegany County was passed by the House of Delegates yesterday at Annapolis, according to Horace P. Whitworth, Jr., chairman of the delegation.

Known as House Bill No. 166, the measure provides that the Commissioners of Allegany County shall allow $9,780 for the Sheriff to pay his four deputies. Each of three deputies are to receive $2,400 and the chief deputy $2,580 per year. Present salary of county deputies here is $2,160 annually.

The bill has been sent to the Senate, and if it becomes law, Whitworth said, will be effective June 1 of this year.

Frost Bite Victim Is Improving Here

The condition of Carl L. Wright, 16, Despard, W. Va., who had his feet badly frozen during a hitchhiking trek that started in Clarksburg, W. Va., last Wednesday and ended here Friday, remained "satisfactory" at Memorial Hospital yesterday morning.

Local physicians are attempting to save the Wright boy's feet which were frozen so badly that they had turned black. His hands were less severely nipped by the cold.

Emmett Cooper, 21, 329 Central Avenue, was treated yesterday morning in Memorial Hospital for a puncture wound of the right hand. Attaches said he was using a screw driver when the accident occurred.

LaVale Man Faces 5 Charges After Chase And Fight

Hatfield Is Accused Of Assaulting Officer

Five charges have been filed by State Police against James Rudolph Hatfield, School Street, LaVale, who was taken into custody at 7 p. m. yesterday following a chase in LaVale and a fight with a state trooper near the former's home.

State Trooper William F. Baker, who entered the charges, said Hatfield assaulted him after he was arrested on a state motor vehicle law charge and that "considerable force" was required to subdue him.

Baker said Hatfield, who operates a tire retreading business in Cumberland, was driving a pickup truck "all over the road" in LaVale and that he ignored the trooper's red light ordering him to stop.

Instead of stopping, Hatfield turned off his lights and speeded up, police said, and Baker trailed him, sounding the police car's siren.

Hatfield drove to School Street, LaVale, where he stopped near his home, police reported, and then got out of the machine.

Baker informed him he was under arrest on a driving charge when Mrs. Hatfield approached. As Mr. and Mrs. Hatfield talked, Hatfield struck Trooper Baker in the jaw without provocation, State Police said, and a scuffle ensued before Hatfield was handcuffed and taken to the City Jail. At the jail, police added, Hatfield took another swing at the trooper but missed.

Officers said a number of Hatfield's neighbors were attracted to the scene in LaVale by the sound of the siren and watched the fracas.

Hatfield was arrested on two driving charges as well as charges of turning off his lights to avoid identification, assaulting a police officer and resisting arrest.

He will be given a hearing later this week.

Legal Action Is Taken Over Cadillac Toilet

Landlord Seeks Court Injunction

A bill for an injunction was filed in Circuit Court yesterday by Louis LaNeve and Elizabeth LaNeve, against Frank Molinari and the Cadillac Liquor Stores, Inc., to restrain Molinari from placing doorways and a stairway to adjoining property next door, and to prevent the enlargement of a toilet and lavatory between the two buildings.

The bill explains that LaNeve has leased the property at 26 Baltimore Street to Molinari for the Cadillac Lounge, and that the property next door is owned by Nicholas and Mary Spano.

It is claimed that Spano and LaNeve entered into an agreement September 24, 1942, for Spano to use a 9-foot section on an alley or area way between the rear of the two adjoining properties, so a toilet and lavatory could be installed. This agreement was for a period of five years with a five year renewal option clause.

LaNeve claims now, that Molinari and the Cadillac has cut through the wall of the Cadillac building and is erecting a stairway to this toilet and is enlarging the lavatory. He alleges the joining of the properties damages his building and asks an injunction to stop the remodeling and to order Molinari to cease enlargement of the toilet, to cease placing doors between the properties, and to cease constructing a stairway to the quarters.

LaNeve also asks the Court to command Molinari to restore any portion of LaNeve's property removed or damaged and to replace it as it was when he leased the building.

The Court, through Chief Judge William A. Huster, signed an order to cease construction immediately, and to show cause why the bill should not be granted as requested.

The bill was prepared for LaNeve by Capper and Jenkins.

Fort Ashby Man Held Under $500 Peace Bond

John G. Willison, Fort Ashby, W. Va., was committed to the Mineral County jail for a period not to exceed one year in default of a $500 peace bond imposed yesterday by Magistrate C. A. Jewell in Ridgeley yesterday afternoon.

Magistrate Jewell said the hearing was scheduled after the former serviceman's mother charged that Willison threatened to kill several members of the family, including herself, and asserted she had cause to fear that he would harm somebody. Cpl. R. R. Karrickhoff arrested the Fort Ashby man.

Deadline Extended

The deadline for enlistment in the Regular Army of partially disabled combat wounded veterans of World War II in the grade they held at the time of discharge, has been extended from January 31 to March 31, Lt. George J. Gocke, of the local Army recruiting station, said yesterday.

TAKE PART IN REDEDICATION—The South Cumberland Outpost of the Salvation Army, badly damaged by fire several months ago and since repaired, was rededicated with ceremonies last night. Taking part were (pictured left to right) Rev. Carl H. Clapp, vice-president of the Cumberland Ministerial Association; Capt. Lynn H. Wiseman and Mrs. Wiseman, who will be in charge of the outpost; Roy W. Eves, chairman of the Advisory Board of the Salvation Army; Lt. Col. Robert Rose, divisional commander for Maryland and Northern West Virginia; Mrs. Elmer W. Wall, Mayor Thomas S. Post, Major Elmer W. Wall, who is in charge of the Salvation Army here; and Capt. Walter Swyers, divisional Young People's secretary for Maryland and Northern West Virginia.

County Board Takes No Action On Juvenile Home

No Reports Made At Regular Meeting

No further action was taken on the plans for an emergency Juvenile Home here, at the meeting of the Allegany County Board of Commissioners, as Lewis M. Wilson, attorney to the board was absent due to illness.

County Engineer Albert S. Paye, who is preparing estimates on costs of the addition to the County Home and Infirmary property, did not present his estimates. Last week, Wilson was instructed to contact members of the Allegany County delegation to Annapolis, regarding necessary legislative changes, to use an authorized $100,000 bond issue for remodeling the present county property to include Juvenile quarters, rather than construct a new building.

Grant Abatement

The Board granted an abatement on tax assessment to the Campbell Coal Company for two properties which have been "worked out". The abatement covers 32 acres at Hampshire, assessed at $1,930 and three acres at Phoenix, assessed at $180. This practice of granting abatements has been followed, board members explain, when coal companies report coal fields no longer contain fuel which can be mined profitably.

Decline Comment On Tax

The board declined to comment on moves made in Annapolis to have a state sales tax enacted. At least two members, in recent "off the record" comment, said they did not believe the plan was "advisable."

Commissioners of ten Maryland counties, meeting Monday in the state capital, approved the proposal for a general two per cent sales tax to finance the state's expanded governmental needs. Three other counties of the state's 23 approved it with the reservation that areas contiguous to them should also have such a tax.

Wicomico and Kent county commissioners opposed the plan, while Harford declined to vote at the session of commissioners in Carvel Hall.

Seven Not Represented

Allegany, Garrett, Charles, Caroline, Dorchester, Talbot and Queen Anne's counties were not represented at the conference. Washington and Frederick counties were among those favoring the tax.

The Sherbow Plan for distribution of revenues was approved by most of the commissioners at the session. The plan calls for some additional sources of revenue.

The Allegany commissioners accepted an invitation to attend the dinner of the LaVale Volunteer Fire Company, set for February 25 at the Fire Hall.

Robert Smith, superintendent of the County Home and Sylvan Retreat, turned over $50.50 to the board. It was in the possession of a woman inmate, and will be held by the board for part of the funeral expenses when she dies.

County Engineer Albert Paye was authorized to use a power shovel to prepare for erection of a shed at the county garage, for storage of equipment.

Lt. George Vocke conferred with the board regarding Army recruiting quarters in the Union Street County Office Building, and decision was deferred until it is determined how much space is required by other agencies.

Central Avenue Home Is Damaged By Fire

A fire which started in a partition between the kitchen and the bathroom of the home of Houston G. Leath, 332 Central Avenue, yesterday at 3 p. m. caused slight damage to the kitchen and bathroom walls and floors, East Side Fire Company reported. Firemen worked almost an hour to bring the blaze under control.

The same company extinguished a flue fire at the home of Kenneth Rapson, 451 Bond street, at 6:35 p. m., and West Side Fire Company was called to Springfield Boulevard at 1:16 p. m. to extinguish a grass fire. The blaze was under control in about 50 minutes.

Duo Forfeits Bond On Speeding Charges

Charged with exceeding 30 miles an hour on Route 40 in LaVale on Saturday, Allan D. Macy, 14 Greene street, forfeited bond of $6.45 yesterday in Trial Magistrates Court. Albert E. Fisher, Frostburg, forfeited $6.45 yesterday on charge of exceeding 30 miles an hour in Long and the Narrows on Saturday. Both arrests were made by State Trooper George E. Coddington.

In Police Court, Charles McFaggart, Keyser, W. Va., was fined $5 on a careless driving charge. He was arrested earlier in the day by Officer P. M. Crabtree.

"Wake Up, Cumberland" Broadcasts Are Scheduled To Start March 2

Tentative plans for the first six programs of a Cumberland town meeting of the air, in a series titled "Wake Up, Cumberland," were made last night at a meeting of representatives of the five service clubs and three women's civic organizations which are sponsoring the broadcasts.

Mrs. John A. Cupler, II, education chairman of the Cumberland branch of the American Association of University Women, was named permanent chairman of the committee in charge. Vice president is Robert Ebert of the Cumberland Rotary Club; and secretary is Mrs. D. E. Trieber of the AAUW.

Topics Discussed

The first broadcast, scheduled for Sunday, March 2, will consist of outlining the purpose of the series, which is to provide the WTBO listening public with discussions of various topics of interest to Cumberland and Allegany county.

Subjects suggested for immediately ensuing programs are a consumers sales tax, taxation of gambling devices, a liquor control board for Allegany county, home rule, and the need for a county detention home.

After the programs get underway, the audience will be asked to submit suggestions for future programs. The broadcasts are planned for consecutive Sunday afternoons from 4:30 to 5.

The committee plans to meet every two weeks for a general discussion of the preceding program. Mrs. Aurelia Becker, manager of the Cumberland Broadcasting Company, who is co-operating with the group, suggested that recordings be made of each program to provide the basis for discussions on presentation.

It was decided to appoint small sub-committees of the group of 16 persons on the committee, which includes two representatives from each of the sponsoring clubs, to arrange for each program, selecting the moderator and the speakers.

Clipping File Planned

Other topics suggested for future programs include low cost housing, location of a junior college in Cumberland, recreation, smoke control, new industries, river pollution, a crosstown viaduct, new bus terminal, airline service, flood control, santiary districts, rehabilitation of handicapped persons, child guidance in the schools, and increased teachers' salaries.

F. Alan Weatherholt, representing the Optimist Club, wil lbe requested to take charge of a clipping file of articles from newspapers and magazines which may form a basis for future programs.

Station WTBO was named as the permanent meeting place, at the suggestion of Mrs. Becker, and it was decided that the general committee will meet every other Tuesday at 8:15 p. m. The next meeting will be held February 25.

Organizations represented are the Business and Professional Women's Club, Miss Lillian C. Compton and Miss Mary Murray; the AAUW, Mrs. Trieber and Mrs. Cupler; the Exchange Club, John M. Robb and George Tederick; Rotary Club, Porter D. Collins and Ebert; Kiwanis Club, James W. Bishop and Norman Goldblatt; the Woman's Civic Club, Mrs. William A. Douglas and Mrs. George Henderson; the Optimist Club, Weatherholt and H. Wayne George; and the Lions Club, J. K. Snyder and Alvin E. Yaste.

E. S. Black To Be Field Executive

Earl S. Black, 26, Petersburg, W. Va., will become Field executive of Potomac Council, Boy Scouts of America, on February 23, Kenneth E. Jackson, council executive, announced yesterday.

Black, a former member of the Petersburg High School faculty, is now attending the National Training School for Scout Executives at Mendham, N. J., and is scheduled to complete his course there on February 20.

While Black will have his headquarters in Cumberland, a large part of his time will be spent in the southern section of the council and the remainder in Cumberland. The council embraces Allegany and Garrett counties in Maryland and Mineral, Hardy, Hampshire and Grant counties in West Virginia.

Jackson said a field executive has been needed by Potomac Council for the last 15 years, because of the size of the council, so that scouting can be made available to all boys who desire to become scouts.

Jackson predicted that with Black's assistance work in the field will almost be trebled. Jackson, who has been doing all of the field work in addition to maintaining the local office, will continue to maintain the office and do some field work while Black will spend almost all of his time in the field promoting scouting and cubbing.

Black's work in Cumberland primarily will be in organizing the cubbing program for boys from 9 through 11 years of age. Up to the present time, Jackson explained, Cumberland has not had this program on a large scale because of shortages of manpower and funds.

The addition of Black to the scouting staff is expected to help raise the standard of scouting and increase its activities as well as enlarge the cubbing program, which has been very limited, Jackson pointed out.

Black, former scoutmaster of Troop 63, Petersburg, is married an dhas one child.

Waingold Takes Over Alibi Liquor License

The liquor license for the Alibi, corner of North Mechanic and Baltimore streets, has been transferred by Circuit Court judges from Charles H. Whetsell, to Harold M. Waingold.

The business, established here a few months ago by Whetsell and Cornish, is considered among the most elaborate "night-spots" in this area, and was taken over yesterday by Waingold, after the transfer had been approved.

Waingold has appointed James McKelvey, this city, as manager, and plans are to continue entertainment by out-of-town groups as a regular feature.

The building occupied is owned by Waingold, who applied for the license transfer January 17, after he had entered into a tentative sales agreement with Whetsell and Cornish. There were no protests filed against the transfer, so after the required period, it was granted by the court.

Strip Mining Bill Hearing Is Set For February 20

Frostburg Bond Measures Reported

A joint meeting of the Garrett and Allegany county delegations to Annapolis will be held at 4 p. m. Thursday, February 20, to discuss the proposed strip-mining bill which would affect strip-mine operators in Western Maryland, Horace P. Whitworth, Jr., chairman of the local delegation said last night. Persons wishing to be heard on the measure may appear before the delegation at that time.

The bill has been referred to the Allegany and Garrett delegations with Whitworth as chairman of the joint group.

It would stipulate that operators must furnish bond in the sum of $300 an acre with a minimum of $5,000, to be payable to the State.

With certain information to be filed with the Bureau of Mines, the bill would require that within a year after cessation of operation the operator must cover the exposed face of the soil, then plant upon it trees, shrubs and grasses under a plan proposed by the forester of the State. If this is not done, the bond would revert to the State and be used by the forester for reclamation and reforestation of the dug-over lands.

The bill which would provide a county appropriation for the newly organized Ellerslie Volunteer Fire Company was reported favorably out of committee yesterday, Whitworth said.

Two bond issue measures for Frostburg, totalling $75,000, for water and sewer lines extensions were also given favorable committee reports Tuesday.

Troop No. 6 is one of the oldest troops in this vicinity, having been active in scouting activities since March 21, 1927.

Richard W. Litzenburg, 642 Columbia avenue, was committed to the county jail for 40 days last night in default of fines and costs totaling $111.50 imposed by Magistrate Roy S. Litzenburg, a 38-year-old garage worker, was arrested at the Celanese plant Monday at 10 p. m. by Trooper G. M. Rotruck after the car he was operating struck an automobile operated by Keith Skidmore, Keyser, W. Va., near Danville on Route 220.

Magistrate Bowman imposed a fine of $100.75 on the drunken driving charge and $10.75 on a charge of failing to stop after the accident. Litzenburg was acquitted of a charge of reckless driving.

Trooper Rotruck reported Litzenburg sideswiped Skidmore's car as the latter stopped near Danville to pick up a passenger while enroute to work at the Kelly plant.

Rubber Workers Prepare To File For Portal Pay

Convention Delegates Will Be Named Sunday

Quoting Federal Judge Frank A. Picard's "Let us not be understood as holding that all portal-to-portal suits should be dismissed," Local 26, United Rubber, Cork, Linoleum and Plastic Workers of America, CIO, yesterday asked members to file authorization forms so that a portal-to-portal pay suit can be filed for the local.

The union committee said the Kelly local has never pressed its claims in the belief that the gains in the case might not compensate for the possible disruption of harmonious labor relations.

They added that many of the workers felt, after reading account of the Mt. Clemens Pottery Company decision, that the case for the local was lost.

However, after a meeting of the local last Thursday, the committee yielded to the desires of many of its members and decided to process portal-to-portal pay claims, both through filing of a suit and in negotiation with the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company, and to seek authorization from individual members so that the suit may be processed, a spokesman said.

A notice in today's Cumberland News, signed by E. A. Johnson, union president, notifies members that portal-to-portal forms may be filed at the union hall this week and at a regular membership meeting Sunday afternoon.

A union spokesman said there is a divergence of opinion as to the amount of time due but added that the amount will be determined after questionnaires are filed.

Delegates to the District Council Convention to be held in Akron April 12 and 13 will be elected at Sunday's meeting and a special meeting of all division chairmen and committeemen will be held at 2 p. m., prior to the 2:30 p. m. general meeting.

The second meeting of the Labor Education Program, in charge of Harley V. Brown, District 1 representative, will be held at 7:30 p. m. today. Brown said he hopes to organize a beginners group in addition to the advanced classes now being held.

FCC Accepts FM Application For Station WTBO

The Federal Communications Commission has accepted for filing the WTBO frequency modulation application, in the name of the Cumberland Broadcasting Company, according to Mrs. Aurelia S. Becker, manager.

The application, which is now subject to FCC approval, stipulates 3,000 watts output, as compared to 250 watts on the present AM (amplitude modification), Mrs. Becker said.

She explained that FM will increase the listening area of WTBO five times, so that it will reach an audience estimated at two million persons. The listening area will cover a radius of roughly 140 miles.

Cost of installing FM equipment is estimated at approximately $32,000, and will include a transmitter and an 8-Bay vertical steel tower, about 100 feet high, on Dan's Rock, one of the highest points in the coverage area. Necessary audio equipment for the studio is also included in the estimate.

Mrs. Becker said that the installation of FM will mean the elimination of all static, so that the radio audience may listen to programs in the midst of severe thunderstorms with no interference by static. It will also mean that persons living outside of Cumberland will be able to get WTBO programs much more clearly with a higher quality of reproduced sound, whether of voices or music.

FM operation is expected within a year, at the present rate at which broadcast transmitters are being made available by manufacturers.

Senate Passes Bill To End City Property Qualifications

The Maryland State Senate yesterday passed House Bill No. 150, which eliminates property qualifications of candidates for offices in the City of Cumberland. The bill now goes to Governor William Preston Lane, Jr., for his signature.

Introduced in the House by Allegany County Delegate Charles M. See, the measure eliminates property qualification requirements of candidates for mayor and city council. Under existing law, candidates for mayor must have property assessed at $1,000 for two years preceding the election, and taxes must be paid. For council, candidates must be assessed for $500 for two years preceding the election and taxes must be paid.

Several local groups are on record as opposing the measure.

Weather Moderates In Tri State Area

The coldest spell of the winter in this area, which began with the entrance of February, seemed to be breaking yesterday as mercury began rising from points near zero, closer to the freezing mark.

At Deal, Pa., mercury was at 22 above at 11 p. m., and some of the four inches of snow which fell over the weekend had melted.

The weatherman predicts cloudy skies for today, rising temperatures, but possibly snow in some sections.
